FROM THE PASTOR

Dear Parishioners,

Gratefulness. It's one of those qualities our elders reminded us about when we were growing up, but it's one of those values that we tend to forget. As adults we get caught up in what is wrong with the world, what is wrong with our life, and what is wrong with our neighbor. We forget to be grateful for the many blessings that we have.

Today, in the first reading, we hear of Naaman coming back to thank the prophet for being healed. The prophet reminds him that it is not due to his intercession, but God's. But Naman is so overwhelmed with gratitude that he insists on taking some of the soil from the place home with him so that he can continue to thank God there on that soil. His healing allows him to acknowledge the one true God, the God of Israel, and his gratefulness. In the Gospel reading, Jesus heals 10 lepers. The other nine were probably so excited that they went off to tell their friends and relatives about the new life they had been given. But they forgot to thank the healer. Only one comes back to thank Jesus.

In the midst of difficult economic times, in the midst of bad news, even in the struggles of our family or daily life, never forget to be grateful for what we do have... for we are truly blessed.

Fr. Jerry Francik

The listening phase of Seek the City to Come (Heb 13:14) — the prayerful imitative to reimagine Catholic life in Baltimore City and some surrounding parishes — has begun! Over the next few months, the Archdiocese will visit all of the parishes involved with Seek the City. There will be Open Prayerful Discussions, online and paper surveys, and focus groups conducted throughout the city of Baltimore. Everyone's voice matters! Strong participation and involvement are vital to the success of this Initiative. Be assured that no decisions are currently being made, and we will move forward in this together! For more info, updates, and scheduled events, visit www.seekthecity.org

Thank you very much for the generous contribution of $3,349.37 from the people of Sacred Heart to the Mission Cooperative Plan of the Archdiocese of Baltimore. You help us reach out every year to a large number of missionaries who preach the gospel of Jesus Christ in various developing countries of the world.
