Dear Mary Star Parishioners:

We have just celebrated a Blessed "Laetare" Sunday. Holy Mother Church gives us this wonderful time to remind us that Lent is almost over, that we are moving close to Holy Week and the Easter Mysteries. So we should be joyful and rejoice in the Lord for Our Redemption is near at hand. Below is a continuation of some thoughts on the spiritual benefits of a good confession written by a Parish priest who contributes to a column in a Catholic periodical. If we haven't already, perhaps we can take advantage of this marvelous sacrament during the remainder of this holy season. Have a Blessed Week.

Fr. Harrigan - The Pastor

The Season of Lent...

"We're plowing our way through the season of Lent. For many of us, the only difference we notice about this season is the fish sandwiches that suddenly appear on restaurant menus. Yet this is a grace-filled season for those who try to live it well. It's a season when we are invited to spend more time in prayer, to fast, and to give more generously to the poor. It's a time when the services in our churches take on a more somber, simple feel. We, in a way, journey with Jesus in the desert before he begins his grueling ministry which culminates with the cross and his resurrection. When we live Lent well, we find ourselves to be better people at Easter, people less attached to the things of the world, people more generous to others, and who feel more regret for our sins.

Here, I want to focus on that last item: regret for our sins. I realize many of the readers of this column are not Catholic, and they probably think it's strange that Catholics "go to confession," and tell their sins to priests. During Lent, in fact, Catholics do quite a lot of confessing. We get together by the hundreds to line up and speak aloud, in private, our misdeeds.

As one who goes to confession often (yes, us priests go to confession just like everyone else), I can say that the practice is very comforting. Often there is a peace and serenity when leaving the confessional that can't be found elsewhere. That's because the Catholic Church understands God has given this sacrament as a conduit of his forgiveness. In a very real way, when we speak our sins aloud in the presence of the priest, it is to Jesus that we are telling our sins. And it is his power to forgive that we encounter in the confessional.

Yet, even on a natural level, confession is a great tool for improving our lives. Take the example of gossip. If we have a bad habit of gossip, being required to periodically admit, out loud, that we are terrible gossips, and to reflect on how our words might have harmed someone, really will help us to leave that bad habit behind.

Also on a natural level, when we've done something wrong, I think we feel some compulsion to admit it. Confession offers us a completely private forum to talk about these misdeeds. But even more important than that, we hear the priest speaking in the person of Jesus say "I absolve you from your sins," and because it's a sacrament of the Church, we trust that the words have real power to impart God's mercy.

We can see that this is real. Go into any Catholic Church and watch the people in line for confession. Having taken stock of their misdeeds, they often look nervous and embarrassed. Then watch people as they walk out of the confessional. If they've confessed well, they often walk out as if a huge load had been lifted from their shoulders.

What, though, is the basis for this practice? When Jesus appeared to his disciples after the resurrection, John writes, he “said to them again, ‘Peace be with you. As the Father has sent me, so I send you.’ And when he had said this, he breathed on them and said to them, ‘Receive the Holy Spirit. Whose sins you forgive are forgiven them, and whose sins you retain are retained’” (John 20:21-23). We also read, in the Letter of James, that presbyters (the priests) of the Church share in Jesus’ power of forgiveness (James 5:13-15) and that one is to “confess your sins to one another and pray for one another, that you may be healed” (James 5:16). In the First Letter of John, too, we read that “If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just, to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness” (1 John 1:8-9).

The Catholic Church has always understood that “confess,” here refers to the Sacrament of Confession the Church still celebrates today. The Didache, which is a sort of early Christian “church manual,” probably written around the year 50 A.D., explains that “... every Lord’s day gather yourselves together and break bread and give thanksgiving after having confessed your transgressions, that your sacrifice may be pure.” Saint Basil of Caesarea, in the 4th Century, wrote that “It is necessary to confess our sins to those to whom the dispensation of God’s mysteries has been entrusted [the presbyters]. Those doing penance of old are found to have done it before the saints. It is written in the Gospel that they confessed their sins to John the Baptist; but in the Acts they confessed to the apostles, by whom also all were baptized.”

Lastly, Pope Francis once said that “The confessional is not a torture chamber, but the place in which the Lord’s Mercy motivates us to do better.” Amen to that! May all of us Catholics seek God’s Mercy in the confessionals during Lent. May all of our Protestant brethren, too, better understand what we Catholics do in confession, and may we all be better people when Easter arrives.”

30-31 MARCH

Use creative problem solving to find new ways to protect children

In the Protecting God's Children program, adults learn how to identify potential signs of abuse and how to pick up on red flag behaviors that indicate a potential predator, even before abuse happens. Another tool in the arsenal of child protection is creative problem solving, where adults learn to think outside the box when it comes to finding solutions for protecting children. One very effective creative problem-solving tool is to refocus the group's thinking, turning it away from the perceived "problem" and productively more toward a collaborative solution. Consider the challenge of how to deal with registered sex offenders whose children attend the school or participate in religious education at the parish. Rather than discuss the topic, the leader might ask participants to finish the following sentences, "Wouldn't it be awful if..." and "Wouldn't it be wonderful if..." Once everyone has provided responses, the group can look through the answers to find connecting themes that may provide a previously untried solution. For more information from the VIRTUS® article "Creative Problem Solving — How Can it Help?" visit <http://www.la-archdiocese.org/org/protecting/Pages/VIRTUS-Current-Online-Articles.aspx>

30-31 de Marzo

La técnica de "resolviendo problemas" puede ser una forma creativa de protección

En el programa Protegiendo a los niños de Dios, los adultos aprenden cómo identificar posibles signos de abuso y cómo detectar comportamientos que indiquen la existencia de un posible depredador, incluso antes de que ocurra el abuso. Otra herramienta preventiva de protección infantil es la solución creativa de problemas, donde los adultos aprenden a pensar de manera innovadora cuando se trata de encontrar soluciones para proteger a los niños. Una herramienta creativa muy efectiva es reenfocar el pensamiento del grupo, alejándolo del "problema" percibido y orientándolo productivamente hacia una solución colaborativa. Considere el desafío de cómo tratar con los delincuentes sexuales registrados, cuyos hijos asisten a la escuela o participan en la educación religiosa en la parroquia. En lugar de discutir el tema, el líder podría pedirles a los participantes que terminen las siguientes oraciones: "¿No sería horrible si ..." y "¿No sería maravilloso si ..."

MARY STAR OF THE SEA ELEMENTARY & PRE- SCHOOL

Dear Mary Star of the Sea Community,
Last week, MSSE went through the accreditation visit that occurs every six years by the Dept. of Catholic Schools and the Western Association of Schools and Colleges; WASC. This accreditation is mandated for every public and private elementary, high school and college. Over the last year, the faculty and staff of Mary Star have reviewed and evaluated our own curriculum, programs, and culture. Now, with the conclusion of the 3-day visit, with interviews of staff, students, parents and our pastor Fr. Harrigan, we have completed our portion of the accreditation. I am proud to announce that Mary Star of the Sea Elementary School has received a very positive report! Many thanks to all those in the parish community that support our school, to the staff and faculty, parents and students, and to the previous principal, Mrs. Maricich. Together, all of us have worked to make MSSE's light shine.

Fourth Sunday of Lent

Jesus told this parable in response to the grumbling of the Pharisees and scribes, who were upset that Jesus was eating with tax collectors and sinners. Sinners come gladly to hear Jesus, but religious authorities respond to Jesus with grumbling forgetting that they, too, are sinners.

The focus of the parable is not on the sons but the father, who has two sons, each flawed in his own way. The father loves both sons, and seeks to restore the family which has been broken by the younger son's departure and the making of poor choices, and the elder son's estrangement even though he still lives at his father's home.

The kingdom of God is like a father who had two sons, one who was faithful and one who was not, and he loved them both with all of his heart and wanted nothing more than for them to love one another and be reconciled to each other.

The Good News is God loves both the righteous and the sinners with little regard for whether they deserve it or not, and wants us – the righteous and the sinners – to love one another and be reconciled to each other.
