

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

Las Vegas: Please pray for all the victims of the latest mass shooting in America. Ironically, this terrible event happened on "Respect Life Sunday." With the mass shooting in Las Vegas, we are painfully reminded that we have a long way to go to build a "culture of life" and "civilization of love" that St. John Paul II called for. Our society is full of contradictions. But, simply put, if every life doesn't matter then, in the end, no life really matters. We can't have it both ways. Our call to proclaim the sanctity of life begins at conception and ends in natural death and applies to every stage of life in-between. I am reminded of the prophetic words of Archbishop Charles Chaput in 1999 in the aftermath of the Columbine shootings (he was the Archbishop of Denver at the time): "The complete contempt for human life shown by the young killers at Columbine is not an accident, or an anomaly, or a freak flaw in our social fabric. It's what we create when we live a contradiction. We can't systematically kill the unborn, the infirm and the condemned prisoners among us; we can't glorify brutality in our entertainment; we can't market avarice and greed...and then hope that somehow our children will help build a culture of life." It is time for all of us to fully commit to ending the contradictions in our society when it comes to the respect for life. I encourage you to read Archbishop Chaput's full statement from 1999 that is, sadly, all too relevant today. It is entitled "Ending the Violence Begins With Our Own Conversion."

Sacred Heart Congress: As we see a country so full of trials, we need to turn to Jesus! One very simple way for us to do that as Catholics is to develop a devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus and to grow in the divine friendship that our Lord wills for us. I urge you to attend the Sacred Heart Congress on October 14th at Christ the King Church in Columbus. More information can be found in the bulletin and at the Sacred Heart Columbus website. This congress will be a great introduction or renewal in devotion to the Sacred Heart. I strongly encourage families to have their homes enthroned to the Sacred Heart. You can request assistance in the process of enthroning your home or business to the Sacred Heart of Jesus by visiting the Sacred Heart Columbus website. Jesus is the solution to the problems of our nation and He is mercifully waiting for us to turn to Him. How bad does it have to get before we will finally say that we need God in our country?

In Christ,
Fr. Wilson

How to Build a Culture of Life

THE PROBLEM

Watching the news and reading the headlines, we may feel helpless seeing the heartbreaking lack of respect for human life. How do we respond when our efforts seem small in the face of the culture of death?

OUR CHRISTIAN IDENTITY

To understand more fully how to defend and protect human life, we must first consider who we are, at the deepest level. God creates us in his image and likeness, which means we are made to be in loving relationship with him. The essence of our identity and worth, the source of our dignity, is that we are loved by God: “We are not the sum of our weaknesses and failures; we are the sum of the Father’s love for us and our real capacity to become the image of his Son.”¹

We are called to divine intimacy, true communion with God, and we can grow in this closeness with him through daily prayer, reading the Scriptures, and frequent participation in the sacraments, especially Confession and the Eucharist.

OUR MISSION AS CHRISTIANS

The knowledge and realization of how deeply we are loved by God elicits a response of love that simultaneously draws us closer to God and, at the same time, impels us to share his love with others.

Embracing a relationship with God means following in his footsteps, wherever he may call. Just as Jesus invited St. Peter and St. Andrew to become his disciples, he invites us to do the same: “Come after me, and I will make you fishers of men” (Matthew 4:19).

Being a disciple of Jesus naturally includes sharing the Gospel with others and inviting them into a deeper relationship with God. As Christians, our identity and our mission are two sides of the same coin; like the apostles, we are called to be missionary disciples.

MISSIONARY DISCIPLESHIP

This doesn’t necessarily mean quitting our jobs or moving to foreign countries. For most of us, our mission field is daily life: “Christ teaches us how to evangelize, how to invite people into communion with him, and how to create a culture of witness: namely, through love. A Christian life lived with charity and faith is the most effective form of evangelization.”²

The first step towards living this life is allowing Jesus to meet and transform us daily. If we respond to his grace, our lives will show we have something beyond what the world offers: we follow a person whose love changes our lives, so we want others to also experience his transforming love.

When we live in union with God, open to his prompting, we’re more able to see the opportunities for witness and his guidance in responding to these opportunities. We may fear doing the wrong thing or saying the wrong thing, but we do not need to be afraid. Jesus promised his disciples, “I am with you always, until the end of the age” (Matthew 28:20).

IDENTITY CRISIS

As a society and as individuals, we often measure ourselves by false standards: by what and how much we do, our successes or failures, how others treat us, the degree of our pleasure or independence, etc. And when these changeable substitutes prove to be insufficient, or when we are faced with challenges and suffering, we may feel helpless, alone, or abandoned; we may be tempted to feel as though our lives have decreased value or worth.

But God’s love—individual, real, unchanging—is the true source of our worth, identity, and dignity. It really is not a question of who we are, but rather whose we are. Because his love will never change, nothing can reduce our God-given dignity, and nothing can diminish the immeasurable worth of our lives.

OUR RESPONSE

When someone is facing great trials, we need to meet them where they are, walk with them on their journey, intercede for them, and be open to sharing Christ's love however he directs.

When a woman becomes pregnant, and her boyfriend threatens to leave if she continues the pregnancy, we need to lovingly walk with her. When family members or friends become seriously ill, we need to assure them that God still offers them something in this life, and they still have purpose. We need to consistently be with them every step of the way.

Sometimes our actions speak for themselves; other times, words are needed. Whatever the situation, Jesus knows how to speak to each person's heart; we simply need to follow where he leads.

A CULTURE OF LIFE

This is how we answer our missionary call. This is how we build a culture of life, a culture that joyfully proclaims the truth of God's love, purpose, and plan for each person. Changing the culture is a process of conversion that begins in our own hearts and includes a willingness to be instructed and a desire to be close to Jesus—the source of joy and love.

When we encounter Christ, experience his love, and deepen our relationship with him, we become more aware of our own worth and that of others. His love for each person is cause for great joy, and growing understanding of this priceless treasure motivates us to share his love with others. Our lives are often changed by the witness of others; so too, others' lives may be changed by our witness and authentic friendship with them.

Let us go, therefore, and not be afraid. God is always with us.
