7th Sunday of Ordinary Time

February 19th, 2023

Why are Masses different at different Catholic Churches?

The Church wants the local culture to be present in the Mass in terms of language, music, and customs. While the rubrics (rules) of the Mass as presented in the Roman Missal are non-negotiables, these same rubrics will provide instructions and parameters regarding options within the Liturgy that clergy can choose to best respond to the particular needs of their communities. As it says in the Catechism of the Catholic Church, "It is fitting that liturgical celebration tends to express itself in the culture of the people where the Church finds herself, though without being submissive to it." (CCC 1207) Some examples of this diversity include:

- Reciting the Apostle's Creed or the Nicene Creed
- Penitential Rite can be with the Confiteor (i.e., "I confess to Almighty God, and to you my brothers and sisters, that I have greatly sinned ...") or without it
- Type and style of music and instrumentation
- The recitation or singing of certain prayers
- Use of incense • Use of bells at the First and Second Epiclesis
- The priest can give the faithful an introduction to the Mass of the day after the initial Greeting, to the Liturgy of the Word before the readings, and to the Eucharistic Prayer before the Preface; he may also make concluding comments regarding the entire Mass before the Dismissal.
- Communion under one or both species (Host only or Host and Cup) With all these options, it could seem that the Mass varies between churches. However, most of the Order of the Mass is constant and transubstantiation occurs at every valid Consecration, so the key mystery of the Mass remains the same everywhere.
