R.E. MESSENGER

A note from the director:

una nota de la directora:

As I close out my first communion class this year. I want to first thank our parents for being patient. This past Sunday, I had many faces of confusion of why I asked for the communicants to bring 2-3 pieces of bread. I asked this only because this is one of my favorite lessons. This lesson is an example of how Jesus broke the bread and gave it to his disciples. Why not bring that to the classroom? As I keep my lesson a secret, and get asked multiple times why? Most think it's for themselves, or just a snack for class. It's the shock that they had when I had them tear 15 pieces and give it to each person in the class. There is so many lessons taught that come out of just this 10 minute lesson. Sadly no one brought my favorite (Frybread) but I love to see each year how cultures, personalities come out over a piece of bread. Maybe as you read this, take this as a reminder to always share your piece of bread with others. It might be just a piece, but the feeling that pulls us together as one is worth it.

As first communion approaches, let's refresh ourselves the guidelines before receiving Holy Communion.

1. Must refrain from eating or drinking one hour before receiving the Eucharist. (Unless health reasons)
2. Must be free from mortal sin.
3. When attending mass it is important to dress respectfully, because we are in the presence of Jesus in Eucharist.

A medida que se acerca la Primera Comunión, repasemos las pautas antes de recibir la Sagrada Comunión.

1. Debe abstenerse de comer o beber una hora antes de recibir la Eucaristía (salvo por motivos de salud).
2. Debe estar libre de pecado mortal.
3. Al asistir a misa es importante vestir respetuosamente, porque estamos en presencia de Jesús Eucaristía.

Every time we gather to celebrate mass, we remember the Last Supper and break bread with our church community, just as Jesus did with his disciples.
