Please call the Parish Office for information.

No matter how difficult things may be, we all have a reason or two to thank God for. Whether we are going through financial problems, family challenges, health issues, there is something that we can point out in our life and thank God for. In fact, the greatest gift that the Lord has given us is the gift of LIFE itself. Whatever we have and can think of comes after the gift of life. Having life itself is reason enough to give thanks to God every day. Every moment that we are celebrating the Eucharist we are giving thanks to God because the Eucharist in its original Greek meaning means THANKSGIVING.

In our first reading this week, we have a story of Naaman, an Aramean army general. He had Leprosy. When one had leprosy, he was ostracized, that is, he was excluded from the community and from going to the synagogue for fear of infecting others. It was the servant of his wife who told Naaman about prophet Elisha in Israel who would be able to cure his disease. When he visited Elisha, Naaman was told to go and bathe in the Jordan River seven times. He found this offensive and wanted to go back but his friends persuaded him to do it and eventually got healed. After getting healed he returned to Elisha to offer him a gift as an expression of GRATITUDE though Elisha refused it, and this also marked the conversion of Naaman as he realized that his healing was through the power of God, and he decided to worship God from that day. In our gospel reading too we have the story of ten lepers who asked Jesus to heal them. What is interesting is that these men with Leprosy never asked for alms or money, but they asked for the compassion of Jesus to heal them. Like the case of Elisha and Naaman the leper, here too Jesus gives the ten lepers instructions to follow which includes showing themselves to the priests and on their way to the priests they were healed.

From both the first reading and the gospel, we learn that Leprosy was a disease which alienated one from the community members. In our context, it is a metaphor for our sinfulness. Sin makes us unfit for the presence of God and despicable in the eyes of others.

We also see the importance of giving gratitude to God and others for what they have done for us. Not everybody realizes that our life, family, property, friends and faith are a gift from God. Naaman is giving thanks and praise to God after being healed and the Samaritan is too filled with gratitude, and both return to the one who is responsible for their healing. The question to reflect on today is which category do we belong to? Do we belong to the group of the nine lepers who never saw the need of going back to Jesus to thank him or the group of Naaman and the Samaritan, the non-Jewish people, who saw God's hand in their healing and were able to say THANK YOU? We all need healing, be it physical, spiritual or emotional. This healing power of God can be shown to us through an unfamiliar means as was the case with Naaman and the ten lepers. We must always remember to give gratitude and praise to God.

In Christ,

Fr. Christon
