Greetings in Christ Jesus,

Being Christians we ought to live our lives like we are afraid we are going to hell and are sure we are going to heaven.

It is like two receptionists that work at a company. One answers the phone in the morning. The other answers the phone in the afternoon. The sales team noticed that in the afternoon the sales for the company are notably higher. The technical support department noticed that their satisfaction rates are notably higher in the afternoon, too. The company did research in sales and found that there wasn't anything different in the morning from the afternoon in the way that the sales team did their work. There was nothing notably different for the technical support workers either. The company hired to do the analysis was trying to figure out what the difference was until one day, when they called in the morning they heard this:

"Thank you for calling Brand X. How may I help you?"

Then they called in the afternoon and heard this:

"Thank you for calling Brand X. This is Michelle, how may I be of service to you today?"

The difference could not be more stark. The receptionist in the morning professionally and acceptably answered calls and directed them to the proper department, just like her job description required. The afternoon receptionist, though, was more than just directing calls for others to work out their problems and needs. She was gently, and with a spirit of joy, advocating for the customer and clients. She was directing persons by the sound of their mood to certain sales people and technicians that she thought would match one another. She was listening to the needs of the customers and clients and giving them herself and her knowledge of the company.

In today's Gospel, we have Jesus preaching from the Sermon on the Mount. He is quoting law after law. The scribes and Pharisees should be happy, right? Well, they would be if Jesus left it at just quoting the law. Instead, he did what any good Rabbi would do, he expounded on the law. For us who are Christians, this is quite significant. Jesus is not just a moral teacher to us. He is not just a nice guy who does nice things for nice people. Jesus is the fulfillment of the law and the prophets. He is the Logos, the very mind of God. This is why we hear the priest chant as he elevates the Host in the Eucharist, "Through him, and with him and in him, O God, almighty Father, in the unity of the Holy Spirit, all glory and honor is yours, for ever and ever..."

Jesus, the fulfillment of the Law and Prophets, is saying that to be a Christian is MORE than just doing the minimum the law sets out. Being a Christian is MORE than following laws and procedures and jotting titles. Being a Christian is about going above and beyond the law to love. Love is more than just doing the bare minimum.

We like to separate ourselves from our actions. Often when a person is confronted with his/her bad behavior, he/she says, "It is not who I really am." That is not true. We do who we are. If we let that sink in, maybe we would accept responsibility for our actions more. Maybe there would be more true repentance in our world. What we should say is this, "I am not being who I want to be." When we get angry and fly off the handle, is that who we want to be? When we lust after another person, is that who we want to be? When we tell a lie to get ahead, is that who we want to be? Not if we want to love God. We have to be more one day, one moment, at a time.

Let us be united in prayers for Grace and Deep Peace.

Fr. Maschio

Sixth Sunday in Ordinary Time

February 16, 2020

Lead me, guide me for the sake of your name, Lord!

If you choose you can keep the commandments, they will save you.

If you trust in God,
you too shall live.

He has set before you

fire and water

to whichever you choose, stretch forth your hand.

Before man are

life and death,

good and evil,

whichever he chooses
shall be given to him.

I think all of us should have a respect for innocent life. With regard to the freedom of the individual for choice in regard to abortion —there is one individual not being considered at all, and that's the one who is being aborted. I've noticed everybody that is for abortion has already been born. ~President Ronald Reagan

Mr. Luke raised more, but "Pennies for Patients" was the winner! Proceeds will go to help the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. The Society's mission is to find a cure. Way to go, St. Philip's!
