DIOCESE OF NASHVILLE — OFFICE OF THE BISHOP

June 2, 2020

Recent months have seen our nation challenged by an illness that has taken the lives of more than 100,000 people, the economic impact of the widespread shut down of businesses as well as nearly all social interaction, and most recently protests and rioting following the death of George Floyd.

We thank our civil servants for their leadership and sacrifice in addressing these issues.

Now, more than ever, the principles of justice and mercy embodied in Catholic Social Teaching and rooted in the respect for the human dignity of each person guide our efforts to work toward healing. With this in mind, I encourage the reading of the bishops' pastoral letter "Open Wide Our Hearts" which addresses the sin of racism and our desire for a more just and better world.

It is our trust in God that calls us to address a wide range of human needs including affordable housing, senior housing, and the support and assistance of many services provided by Catholic Charities of Tennessee.

Likewise, Catholic education offered through our elementary and high schools is a great equalizer that changes people's lives. Since the earliest days of our diocese, we have put tremendous effort into making Catholic education affordable and accessible. Our schools have an impressive track record of providing an excellent education, while forming students in the faith. Our schools develop well-rounded and civic-minded persons ready to serve as leaders throughout our communities. Hence, our support for programs like Tennessee's newly created Education Savings Accounts which hold great promise to make the benefits of Catholic education even more widely available to all God's children.

I thank you for your prayers and support of our diverse ministries in our parishes and diocese and join my brother bishops in supporting the statement by Archbishop Jose H. Gomez, president of the USCCB, following the protests across the country.

Sincerely in Christ,

+J. Mark Spalding

Most Reverend J. Mark Spalding
Bishop of Nashville
