SUNDAY, JULY 20, 2025 What to Say to Someone Who is Grieving

A grieving person needs friends who are willing to: Listen; cry with them; sit with them; reminisce; care; have creative ideas for coping; be honest; help them feel loved and needed; believe that they will make it through their grief. This session will assist not only the person who is in the midst of their grief journey, but also their support person who may be seeking tips which will aide in knowing what to say to that friend or family member who is grieving.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 2025 Helping a Child Grieve and Grow

No, you cannot protect the child you love from the reality of death. It has intruded into his or her life and the child must face the loss. But you can help him or her deal with the painful feelings and hold fast to good memories. This session will explore specific strategies aimed at assisting children through the grief journey, and the role of others who they can trust and let them express - and relieve - their feelings.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 2025 Getting Through the Holidays in the Midst of Your Loss

Holidays can be difficult for those who have experienced the death of a loved one. Rather than being times of family togetherness, holidays can bring feelings of sadness, loss, and emptiness. This session will provide strategies to help you better cope with your grief during this joyous, yet painful time of the year.

General Tips on Grief

- Give yourself permission, time, and space to grieve.
- Be patient and gentle with yourself.
- Seek support through family, friends, clergy, support groups or counseling.
- Learn about grief...understanding helps you to realize that you're not "going crazy."
- Express your grief...talk, write in a journal, paint a picture, play music, write a poem, do something physical...any activity that helps you vent your feelings.
- Don't overextend yourself or take on new responsibilities right away.
- Accept your grief...don't pretend that it doesn't hurt. Grieving is a natural and healing process.
- Don't compare yourself to others who are grieving. Everyone heals in their own time and way.
- Respect your own timetable...there is no fixed period for mourning.
- Cry...it is not a sign of weakness. Tears release tension and are healing.
- Pace yourself...grief takes energy.
- Take good physical care of yourself. Try to get enough rest...emphasize nutrition...exercise in moderation...see your doctor for a physical.
- Find balance in your life...take time to do nice things for yourself.
- Plan activities that are enjoyable.
- It's OK to laugh and have fun.
- Don't become dependent on alcohol or drugs to get through the painful times... they will only mask the pain.
- Get involved in meaningful activities... work, hobbies, and volunteering.
- Ask for help when you need it and accept help when offered. Let others know what is right for you; they will take their cues from you.
- Realize that death often causes one to examine his/her faith or philosophy of life. You may find yourself questioning old beliefs. Talking about it can help. For many, faith offers help to accept the unacceptable.
- Set small, manageable goals - one day (hour/minute)—whatever you can do.
- Postpone major decisions, such as selling your home or changing jobs, if possible. Also avoid making hasty decisions about your loved one's belongings. Gauge your own readiness.
- Realize that grief is a process that has both ups and downs, strides, and backslides, times of rest and pause. Honor your own process.
- Avoid thinking "what if..." "if only..." "I should have..." Feelings of guilt are normal, though often not realistic.
- Forgive yourself, if necessary
- Share memories. Use their name. Healing through grief doesn't mean forgetting your loved one.
