FROM THE PASTOR

Dear Parishioners,

It's easy to get lazy. We have heard people tell us, "Do what I say, not what I do." That, in essence, is what Jesus is accusing the Scribes and Pharisees of in the Gospel of Matthew. They are experts in the Law. They are very good at telling people what to do. But they, themselves, have now put themselves above the Law and worse yet, have lapsed into hypocrisy. They tell others what to do but will not even lift a finger to help the little ones. Jesus has much patience. Jesus can put up with the tax collector (Zaccheus) who is sincere and gives to the poor. Jesus can deal with the woman who is married numerous times and is now living with someone who is not her husband (Samaritan woman at the well). Jesus can even deal with adulterers. What Jesus cannot stomach is someone who is a hypocrite. Unfortunately, if we are truly honest, we all find ourselves there on some days. Hopefully it is not often and they are not big deals but we often do not follow our best advice to others nor abide by our own rules!

This weekend is a good wake up call, not to point fingers, but to sharpen our attention on people who need our help, our advice, our love. Then we are to put into practice what we preach.

Fr. Jerry Francis

Call Me Blessed Book Study

BY ELIZABETH FOSS

A newly revised bestseller, Rooted in Hope is a 33-day Advent and Christmas study that extends from November 30 to January first. In a look at Scriptures that tell the stories of prominent biblical figures, this study echoes and expands upon the popular Advent tradition of a Jesse tree. For each day, you'll find Scripture, a devotional essay, pages for guided Lectio Divina, and space to organize your days. Journaling pages and useful planning pages feature clear and elegant design, exquisite hand-drawn illustrations, and gorgeous calligraphy. A handy companion for Advent and Christmas seasons, the book will become a treasured keepsake for the woman who uses it.
