I SHALL GET UP AND GO TO MY FATHER

We are midway into the season of Lent. The Fourth Sunday of Lent is known as “Laetare Sunday” when the Church invites us to “rejoice” as we enter into the second and final part of our Lenten observances. In “Year C”, the Readings at the liturgy invite us to reflect on the “New creation” status we acquire when we experience a redeeming encounter with Christ. In the First Reading, as Joshua and the people of Israel were on the verge of entering in order to possess the promised land, God assured Joshua that He had removed from them the reproaches of Egypt. Like Israel that underwent a forty year period of transformation into a nation dedicated to God, so do we hope to be a new creation after our forty days of fasting and abstinence as well as a transforming experience of Christ’s glorious resurrection at Easter.

This is the point St Paul elucidates in the Second Reading when he declared “whoever is in Christ is a new creation, the old things have passed away; behold, new things have come. It is a revival of this new creation that we seek in the practices of fasting, prayer and almsgiving during the Holy season of lent. The revival of the new creation we became when we died with Christ at our baptism.

St Luke, through the parable of the prodigal son achieves thematic cohesion with the other Reading in the forgiveness and restoration to sonship offered to and received by the “Prodigal father” who represents God in the story. After this serially dissident son had requested for and taken his share of his father’s wealth to squander in a foreign land on a life of debauchery, an unplanned-for experience of famine and bankruptcy stung him into consciousness as he recollected that even the servants in his father’s house lived above his current state. This prompted him to make a decision to return to his father as a repentant servant. It is likely that he would have continued to drift away from the warmth of his father’s love if he had not met with hard times. Sometimes, it takes a few consequences of sin to sting us into spiritual consciousness that can be followed by a committed resolve to return to our Father through the sacrament of reconciliation.

Luke exposed the extravagant mercy of God in this story by recounting that it was the father, rather than the son, who first saw his son and ran to him. Even reconciliation with God is always initiated and sustained by the Father who is quick to forgive and restore us to righteousness once we respond positively to His Divine invitation. Acts of penance and reconciliation are rewarded by the Father with forgiveness and restoration to sonship.

In direct contrast to the father’s extravagant love is the passive but vicious indifference of the older son. He must have been there when his younger sibling erroneously asked for his share of their father’s estate. The parable did not say what his counsel was to his brother. A good brother would have cared to find his younger sibling as he wasted his resources in a foreign land and perhaps dragged him home for reconciliation with his father. Instead, when his brother returned, he referred to him as “your son” rather than “my brother” and accused the unfortunate fellow of squandering his father’s wealth on prostitutes while he labored without end to sustain it. Indifference to the life situation of any brethren who is drifting away from the love of God should never be the attitude of any Christian. By virtue of our vocation as Christians, we are obligated to make disciples of all nations. Thus, the spiritual state of life of our neighbor is our business and we ought to demonstrate concern when anyone we know is not where God wants them to be.

May we be drawn again and again to the love of the Father when sin seeks to estrange us from it and come Easter, may we experience the joy of restoration that comes after reconciliation with God who has made us a new creation.

Please be kind and may God bless you.

Fr. Manasseh
