All Saints and All Souls comprise the two-day celebration of the Communion of Saints – those who are with God in heaven and those who are on their way to heaven. On the Solemnity of All Saints, November 1, the Church celebrates those Christians who achieved spiritual maturity. It is a day to venerate all the holy men and women who have been canonized by the Church. It is a Holy Day of Obligation. A day later, on the Commemoration of All the Faithful Departed (All Souls' Day), the Church remembers and prays for the faithful departed: our brothers and sisters who have died marked with the sign of faith. Particularly, we pray for all the souls in purgatory.

Question:

What is the Church's stance on Dia de Los Muertos?

Answer:

"Dia de los Muertos" is simply a popular name in Latin American Spanish for the Commemoration of All the Faithful Departed, which takes place each November 2. The popular name in English is All Souls' Day. There are many ancient customs associated with the commemoration of the dead: visits to the cemetery with the cleaning and tidying up of graves, the setting up of commemorative altars, a meal shared there by the grave with special dishes served on the day, and so on. These are all fine customs and go back all the way to the earliest days of the Christian Faith. The saints and Fathers of the Church always counseled a certain restraint on the partying side; we can find this described in the Confessions of St. Augustine wherein his mother, St. Monica, has to observe the less generous customs of the Church in Milan, even though in her native North Africa the commemorations of the dead were more festive. The main point of the day is prayer, works of mercy, and penance for our dear dead, combined with the strongest means of helping them reach their heavenly homeland: the holy sacrifice of the Mass. The "Day of the Dead" is a day to show our love for the departed by interceding for them and hastening their journey from purification to the blessedness of heaven from whence they will pray for us gratefully.

There is a kind of secularized, public-school, media version of the Dia de los Muertos promoted by the media and commercial world, without reference to the Catholic Faith or prayer and Masses for the departed. The emphasis is on creepy or humorous skulls and decorations (not wrong in themselves), and they like to pretend that it is an indigenous Native American celebration, when in point of fact the day has nothing to do with Native American culture but is a Catholic observance that Native Americans celebrated in their own way, as in every Catholic country in Europe, Asia, or Latin America.

CELEBRATING THE DEARLY DEPARTED

While popular culture has distorted the feasts of All Saints Day and All Souls' Day, the Day of the Dead is a Mexican Catholic celebration that honors one's deceased family and friends and reminds us to pray for the dead – a spiritual work of mercy. So, whether building home altars, decorating memorials or gathering with family around the dinner table, this traditional feast is not a time of celebrating death, but a special, holy day in which we pray and remember all the deceased. Through prayer and familial communion, we look beyond death toward life's true purpose: eternal life with God.

— SueAnn Howell

Creating a home altar

Home altars are usually comprised of triangular-shaped tiers representing the three states of the Church: the living, the dead in purgatory, and the communion of saints in heaven. (Some refer to these as the "Church Militant," the "Church Penitent," and the "Church Triumphant.") Follow these four steps to create your own Day of the Dead home altar:

STEP 1: Set up a three-tiered shelf or table in a prominent place in your home. On the top tier, prominently place a crucifix or icon of Our Lord, surrounded by images of saints or the Blessed Virgin Mary.

STEP 2: On the middle tier, place pictures or memorabilia of your deceased loved ones.

STEP 3: On the lowest tier, place favorite foods, candies or beverages of your deceased loved ones. Here, you can also place colorful skeletons or skulls made of sugar, clay or chocolate as a reminder that death is a certainty for us all, yet in this life we strive for eternal life with God in heaven.

STEP 4: Use pieces of colorful paper, representing joy, to decorate and embellish your altar. Add flowers, such as yellow marigolds which symbolize Mary, to beautify the altar. Place votive candles on all three levels, symbolizing Christ as the Light of the World. Then throughout your family's prayers and celebrations this holiday, remember your departed loved ones.
