Swinging the club for vocations

By Cynthia Brewer

The 12th annual Bishop David Fellhauer Charity Golf Tournament, held for the diocese’s youth and vocation offices, was one of the most successful ever, even with our nation’s slow economy.

The tournament, which was held at the Colony Creek Country Club, Friday, April 24, 2009, is sponsored annually by the Knights of Columbus Holy Family Council 9088 of Victoria.

This year’s tournament brought in over $26,000, thanks to many generous sponsors and the participation of 31 teams.

The proceeds of the tournament were split between the Diocese of Victoria’s Youth and Vocations offices and the work of the Vocations Office.

The seminarians recently made a “thank you” video in appreciation of the Knights’ support. It can be viewed at http://www.victoriadiocese.org/vocation/vocation_main.htm.

As the diocesan director of vocations, Father Dan Morales has said, “People across the diocese contact me asking what they can do for vocations. The Knights of Columbus, Catholic Daughters, Serra Club, Altar Societies and other Catholic organizations from El Campo, Edna, Weimar, Yoakum, Cuero, East Bernard, Shiner, Bay City, Victoria, Mentz, Frelsburg, Nada, Schulenburg, Wharton, Hallettsville and beyond, support the seminarians directly or the work of the Vocations Office.”

He responds, saying, “The greatest work in the support of vocations is prayer. It is the foundation for all forms of service in the church. Never has the Diocese of Victoria been more invested in vocations than in the current fiscal year.”

The Diocese of Victoria has seen seven seminarians, with another in the works of Vocations from El Campo, Edna, Weimar, Yoakum, Cuero, East Bernard, Shiner, Bay City, Victoria, Mentz, Frelsburg, Nada, Schulenburg, Wharton, Hallettsville and beyond, support the seminarians directly or the work of the Vocations Office.”

Pope’s pilgrimage will take message of peace to land of conflict

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope Benedict XVI is set to begin a weekend visit to the Holy Land, a pilgrimage in the footsteps of Christ and a journey through a political and interreligious minefield.

In many ways, the May 8-15 visit to Jordan, Israel and the Palestinian territories is the most challenging of the pope’s foreign visits to date, one that will test his skills of communication and bridge-building in a region of conflict and mistrust.

After recent communications missteps at the Vatican, the pope can expect to find his every word and gesture under scrutiny by the world’s media – especially when it comes to relations among Christians, Muslims and Jews and the Israeli-Palestinian crisis.

Although the world may measure the success of the visit in terms of international or interfaith diplomacy, Pope Benedict is going to the Holy Land first and foremost as a religious pilgrim.

“The priority is to witness to the truth of the Incarnation by visiting, as head of the church, the places where the events of our redemption took place. That’s the point,” Franciscan Father David Jaeger, an Israeli priest and adviser to the Vatican, told Catholic News Service.

The pilgrimage has a special focus on peace. The pope, in announcing the visit, said he would be going to the Holy Land to pray for “the precious gift of unity and peace for the Middle East and all humanity.”

Father Jaeger said that’s extremely important at a time when hopes for peace among the population are the lowest in

Bishop’s Statement regarding “Swine Flu” and Mass

Memorandum to Deans and Priests from Bishop Fellhauer:

May 1, 2009

Because of concerns on the part of some people in the diocese, and for the sake of caution in this time of vigilance with respect to the “swine flu,” I hereby issue the following directives regarding the celebration of Masses throughout the Diocese of Victoria:

Holy Communion should be given under the form of bread only, and in the hand rather than on the tongue.

At the exchange of the Sign of Peace, a nod or bow to the neighbor should be given, rather than a handshake.

Ministers of Holy Communion should be especially conscientious about washing their hands before distributing Communion.

Emma Schmidt (center) prepares to enter through the doors at the future site of St. Rose’s new Preschool Facility. She will be a 2010-2011 3k enrolled student. Committee members in photo include from left: Melissa Schmidt; Stacy Oeding, 3k teacher; Rosanne Gallia, principal; Linda Schmidt; Natalie Mechura and Father Tim Kosler, pastor. Other committee members not shown: Lucy Stanzel and Project Manager, Bob Stanzel.

BIG news for our smallest students!

SCHULENBURG—St. Rose of Lima Catholic School in Schulenborg is proud to announce plans to open its new preschool facility for the 2009-2010 school year. The Early Childhood Center will be home to the 3k and 4k programs at St. Rose School. In the coming months, renovations will begin on the Stanzel home at 1101 Kessler Ave. just across from the school on Black Street.

When completed, the Early Childhood Center will be home to five classrooms, each with their own bathroom and sink; three teacher workrooms; and a private teacher bathroom. There will also be a new playground installed, outdoor chapel and new perimeter fencing to enclose the area.

The new facility will allow class sizes to be kept small, meeting optimal student/teacher ratios, and rooms will also be completely self contained, allowing more time in the classroom and less time in transition.

Each classroom will be designed around a center-based plan that is focused on the child and provides for hands-on learning. The philosophy of the new Early Childhood Center is aligned with Diocese of Victoria curriculum and supplemental curriculums to support academic growth, as well as social/emotional growth and wellbeing. General components of the school’s philosophy are listed as a belief set. We Believe:

- children come first
- young children learn best through play and meaningful work in a safe, fun and emotionally supportive environment
- in supporting children to become independent, self-confident and inquisitive learners
- in providing experiences for children to develop well-rounded skills
- each child is unique and part of a family system
- creating partnerships with parents is critical to most effectively meeting children’s needs

In November an Early Childhood Campus Committee was formed to review the feasibility of the project and gather data regarding cost, planning, etc. Members include Rosanne Gallia, principal; Stacy Oeding, 3k teacher; Natalie Mechura; Melissa Schmidt, Linda Schmidt, and Lucy Stanzel. Bob Stanzel is now also serving as client contact and project manager for renovations.

The committee held its first fundraiser for the center’s New Playground Fund on April 3 and 4. There was a garage sale and silent auction held at the future site of the new campus. The many home décor items, furniture, children’s books, clothing and other items helped generate over $2,000 in sales for the school’s playground fund. Bidding in the silent auction was also opened for those items being salvaged from the home. This will help raise additional income for the fund. A generous contribution from the Schmidt Family Foundation has made funding for this worthwhile project possible. St. Rose of Lima is currently holding open registration for the 2009-2010 school year. There will be a limited enrollment number for the Early Childhood Center. If you would like more information on the Early Childhood program or to register your child, please contact the school office at (979) 743-3080.
Dear Editor,

This September, a family in Victoria will enjoy a special experience by welcoming into their home a high school exchange student from Germany. This volunteer host family is participating in the SHARE! Student Exchange Program for the 2009-2010 school year. This international exchange student is eager to learn about how Americans live.

I am prompted to write an expression of enormous gratitude to the host family, the high school and community. As the regional director for this program, I have helped local coordinators find the host families and helped them select a student who best fits their family. Local coordinators and our regional office staff will supervise and monitor our families and exchange students throughout their stay.

There are still several outstanding candidates awaiting host families.

Sincerely,
Sister Anita Rodriguez

priests, religious brothers and sisters who serve in our diocese. Take the words and example of St. Paul. “Pray without ceasing.” The work of promoting vocations belongs to us all.”

Men flip for habits

An interesting turn in trends: A higher percentage of men compared to women (68 to 61) ranked wearing a religious habit as important or essential to what attracts them to a religious community. This preference has flipped from a year ago when women outranked men in their interest in wearing religious garb.

Let’s get personal

Not surprisingly, those discerning a call to religious life still consider personal contact with someone in religious life as the most essential resource for gathering information about vocations (53 percent). However, “Come and See” weekends ranked high on every age group’s list (42 percent), as did working with a counselor or spiritual director (38 percent). A religious community’s Web site ranked next, above vocation directors, parish priests, parents, and friends, and 58 percent rated vocation-related Web sites as either very important or essential to their information-gathering.

Religious life is ageless

In a piece of very good news for religious communities with aging membership, “living with someone not my age” is ranked as the least challenging aspect of religious life. Celibacy, a life of service, and living simply are all perceived as more challenging to this year’s crop of discerners than last year’s. Prayer and spiritual direction continue to rank as the most essential element in making a decision about religious life, and the discipline of prayer remains the greatest perceived challenge in living as a religious priest, sister, or brother.

Brothers gain ground

Religious brothers must be getting the word out because interest in their way of life has jumped nine percentage points in the past two years. The apostolic/ecclesiastical way of life – living and working outside of a monastery or cloister – remains discerners’ preferred religious lifestyle, with the exception of 50- to 59-year-olds, who feel most drawn to a semi-choistered/active way of life.

Surprise! Religious life is alive and well

“That it still exists!” was the enthusiastic response of one young woman when asked what surprised her most about religious life. Other things that surprised both men and women were the number of different religious orders, the variety of ministries and age restrictions. One man felt overwhelmed by the “amount of joy I have at the idea of joining”; another “that it is everyday ordinary people who are called to religious life.” One woman was surprised by the peace her choice for religious life affords her; another by the “freedom it brings.”

Hopes and fears

As for fears, many women expressed a fear of not seeing friends and family enough if they entered religious life; men expressed a fear of the loss of personal freedom and being unfaithful to their vows. One man captured the sentiments of many: “My greatest fear is not of religious life itself, but of the process of getting there – the reordering of my life to make the religious life possible.”

Half of all discerners going through VocationMatch.com are under 30 – good news for communities looking for an infusion of youth. A sizeable 16 percent of discerners are over 50, a fact, which invites religious communities to find new ways to associate with discerners of all ages.

Don’t hide your light under a basket!

“What these 2009 VocationMatch.com survey results show is that communities with effective online representation and promotion strategies stand the best chance to benefit from the significant interest in vocations that is clearly out there,” said VISION Executive Editor Patrice Tuohy.
Grace for the graduate: a leap of faith, a new beginning

Dear Graduate,

I know how you’re feeling: light headed and faint hearted.

You’re trying to process the culmination of four long years that flew by, trying to smile pretty and keep it straight – left hand takes diploma, right hand shakes, tassel flips from right to left.

You’ve managed to master biochemistry and the sociology of the cafeteria, Professor Martin and two inexorable roommates, and yet, these simple instructions have you feeling criss-crossed.

The hard part ought to be behind you, but you suspect the greatest challenge awaits: how to properly punctuate your college career.

You’re treading in the deep end of emotion, torn between a weep and a cheer. Each goodbye you extend feels sorely inadequate. I couldn’t imagine life beyond college. I avoided the close quarters and the strong, sustaining circle of friendship I’d been living in. I was sure I would never again experience anything like it.

And I was right.

But I can assure you that the end of one good thing makes room for the beginning of another. You’ll come to love your post-college life, with its new blessings and different rewards.

It, too, is deeply satisfying – perhaps more so, because you become a contributing member of society, not just a college student. You make your mark on a broader canvas.

So here is my summons to you: Instead of dreading this change, embrace it. Invite and absorb the grace of a new beginning.

“When the heart is ready for a fresh beginning,” wrote the late Irish poet John O’Donohue, “unforeseen things can begin.”

What a beginning does. It is an opening for surprises.”

Heart-stopping, soul-stirring, life-giving surprises.

They won’t arrive immediately, though. You must be patient.

As you wait for your future to unfold, take heart in this month’s scripture readings. “Beloved,” St. John writes, “we are God’s children; now; what we shall be has not yet been revealed.”

It will be, he promises, “We do know that when it is revealed we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is.”

That is what we do know, and it is enough for today. Every change that brings an uncomfortable waiting period will result in clearer vision to see and mimic God.

St. John offers additional solace later in the month. “I have much more to tell you, but you cannot bear it now. But when he comes, the Spirit of truth, he will guide you to all truth.”

What a stunning promise, to leap from childhood to adulthood, from being unready to unlocking “all truth.”

As you prepare to graduate, remember St. Rita, whose feast day is this month. She is the patron of impossible causes, which your job search may feel like.

St. Rita faced a terrifying crossroads when her husband and sons died. The convent she yearned to enter refused her application. But she prayed fervently and its doors swung open.

Prayerful patience will open doors for you too.

Look beyond the obvious as you assess your current state: yes, you have a paper degree and deep debt to show for the last four years, but you’ve also developed a broader mind and a bigger heart, which the world desperately needs.

Keep your head up as you walk across that stage. You have so much to look forward to!

Wedding Planning 101

It’s wedding season again.

Time for hair appointments and dress fittings. Flowers and tuxedos. Recently, I went through the whole wedding preparation process, beginning with a morning at the salon. It was not at all enjoyable.

A customer sat in a nearby chair and chatted with her stylist. They were commemorating about Catholic priests who have the audacity to insist on church weddings. They couldn’t understand why any priest would refuse to officiate at a backyard nuptial or beachside ceremony. What’s worse (according to these women) was the whole trend toward pre-marital counseling. Even Protestant pastors were beginning to require such nonsense. Who do they all think they are? I would have preferred being almost anywhere else. Okay, I thought, it’s time for a Catholic to take a stand. I took a deep breath and gave it my best shot.

I had been in the salon 30 minutes, minding my own business, but I had dared to open my mouth and challenge them on their position. They were shocked. These chatty women now sat in total silence. Undaunted, I went on. “If we really believe this is a sacrament, doesn’t it make sense that it takes place in the Church? And if it’s supposed to last forever, then pre-marital counseling can only be a good – perhaps even necessary – thing.”

I think the ladies wanted to boot me from the salon. The young woman working on my hair couldn’t stand the silence that ensued. “Well, I think it should be about anywhere else.”

I felt very sad for the women who disregarded what I said. “What does she know,” they seemed to say with their silence. I’m sure there are readers who know what I’m talking about because they have been through the pain of a non-sacramental marriage. Here’s the amazing thing. Even now, there is hope for healing. Mother Church is waiting for you. Go to your parish priest and ask about an annulment. (There are so many misconceptions about annulments.) Let your parish priest walk beside you. He will guide you through the process and help you discover what really happened. I thought the annulment process would be something like opening Pandora’s Box. It turned out to be the most healing experience of my life. Mother Church helped me to begin again and live again – in a rightly-ordered way.

Sometimes I wonder how I survived the aftermath of a non-sacramental marriage. Mother Church is not on some power trip. She loves us and knows what will make us happy.

Oh yes, I get it. I understand it all too well.

I get why this sacrament must begin in the heart of the Church. I get why the priest carefully takes the couple through the steps of setting the foundation. I completely get it.

I felt very sad for the women who disregarded what I said. “What does she know,” they seemed to say with their silence. The purpose of this article is to expand and comment on a news item that appeared in The Catholic Lighthouse in April 2009. On the airplane to Africa for the pope’s visit, a French reporter stated that the Catholic approach to combating AIDS—encouraging monogamy within marriage and abstinence before—was considered unrealistic and ineffective. The Pope replied that the AIDS epidemic in Africa “cannot be overcome by the distribution of [condoms]; on the contrary, they increase it.”

The Pope was pummeled for this comment. Here are some samples:

Professor Richard Dawkins, the strident atheist, said in a speech at the University of Valencia, “I wonder on what basis anyone can say condoms make AIDS worse. The Pope is either stupid, ignorant or dim. If people take his words seriously he will be responsible for the deaths of thousands, perhaps millions of people.”

The medical journal The Lancet called on the Pope to retract his statement and said his comments could be “devastating for the health of millions of people.”

Rebecca Holmes, head of policy, communications, and research for the Treatment Action Campaign in South Africa, blasted the pope for not advocating a wider use of condoms to combat AIDS.

Syndicated columnist Roland Martin wrote that the pope’s position demonstrated “ignorance of reality.”

An editorialist in The Guardian wrote: “Top of Pope Benedict XVI’s in-tray should be the question of condom use in the battle against AIDS: here a shift of direction is urgently required, and all it would take is for the Pope to acknowledge the long-established teaching of the lesser evil, Death or condom use?”

Leftist Polly Toynbee (sometimes descriptively called Polly Pot) wrote, “With its risively called Polly Pot) wrote, “With its use of condoms to combat AIDS. It is hard for me to imagine someone debating with himself and saying, “I won’t pay attention to the pope’s condemnation of adultery and fornication, but I absolutely cannot violate the papal ban on condom usage.”

Furthermore, these “realists” seem to have an infinite faith in the effectiveness of condoms. Some claim that condoms are 80-90% effective in preventing HIV transmission. This presupposes perfect condition, correct and consistent usage, an assumption that stretches credulity. Even accepting the rosy figures on condom effectiveness, if condoms sex with infected partners is very much like Russian roulette with a one-in-one or one-in-eight chance of being infected. Compare this with premarital chastity and fidelity in marriage—100% effective. Ironically, condoms are the least effective means of contraception, but our secular experts think they are the best barrier against transmission of HIV/AIDS.

Ironically, condoms are the least effective means of contraception, but our secular experts think they are the best barrier against transmission of HIV/AIDS.

The Pope’s position demonstrates “ignorance of reality.” An editorialist in The Guardian wrote: “Top of Pope Benedict XVI’s in-tray should be the question of condom use in the battle against AIDS: here a shift of direction is urgently required, and all it would take is for the Pope to acknowledge the long-established teaching of the lesser evil, Death or condom use?”

Leftist Polly Toynbee sometimes descriptively called Polly Pot) wrote, “With its ban on condoms the church has caused the death of millions of Catholics and others in areas dominated by Catholic missionaries, in Africa and right across the world. In countries where 50% are infected, millions of very young AIDS orphans are today’s immediate victims of the curia.”

British pop music star Elton John has attacked the Catholic Church and its position on condom use. He claimed that it was the reason for the demise of 60 of his friends to the sexually-transmitted disease, AIDS.

It is rather easy to answer the sophomoric argument that the teaching of the Church is responsible for anyone’s death. The teaching of the Church is that there should be no premarital sex and there should be fidelity within marriage. If that teaching were followed there would be no sexual transmission of AIDS. It is hard for me to imagine someone debating with himself and saying, “I won’t pay attention to the Pope’s condemnation of adultery and fornication, but I absolutely cannot violate the papal ban on condom usage.”

Further, these “realists” seem to have an infinite faith in the effectiveness of condoms. Some claim that condoms are 80-90% effective in preventing HIV transmission. This presupposes perfect condition, correct and consistent usage, an assumption that stretches credulity. Even accepting the rosy figures on condom effectiveness, condom sex with infected partners is very much like Russian roulette with a one-in-one or one-in-eight chance of being infected. Compare this with premarital chastity and fidelity in marriage—100% effective. Ironically, condoms are the least effective means of contraception, but our secular experts think they are the best barrier against transmission of HIV/AIDS.

This ignores the reality of cumulative risk exposure. For example, with repeated exposures to an infected partner, such as a sex worker in Nairobi or Johannesburg once a month, the man will likely be infected within five months, even with consistent condom use. Notice that prostitutes are now called sex workers as if their activity produces something useful for society. We do our best to keep up with the latest terminology.

The pope was ridiculed as being unrealistic for stating that condoms would not solve the epidemic of AIDS. The athes and secularists should have a look at the real world on occasion instead of imposing their ideology on reality. In 2004, 150 AIDS experts signed a Comment in The Lancet calling for an evidence-based approach to prevent the transmission of HIV/AIDS with primary emphasis on changing behavior rather than promoting condoms to halt generalized epidemics. One co-author later testified to Congress: “No generalized HIV epidemic has ever been rolled back by a prevention strategy based solely on condoms. Instead, the few successes… were achieved not through condoms but by getting people to change their sexual behavior.”

Harvard researcher Dr. Edward Green, director of the AIDS Prevention Research Project, says that connecting condom use to lower HIV-infection rates is a myth. “The best and latest empirical evidence indeed show that reduction in multiple and concurrent sexual partners is the most important single behavior change associated with reduction in HIV-infection rates,” said Green.

What works in the real world is promotion of monogamy and teaching about AIDS as is done in Uganda. “Human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) is preventable if populations are mobilized to avoid risk,” states a report summary in Science magazine. “Despite limited resources, Uganda has shown a 70% decline in HIV prevalence since the early 1990s, linked to a 60% reduction in casual sex. The response in Uganda appears to be distinctively associated with communication about [AIDS] through social networks. Despite substantial condom use and promotion of biomedical approaches, African countries have shown neither similar behavioral responses nor HIV prevalence declines on the same scale. The Ugandan success is equivalent to a vaccine of 80% effectiveness.”

Dr. Green defends the pope. “The pope is correct, or put it a better way, the best evidence we have supports the pope’s statement.” He notes, “There is a consistent association shown by our best studies, including the U.S.-funded ‘Demographic Health Surveys,’ between greater availability and use of condoms and higher (not lower) HIV-infection rates.” In other words, the more condoms we distribute the more AIDS we get. He says this may be due to the tendency of those who feel protected by condoms to engage in more risky behavior and thus overcome what little protection condoms may offer.

It is not the banning of contraceptive sex that leads to deaths from AIDS but sexual immorality. It is not the Pope or the curia who are responsible for millions of deaths from disease but the ones who tolerate as inevitable if not encourage immoral sexual behavior. It is not Catholic morality on sex that leads to deaths because, when followed, it is 100% effective in preventing AIDS by sexual transmission. It is instead the rotten secular ideology that living morally sexual lives is impossible that dissuades persons from the one thing that works. Sexual morality is undesirable because it requires self-control. Secular researchers no more want to acknowledge the need for behavior modification as opposed to passing out latex than alcoholics want to hear that they must stop drinking to prevent further injury to their lives. To paraphrase Gilbert Keith Chesterton, it is not that papal teaching has been tried and found wanting; it has been found hard and not wanted.

So the pope is right—again. It turns out that his critics are the ones who are “stupid, ignorant, or dim.” What people need is not more latex but more steel in their characters. The Church’s teaching brings life; secular immorality brings death. We should be safe in following the instructions of the Manufacturer and Designer of human nature on how to treat our bodies.

Once again, everybody repeat, “Sound morality leads to sound health.”

Easter – Time of New Life

As I write this, I see the weather station’s radar map showing large areas of rain – most of it by-passing Victoria. Fortunately, during the past few weeks we have had some showers – enough to give a green hue to the parched pastures and roadsides. The newly planted crops, the fully budded trees, the valiant attempt to bloom by the few wildflowers that managed to come up in spite of the drizzly weather are all signs of the renewing creative power of God. Yes, nature all about us is a reminder of the joy and hope of the Resurrection. So let us be human partners in this effort to reflect the glorious Risen Christ through our own expressions of beauty and hope.

Jesus told his disciples, “Peace to you” and “Do not be afraid.” Are we ministers of Christ’s peace in our families, our workplaces and our communities? Do our lives give witness to this peace? Sometimes something as simple as a gentle word or touch can calm a ruffled friend or family member and restore serenity. Sometimes we have to take a moment and ask ourselves if what we are about to say is fair and charitable and peaceful. Sometimes we may have to provide a “listening ear” for an upset friend or family member in the interest of peace. Sometimes we may have to stand for reconciliation and nonviolence in our society. I’m sure that you can think of other ways that you can serve as a peacemaker and fulfill the Risen Christ’s wish for peace.

Christ’s other admonition to his disciples was, “Do not be afraid.” We might ask ourselves if fear is keeping us from fully living out the Gospel call to love God and our neighbor? Do we let fear of being tied down keep us from making commitments? Do we allow the fear of what others may think or say prevent us from spending more time in prayer and spiritual enrichment or from reaching out to those about us who need us?

Let us then boldly radiate the effects of Christ’s Resurrection by sharing the spiritual gifts and treasures of our faith with our fellow travelers through our earthly pilgrimage. And let us fearlessly promote peace through our efforts to assuage the suffering of those who hunger or thirst, those who are needy and homeless, those who are lonely and imprisoned, and those who are mourning the loss of loved ones.

May God’s grace – and rain, as a sign of God’s care – shower down on us as we join nature in proclaiming new life during this Easter Season through our rejoicing in the Resurrection. May the Earth and its new growth continue to remind us of our generous God who sent his own Son to bring us new life and hope. Let us remain in sync with the liturgical observance of the remainder of the Easter Season and the celebration of Christ’s Ascension and his sending of the Holy Spirit to accompany and guide his Church!
Catechesis and the Proclamation of the Word

The XXII Annual Conference for Catechesis and Ministry will be held at Holy Family Parish in Victoria on Saturday, September 26, 2009. The Rev. Stanley DeBoe, pastor of Our Lady of Sorrows Parish and a member of the Order of the Most Holy Trinity, will deliver the keynote address, “Do you know what 1. your Lord, have done for you?” – Proclaiming the Word in Acts of Justice.

Prior to being named pastor of Our Lady of Sorrows, Father Stan had over 20 years of social justice ministry that focused on international human rights and social justice in the U.S. and around the world. He was special advisor for foreign affairs and human rights for Rep. Christopher H. Smith (NJ) and was instrumental in assisting Rep. Smith draft legislation on many human rights issues, particularly issues dealing with human trafficking, immigration and refugees, and limiting the use of U.S. funding for population control in China and at the United Nations.

Father Stan was the Justice and Peace Director of the Conference of Major Superiors of Men’s Religious Institutes (CMSM), where he directed their public policy and advocacy work on a number of social justice issues. CMSM represents the 23,000 priests and brothers in religious orders in the U.S. who are involved in many ministries responding to the needs of the marginalized in society.

In addition to the many catechetical and liturgical workshops, there will also be various learning sessions that will focus on Catholic Social Teaching and other general topics. Catholic publishers and religious article vendors will have exhibits during the day-long conference for attendees to visit and shop. The Most Reverend David E. Fellhauer, the bishop of Victoria, will celebrate the closing Liturgy.

Texas Veterans Leadership Program

The Texas Workforce Commission (TWC) has launched a major initiative designed to assist veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan. With the support of Gov. Perry, the Texas Veterans Leadership Program (TVLP) will lead the nation in working closely with workforce center directors in each Local Workforce Development Board area while working closely with workforce center staff and the local staff of the Texas Veterans Commission.

Returning veterans, employers interested in hiring veterans, and organizations seeking to join our effort to assist returning service men and women should find their local Veterans Resource and Referral Specialist (VRRS) to provide veterans of Iraq and Afghanistan with employment and training services. They are stationed in workforce centers in each Local Workforce Development Board area.

Victoria College Catholic Student Association News

While the sun and the beach lured many students away on Spring Break, a group of students with the Victoria College Catholic Student Association went to Texas A&M for a different kind of break.

“Theology of the Body” speaker and faculty member, Christopher West, presented a break from cultural norms with his talk, “God, Sex and the Meaning of Life,” at St. Mary’s Catholic Center in College Station, Texas, March 18.

“West presented an excellent explanation of Pope John Paul II’s ‘The Theology of the Body,’ VCCSA attendee Kathryn Wilson said.

“Christopher West helped to further the understanding of the gifts God has given his people – the gifts of the human body and sexuality. Bringing his unique speaking style, he provided a stirring explanation of the beauty of each person and our God given sexuality. ‘The talk gave insight and illumination to our yearning for God’s love and it’s manifestation throughout our lives,’” she continued.

The event was kicked-off with a concert by recording artist, “Army of Me.”

Can Jews and Muslims be saved?

Q. What does the Catholic Church teach about Jews, Muslims and others who don’t believe in Christ can be saved and go to heaven? Several friends claim only those who accept Christ and are baptized receive salvation. (Louisiana)

A. Many Christians believe as your friends do. This is not, however, Catholic teaching, which is summarized concisely in the Catechism of the Catholic Church. The catechism insists, as we would expect, on the essential place Jesus and baptism have in God’s saving plan. It adds, however, a crucial sentence: “Hence they could not be saved who, knowing that the Catholic Church was founded as necessary by God through Christ, would refuse either to enter it or to remain in it.” (No. 1109; cf. Second Vatican Council’s Dogmatic Constitution on the Church, 14.)

If you read those words carefully, you can see that the restriction of salvation would not apply to billions of people on earth now and in the past, including most, if not all, people of the Hebrew tradition.

Pope John Paul II reflects this Catholic attitude in his moving and hopeful book, “Crossing the Threshold of Hope.” God wants to save all mankind in Jesus Christ, he writes. We don’t know how God does all this, but we know Christ came into the world for all people and “has his own ways of reaching them” (pp. 80-83). In other words, God has committed himself to work through baptism and the other sacraments, but he is not bound or limited by them.

The church is silent about this mystery, says the Holy Father, and this “silence” is the only appropriate position for Christian faith. Even for Judas, the words of Jesus (Mt 26:24) do not allude for certain to eternal damnation (p. 186). We just don’t know enough about the mystery of God’s saving plan to make such a judgment. Furthermore, we pray constantly in our liturgy that all will be saved. As just one of many instances, Eucharistic Prayer 2 asks, after the consecration, that “we deaceased fathers and sisters, and ‘all the departed,’ all those who have died, will come into the light of God’s presence.” It is possible, therefore, and something we hope for and desire.

Perhaps you know of Father Hans Urs von Balthasar, one of the major Catholic theologians of the 20th century, a friend and close consultant to Pope John Paul II. He wrote much about the possibility of universal redemption, including the book, “Dare We Hope: That All Men Be Saved,” in which he maintained it is our Christian call to pray and hope that all are reconciled with God. He was named a cardinal but died before he could receive the red hat.

Father Balthasar reports that before the book’s final text came on the market, he received massive amounts of mail de-nouncing his ideas as heretical.

From my experience dealing with the subject several times through the years, I can empathize with his experience.

So the Church points to certain private revelations, such as the apparitions at Fatima, to “prove” that many people are in hell. That must be right, they claim, because the church has approved many such revelations.

When the church sanctions private revelations, it is simply saying that there is nothing heretical in them, and Catholics may believe these revelations and act on them if they wish. This does not, however, anoint the content of the revelations as Catholic teaching or doctrine.

Pope in Holy Land will promote interreligious cooperation

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Look for Pope Benedict XVI to emphasize interreligious cooperation when he visits the Holy Land, May 8-15, says Father James Massa, director of the U.S. Bishops’ Secretariat for Ecumenical and Interreligious Affairs.

Father Massa noted themes to expect from the papal visit in Media Link, a background found on the Media Relations site of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops. It can be found at http://www.usccb.org/mr/mediatalk/index.shtml. “In all that takes place in these days of pilgrimage, Pope Benedict XVI will invite the followers of all religions to ‘stand together in defending and promoting life and religious freedom everywhere,’” Father Massa said.

The pope’s trip to the Holy Land is particularly timely, Father Massa said. Starting with the writings of the Second Vatican Council, “the Church cannot forget that she received the revelation of the Old Testament by way of that people with whom God in his inexplicable mercy established the ancient covenant. Nor can she forget that she draws nourishment from that good olive tree onto which the wild olive branches of the Gentiles have been grafted (see Rom 11:17-24).

The Church believes that Christ is present in the bread and wine of the eucharistic sacrifice of the apostles, the pillars on which the Christian Church was founded. The Church did not forget that the apostles, the pillars on which the Church was founded, were Jews and Gentiles and made them one in the name of Christ as the sign of God’s infinite love freely undergone for all men. (Gal 3:7, 28; cf. Dnl 11:35-39; Rom 11:11-13)

Even though Jewish authorities and those who followed their lead pressed for the death of Christ (see Jn 19:6f), neither all Jews indiscriminately at that time, nor Jews today, can be charged with the crimes committed during his passion. It is true that the Church is the new people of God, yet the Jews should not be spoken of as rejected or accursed as if this followed from holy Scripture. Consequently, all must take care, lest in catechizing or in preaching the word of God, they teach anything which is not in accord with the truth of the Gospel message of the spirit of Christ. (No. 1109; cf. Second Vatican Council’s Dogmatic Constitution on the Church, 14.)

CATECHESIS

Nostra Aetate: Declaration on the Relationship of the Church to Non-Christian Religions

In preparation for Pope Benedict XVI’s May 8-15, 2009, visit to the Holy Lands

Second Vatican Council October 28, 1965

4. Sounding the depths of the mystery which is the Church, this sacred Council remembers the spiritual ties which link the people of the New Covenant to the stock of Abraham.

The Church of Christ acknowledges that in God’s plan the beginnings of her faith and election are to be found in the patriarchs, Moses and the prophets. She professes that all Christ’s faithful, who as men of faith are sons of Abraham (see Gal 3:7), are included in the same patriarch’s call and that the salvation of the Church is mystically prefigured in the exodus of God’s chosen people from the land of bondage. On this account the Church cannot forget that she received the revelation of the Old Testament by way of that people with whom God in his inexplicable mercy established the ancient covenant. Nor can she forget that she draws nourishment from that good olive tree onto which the wild olive branches of the Gentiles have been grafted (see Rom 11:17-24). The Church believes that Christ who is our peace has through his cross reconciled Jews and Gentiles and made them one in himself (see Eph 2:14-16).

Likewise, the Church keeps ever before her mind the words of the apostle Paul about his kinsmen: “They are Israelites, and to them belong the sonship, the glory, the covenants, the giving of the law, the worship, and the promises; to them belong the patriarchs, and of their race according to the flesh, is the Christ” (Rom 9:4-5), the son of the virgin Mary. She is mindful, moreover, that the patriarchs, Moses and the prophets were “beloved prophets” who “longed to see that righteousness, but did not receive it, that they might see it and recognize it” (Rom 11:27-28).

Since Christians and Jews have such a common spiritual heritage, this sacred Council wishes to encourage and further mutual understanding and appreciation. This can be achieved, especially, by way of biblical and theological enquiry and through friendly discussions.

Even though Jewish authorities and those who followed their lead pressed for the death of Christ (see Jn 19:6f), neither all Jews indiscriminately at that time, nor Jews today, can be charged with the crimes committed during his passion. It is true that the Church is the new people of God, yet the Jews should not be spoken of as rejected or accursed as if this followed from holy Scripture. Consequently, all must take care, lest in catechizing or in preaching the word of God, they teach anything which is not in accord with the truth of the Gospel message of the spirit of Christ. (No. 1109; cf. Second Vatican Council’s Dogmatic Constitution on the Church, 14.)

Indeed, the Church revives every form of persecution against whomsoever it may be directed. Remembering, then, her common heritage with the Jews and moved not by any political considerations, but solely by the religious motivation of Christian charity, she deplores all hatreds, persecutions, displays of anti-Semitism leveled at any time or from any source against the Jews (see D. 57).

The Church always held and continues to hold that Christ out of infinite love freely underwent suffering and death because of the sins of all men, so that all might attain salvation. It is the duty of the church, therefore, in her preaching to proclaim the cross of Christ as the sign of God’s universal love and the source of all grace.

Remember who you are! A child of God

The diocesan offices of Youth Ministry and Child and Youth Protection recently presented a three-hour session on the “Theology of the Body” that included a session on ”sexting” to Nazareth Academy students. The session was attended by all of the seventh and eighth graders of the school.

“Theology of the Body,” a document written by Pope John Paul II looks at sexuality through the lens of human dignity. It presents God’s plan for all of us and what our faith, verses what the secular world, tells us about the meaning of love.

The presentation included a talk on “sexting,” the newest trend in social networking, which is a degradation of the dignity of people.

Many of the young people were shocked at the consequences of sexting, as well as the potential dangers that seemingly innocent information on their MySpace or Facebook pages could result in.

A few facts about “Sexting:”
• “Sexting” is when people use their cell phones to send sexually explicit pictures and messages to each other.
• “Sexually suggestive pictures/video”: semi-nude or nude personal pictures/videos taken of oneself and not found on the Internet or received from a stranger (like spam), etc.
• “Sexually suggestive messages”: sexually suggestive written personal texts, e-mails, IMs, etc. and not those you might receive from a stranger (like spam), etc.
• “Messages” only refers to those written electronically (in emails, texts, IMs, etc.) – and “pictures/video” only refers to those captured electronically (on a cell phone or digital camera/camcorder), etc.

A recently released study of teen and young adults’ behavior online was conducted by the National Campaign to Prevent Teen and Unplanned Pregnancy, a Washington, D.C.-based advocacy group. The online survey, taken by 1,280 people ages 13 to 26, shows about one in every five teens has sent or posted nude or seminude photos of themselves. The following are results of this survey:

How many teens say they have sent posted nude or seminude pictures or videos of themselves?
• Teens, 13-19: 20 percent
• Teen girls: 22 percent
• Teen boys: 18 percent
• Teen girls, 13-16: 11 percent

Why are teens sending or posting sexually suggestive content?
• 51 percent of teen girls say they feel pressure from a guy.
• 18 percent of teen boys say they do it because of pressure from girls.
• 23 percent of teen girls say friends pressured them.

Are there consequences for these “sexting” actions?
• Because texting allows for the transmission of images, unlike phone communications, teens under the age of 18 are especially exposed to a number of legal consequences.
• When images taken on a cell phone involve the teen, or their friends, and the images involve some form of nudity, the images can automatically be defined by law to constitute child pornography. As a result, the taking, sending, receiving, or distribution of such images can, under the letter of the law, constitute varying degrees of child pornography offenses that are punished harshly.
• The consequences of sexting are unpredictable for teens and for the parents/adults who are primarily responsible for the cell phone. Laws vary from state to state.
• But getting caught can mean being kicked off sports teams, facing expulsion from school, or going to jail.

“Sexting” doesn’t mean being a crook.

“Sexting” is when people use their cell phones to send sexually explicit pictures and messages to each other.

The National Campaign to Prevent Teen and Unplanned Pregnancy has composed a few tips for parents/adults:

5 TIPS TO HELP PARENTS TALK TO THEIR KIDS ABOUT SEX AND TECHNOLOGY

Talk to your kids about what they are doing in cyberspace.

Just as you need to talk openly and honestly with your kids about real-life sex and relationships, you also want to discuss online and cell phone activity. Make sure your kids fully understand that messages or pictures they send over the Internet or their cell phones are not truly private or anonymous. Also make sure they know that others might forward their pictures or messages to people they do not know or want to see them, and that school administrators and employers often look at online profiles to make judgments about potential students/employees. It’s essential that your kids grasp the potential short-term and long-term consequences of their actions.

Know who your kids are communicating with.

Of course it’s a given that you want to know who your children are spending time with when they leave the house. Also do your best to learn who your kids are spending time with online and on the phone. Many young people consider someone a “friend” even if they’ve only met online. What about your kids? Supervising and monitoring your kids’ whereabouts in real life and in cyberspace doesn’t make you a nag; it’s just part of your job as a parent.

Consider limitations on electronic communication.

The days of having to talk on the phone in the kitchen in front of the whole family are long gone, but you can still limit the time your kids spend online and on the phone. Consider, for example, telling your teen to leave the phone on the kitchen counter when they’re at home and to take the laptop out of their bedroom before they go to bed, so they won’t be tempted to log on or talk to friends at 2 a.m.

Be aware of what your teens are posting publicly.

Check out your teen’s MySpace, Facebook and other public online profiles from time to time. This isn’t snooping—this is information your kids are making public. If everyone else can look at it, why can’t you? Talk with them specifically about their own notions of what is public and what is private. Your views may differ but you won’t know until you ask, listen and discuss.

Set expectations.

Make sure you are clear with your teen about what you consider appropriate “electronic” behavior. Just as certain clothing is probably off-limits or certain language unacceptable in your house, make sure you let your kids know what is and is not allowed online either. And give reminders of those expectations from time to time. It doesn’t mean you don’t trust your kids, it just reinforces that you care about them enough to be paying attention.

Sacred Heart School sixth grader wins national art contest
14th Annual “Try Prayer” Contest

EASTON, Mass.–Family Rosary has announced the winners of the 2009 “Try Prayer! It Works!” contest. The 14th annual national competition—which encourages students to express their faith through art, poetry and prose—attracted nearly 4,000 final entries from across the country.

Each year, approximately 40,000 children and teens from Catholic schools, parishes and other Catholic organizations utilize their creative skills to illustrate a different faith-based theme. This year the theme was One Spirit, Many Gifts. Students from kindergarten through 12th grade creatively depicted in various art forms the gifts they have received from the Holy Spirit, how the gifts have assisted them in helping others and how they share their gifts.

The sixth-grade, 1st place prize went to Kristin Brianne Popp of Sacred Heart Catholic School in Hallettsville, Texas. She is the daughter of Brian and Lori Popp. Texas had several other winners from Pharr, Laredo, and Austin. Winners from throughout the country were from Indiana, Ohio, New York, Connecticut, Florida, New Hampshire, Louisiana, New Jersey, California, Kentucky and North Carolina.

This year’s contest honors the memory of the founder of Family Rosary, Servant of God Father Patrick Peyton, CSC. In this the year of the 100th Anniversary of Father Peyton’s birth.

“This year through our theme, One Spirit, Many Gifts, the contest challenged the children to think deeply and creatively about the gifts of the Holy Spirit and how they use those gifts in their daily lives,” said Father John Phalen, CSC, National Director. “While the gifts of the Holy Spirit were so apparent in the remarkable accomplishments of Father Peyton, they can be apparent in each of us in all we do. The children’s entries clearly demonstrated their ability to grasp the theme and express their personal experience of the Holy Spirit.”

In the United States, up to three winners are chosen per grade: first-place winners are awarded $100, while the sponsoring organization earns $200. Runners-up win a product from Holy Cross Family Ministries on the Rosary.

Family Rosary was founded in 1942 by the late “Rosary Priest,” Servant of God Father Patrick Peyton, CSC. The “Try Prayer! It Works!” contest derives its name from an experience in the life of Father Peyton. While a seminarian, he was stricken with severe tuberculosis. At one point, a frustrated physician said, “Try prayer! We have done all we can for you.” Father Peyton prayed his Rosary to the Blessed Mother and he made a miraculous recovery. This experience—coupled with his spiritually rich family life as a youth in Ireland, where his family prayed the Rosary each night—inspired Father Peyton to devote his life to Mary, Mother of God, and to the spiritual well-being of the family. His famous slogan, “The Family That Prays Together Stays Together,” still resonates today.

Chicken Soup for the Soul ~ Living Catholic Faith

With 100 babies strapped to the floor of an army cargo jet, and bombs falling to her left and right, LeAnn Thieman remembers thanking God as the jet steered them safely away from the war zone. A key participant in the 1975 “Operation Babylift,” a combined military-civilian effort to evacuate Vietnamese orphans, Thieman and her teammates helped to save more than 3,000 children. The experience brought the Thieman family more than they expected when they decided to adopt a baby boy she met during the evacuation. In 2000, she received official thanks from President Gerald Ford, who was in office during Operation Babylift. Her compassion and strong faith has fueled her passion for comforting others and led her to her newest endeavor, Chicken Soup for the Soul: Living Catholic Faith, (Chicken Soup for the Soul Publishing, LLC, December 2008, 978-1-935096-23-8, $14.95).

In 2008, she was inducted into the Speaker Hall of Fame. When she is not on the speaking circuit, Thieman enjoys volunteering with Friends of Children of Vietnam and HALO (Helping and Loving Orphans). In addition to Chicken Soup for the Soul, Thieman has written three other books about her experiences with Operation Babylift. She has been featured in Newsweek Magazine’s Voices of the Century issue, FOX News, CNN, PBS, BBC and Pax TV’s “It’s a Miracle” series.

Since 1993, books in the Chicken Soup for the Soul series have sold more than 112 million copies, with titles translated into more than 40 languages. In 2007, USA Today named Chicken Soup for the Soul one of the five most memorable and impacting books in the last quarter century. For more information visit: www.chickensoup.com.
Father John Peters, left, and Father Michael Rother, right, held their final weigh-in Saturday morning, April 11, at the Lavaca Family Health Clinic. The final tally showed Father John losing 34 pounds and Father Michael 22 pounds. “Father John got a big jump on me in the first week and I could never catch up,” Father Michael said. However, the true winner of the competition will be the Sacred Heart Youth Ministry, for the community may make per pound pledges to the youth ministry. As of May 1 they have raised $10,000 that will go to the youth ministry. Someone from Ascension of the Lord Parish in Moravia pledged $10 per pound not expecting the totals lost. All four parishes participated and they are still receiving donations. Photos by Chuck Grafe of Hallettsville Tribune-Herald

Thank God for Susan Boyle

By Father Peter J. Daly
Catholic News Service

Thank God for Susan Boyle.

Just when we need it, she gives our spirits a lift with a taste of “resurrection joy” in this Easter season.

Unless you have been on retreat with the Trappists, you probably know about Susan Boyle. She is the 47-year-old spinster from Scotland. She is unemployed “but still looking.”

She won the hearts of the world singing on Easter weekend on “Britain’s Got Talent.” In the two weeks following her performance she set a record for the most page views ever on the Internet, with more than 85 million “hits” to see her sing.

Boyle is the most improbable of celebrities. She has the solid figure of a woman whose exercise is household chores. Her hair has rarely, if ever, been a stylist. She does not own a car or have a driver’s license.

She walks everywhere in her village of Blackburn. In 10 minutes she can reach all the essentials of her world: the grocery store, the Happy Valley pub where she sings karaoke, and Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church, where she sings in the choir.

Susan lives alone with her cat, Pebbles. Until her mother died two years ago, she was the caregiver for her elderly parents. The youngest of nine children, Boyle lives in the rented row-house where she grew up. She told Scottish television that she has no boyfriend, had never been on a date and, sadly, has never even been kissed.

The children of the neighborhood admitted on television that they tease her when she walks out in the village. Maybe that is why she kept her dignity when she walked out on that stage in Glasgow before a mocking audience. The lions. They were ready to tear her apart.

The camera captured teenage girls in the audience rolling their eyes. The judges had smirks on their faces. Simon Cowell, the professional serpent on these shows, asked her why she had not achieved her dream of becoming a professional singer.

She said simply, “I’ve never been given the chance, really.” He puffed. Then she sang. What a voice!

Boyle sang “I Dreamed a Dream” from “Les Miserables,” a sad song about lost innocence and shattered optimism.

Cowell’s eyebrow went up. Amanda Holden, the third judge, said, “Everybody was against you. That was the biggest wakeup call ever.”

I watched the tape over and over again. I cried each time. The whole world is cheering for Susan Boyle now.

But we aren’t cheering just for her. We’re cheering for all the girls who have never been kissed.

For all the people who live alone with their cats.

For every child who gives up on Easter weekend. She gave us a little taste of resurrection joy when the impossible happens, when hope is renewed and dreams are realized.

When the Brits are surprised, they say they are “gobsmacked.” I think the whole world was really “God-smacked.”

Thanks, Susan.

St. Philip the Apostle 3rd grade class in El Campo painted rolled cardboard to represent the hand-painted baptismal candles that Norma Cox makes for her parish each year. Norma Cox displays one of her candles (inset).

St. Philip religion class taught how to paint baptismal candles

EL CAMPO—Prior to Easter, Debbie Fiala’s third-grade religious education class at St. Philip the Apostle Parish in El Campo was taught by Norma Cox (teacher’s assistant) to make baptismal candles. Ms. Cox has painted the baptismal candles that are presented to the newly baptized parishioners of St. Philip Parish for the past 18 years.

The class used empty, paper towel rolls to represent the candles. Ms. Cox printed copies of the design she uses for the candles and taped a copy to each empty, paper towel roll. The students went step-by-step painting the different colors used for the baptismal candles, Ms. Cox said. To complete the project, each student initialed the bottom of his or her candle just as Ms. Cox does to each of her candles.

Some of the children in the class who were baptized at St. Philip’s brought the candles they received at their baptisms and proudly displayed Ms. Cox’s initials, proof of her artistry.

“As you see by the picture,” Ms. Cox said, “they all had a wonderful time pretending to paint these baptismal candles.”

Benedictine Monks Lead Retreat

The 12th annual interdenominational Dallas Benedictine Experience Retreat will take place at The Catholic Conference Center in Dallas from Wednesday, June 24, to Sunday, June 28, 2009. This retreat is presented by The Friends of St. Benedict, Washington, D.C. Participants will live at the conference center for five days, forming a temporary monastic community to experience the balanced way of life of the Rule of St. Benedict as it divides each day into private and group prayer, study, work, and leisure. Four Benedictine Offices (Lauds, Sext, Vespers, and Compline) will be sung each day in Gregorian chant. There will also be two classes each day on Benedictine spirituality.

The retreat will be led by two nation-ally-known religious figures. The Very Rev. Robert H. Hooke, OSB, is a Roman Catholic Camaldolese Benedictine monk. He was superior for twelve years of New Camaldoli Monastery in Big Sur, California, where he became a monk in 1959. He has a Ph.D. in theology from Fordham University in New York. He taught theology at Sant’Anselmo University in Rome, and at The Jesuit School of Theology of The Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, California. He is the author of “Canterbury and Rome: Sister Churches;” “Christ and the Universe” (a book on Teilhard de Chardin); and “Love on the Mountain: The Chronicle Journal of a Camaldolese Monk.” This will be Father Robert’s sixth time as a leader of the Dallas retreat. Brother Abraham Newsom, OSB, a Texas native, is a monk at St. Gregory’s Abbey (Epicopalian) in Three Rivers, Michigan. He was the co-editor of “Singing God’s Praises: The First Sixty Years,” a history of St. Gregory’s Abbey and has had articles published in various media, including “Veil and Cowl: Writings from the World of Monks and Nuns” and “St. Gregory’s own Abbey Letter.” He has led various Benedictine quiet days, retreats, and classes in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, the Midwest and New England, and is returning for the fourth time as a leader of the Dallas Benedictine Experience.

Both Father Robert and Brother Abra- ham will give presentations on Benedictine values and their applications to life today. They will also offer spiritual direction for those who wish it. This retreat is open to anyone interested in learning Benedictine spirituality.

HOME TONIGHT – a new book created from Henri Nouwen’s lectures

Henri J. M. Nouwen, one of the most celebrated spiritual writers of the twentieth century, touched the lives of millions with his intimate and deeply empathetic writings. With an international and universal appeal, the beloved Catholic priest influenced those from a variety of religious, spiritual and cultural backgrounds.

In The Return of the Prodigal Son, Henri meditated on the parable of the prodigal son’s return — a powerful drama of fatherhood, filial duty, rivalry and anger between brothers — and its enduring lessons for Christianity via the powerful painting by Rembrandt on the same subject. Over one million copies have been sold after Nouwen’s death in 1996, the book gathered more and more fans, and today is considered one of the religious classics of the twentieth century.

What was unknown to the public at the time of publication was that his writing of the book was preceded by an enormous personal breakdown that took him away, for a period of seven months, from the L’Arche Daybreak, a community that welcomes men and women with intellectual disabilities. He lived that time mostly in solitude and with the support of two friends in Manitoba. During his time away, he was having important reflective “encounters” with the people in Rembrandt’s painting of the Prodigal Son. His thoughts were raw and deeply private. While the book developed out of these early reflections, the text seemed less personal to friends and others who attended workshops he gave on the subject. The material of those extremely personal talks has now been formed into a unique work. HOME TONIGHT: Further Reflections on the Parable of the Prodigal Son (Douledey; March 2009; $15.95/160 pages) brings to light Nouwen’s previously unpublished lectures on the Prodigal Son in a powerful guide for spiritual reflection. Providing exercises, suggestions for times of solitude, questions for pondering, simple prayers and pages for personal journaling. HOME TO-NIGHT leads readers to commune with God through spiritual listening. A practical guide for the journey home, this important book will give those who adore Nouwen’s works the chance to hear his voice anew on his most popular topic.

To purchase or to learn more about Henri Nouwen, please visit www.henrinouwen.org.

Correction: The author of “Our Dark- est Day,” the Good Friday poem in the April issue of The Catholic Lighthouse, was Derek Becher. His last name was misspelled in the byline with his poem. Our apologies to Mr. Becher and to those who wish it.

ROMANS 1:18-23 (NAB)
18) The wrath of God is indeed being revealed from heaven against every impiety and wickedness of those who suppress the truth by their wickedness. 19) For what can be known about God is evident to them, because God made it evident to them. 20) Ever since the creation of the world, his invisible attributes of eternal power and divinity have been able to be understood and perceived in what he has made. As a result, they have no excuse; 21) for although they knew God they did not ac-cord him glory as God or give him thanks. Instead, they became vain in their reasoning, and their senseless minds were darkened. 22) While claiming to be wise, they became fools 23) and exchanged the glory of the immortal God for the likeness of an image of mortal man or of birds or of four-legged animals or of snakes.

1) Therefore, you are without excuse, every one of you who passes judgment. For by the standard by which you judge another you condemn yourself, since you, the judge, do the very same things. 2) We know that the judgment of God on those who do such things is true. 3) Do you suppose, then, you who judge those who engage in such things and yet do them yourself, that you will escape the judgment of God? 4) Or do you hold your priceless kindness, forbearance, and patience in low esteem, unaware that the kindness of God would lead you to repentance? 5) By your stubbornness and impeni-tent heart, you are storing up wrath for yourself for the day of wrath and revelation of the just judgment of God; 6) who will repay everyone according to his works: 7) eternal life to those who seek glory, honor, and immortality through perseverance in good works, 8) but wrath and fury to those who selfishly disobey the truth and obey wickedness. 9) Yes, affliction and distress will come upon every human being who does evil, Jew first and then Greek. 10) But there will be glory, honor, and peace for everyone who does good, Jew first and then Greek. 11) There is no partiality with God.

Sobre cómo en tiempos difíciles valoramos más el trabajo

Por mi ventana delantera cada día veo uno de mis vecinos, miembro de mi parroquia, caminando con su pequeño perro. Es un cuadro triste porque indica que todavía no ha encontrado trabajo. Demasiado joven para jubilarse, él tenía un puesto prestigioso en una compañía de importación. Viajaba varias veces al año a Hong Kong en asuntos de negocio. Sin embargo, el año pasado su puesto se eliminó.

En cuanto aumentan los desempleados a millones en Estados Unidos y centenares de millones por el mundo, las palabras de Dios a Adán parecen no parecen tan severas: “Con el sudor de tu frente comerás el pan hasta que vuelvas a la tierra, de la que fuiste formado, porque eres polvo y al polvo volverás” (Génesis 3:19). La crisis económica nos conduce a ver el trabajo como bendición. Es asombroso que, no importe que tanto aburra nuestra rutina laboral, el trabajo define la vida. Yo me jubilé de mi empleo principal hace casi 10 años, pero todavía mi corazón palpa más rápido cada domingo por la noche al pensar que puedo hacer venga el lunes.

Para casi todo el mundo, trabajo sin significativo nutre la dignidad y autoestima además de proveer el pan diario. Nos mantiene vivos. Jubilación nos desafía a evitar la pereza y mantenernos útiles, aprendiendo algo nuevo cada día. Mi primo José Aragón, quien trabajó muchos años en la línea de asamblea de General Motors y dirigiendo su propio negocio, dice: “Yo tengo que trabajar cada día”.

Centenares mueren cada año de sed, calor y frío en la frontera mejicana. Mejores leyes y pólizas pueden cambiar eso. Y mientras rezamos por los desempleados, hay que dar gracias a Dios por todos los que aman su trabajo. Durante su día especial, pensará de nuevo de mi Mamá, quien después de criar 10 hijos creó también a dos nietos. Siempre cantaba mientras desempacaba sus quehaceres.
Texas Czech Heritage and Cultural Center projects coming along

LA GRANGE — In historic Fayette County, the “Cradle of Czech Immigration to Texas,” is the site of the Texas Czech Heritage and Cultural Center, the Flagship of Czech heritage, preservation and promotion. This multifaceted facility is serving to preserve and promote the history, language, culture and heritage of Texans of Czech ethnicity that trace their ancestry to the Czechs who emigrated from the present-day Czech Republic or former Austria-Hungary (including Bohemia, Moravia, Slovakia and Silesia), to honor those immigrants, and to operate exclusively for charitable, scientific, literary and educational purposes.

The Texas Czech Heritage and Cultural Center (TCHCC) organized as a statewide Czech Center to promote and preserve the history and heritage of the early Texas Czech immigrants. Although situated in Fayette County, it is supported by donation and annual sustaining memberships from Czechs across Texas, the United States, Canada and the Czech Republic. Development of the center started when the Kalich House, restored by volunteers, became the Visitors’ Center with a small library, display area, gift shop, and an office. The site now includes the Sanford Schmid Amphitheater and Concession area with a capacity to seat 400 and a large stage to accommodate a variety of entertainment groups. An authentic Wallachian Bell & Belfry from the Roznov area of the Czech Republic enhance the grounds with a reminder of the Czech lands. A living history.

U.S. cardinals meet in Houston to benefit The Catholic University of America — award given to women’s ministry

HOUSTON (CNS) — A standing-room-only crowd greeted eight U.S. cardinals for the Mass April 24 at Houston’s Co-Cathedral of the Sacred Heart prior to the annual dinner benefiting The Catholic University of America. Proceeds from the dinner fund scholarships for students attending the school in Washington. In addition to Cardinal Daniel N. DiNardo of Galveston-Houston, the Mass and dinner were attended by Cardinals Francis E. George of Chicago; Roger M. Mahony of Los Angeles; Sean P. O’Malley of Boston; Justin Rigali of Philadelphia; William H. Keeler, retired archbishop of Baltimore; Adam J. Maida, retired archbishop of Detroit; and Edward M. Egan, retired archbishop of New York. During the gala, Angela House in Houston, a transitional housing facility for women after incarceration, was honored with the $10,000 American Cardinals Encouragement Award, which recognizes “faith-based initiatives that reflect Christian values.” “When our women come to Angela House, most are alone or have minimal family support,” Dominican Sister Maureen O’Connell, director of Angela House, said. “And for the most part are feeling worthless and ashamed of what they have done. To experience the support and encouragement of such a university and the Archdiocese of Galveston-Houston encourages them to believe that they can change regardless of poor past choices.”

The day will begin at 10 a.m. with the immigrant recognition ceremony followed at 11 a.m. by a Polka Mass celebrated by Rev. Joseph Hybner. A chicken dinner with all the trimmings will be sold at noon. There will be tours throughout the afternoon of the various Czech Village houses as well as a tour of the soon-to-be-completed library museum archives building. The day will conclude with a Polka Dance in the old dance hall (Fair Pavilion) from 2-6 p.m. Music will be provided by the Texas Sound Checks. Special visitors this year will be three senators from Prague, Czech Republic. There is no admission fee, everyone is welcome. The Center is located on land adjacent to the Fayette County Fairgrounds in La Grange, Texas on highway 77 north. More information can be obtained by viewing their Web site: www.czechtexastexas.org.

Million Rosary Campaign for Obama

The announcement that President Barack Obama is to be the commencement speaker at the University Of Notre Dame and the recipient of an honorary degree has created an outcry from Catholics who support the teachings of the Catholic Church. President Obama has lifted the ban on US foreign aid for abortions, worked to overturn conscience protections for health care workers, forcing them to cooperate in abortion or not losing their jobs, appointed a pro-abortion and late term abortion advocate to be Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services and dedicating federal funds to the harvest of embryonic stem cells for research.

Students at Notre Dame have responded by using the strongest weapon to fight public scandal – the power of prayer. They are asking us to join them in the “Million Rosary Campaign” for the conversion of Barack Obama to a position of respect for human life from conception to natural death. The students will pray the rosary at 9:00 each evening in the Grotto of Our Lady on the campus from the Wednesday of Holy Week until the day of commencement, May 17, 2009. You are encouraged to visit the student website at www.ndresponse.com to report how many rosaries you have said for this intention. The students ask that we call to mind the words of the Blessed Mother at Fatima: “In the end, my Immaculate Heart will triumph.”

Glendon declines to accept Notre Dame’s prestigious Laetare Medal

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Citing concerns about plans to honor President Barack Obama “in disregard of the settled position of the U.S. bishops,” former U.S. Ambassador to the Vatican Mary Ann Glendon has turned down the prestigious Laetare Medal from the University of Notre Dame. In an April 27 letter to Holy Cross Father John I. Jenkins, Notre Dame’s president, Glendon said she will not participate in May 17 commencement exercises during which the award is presented. The letter was posted on the blog of the magazine First Things.

Glendon described Obama as “a prominent and uncompromising opponent of the church’s position on issues involving fundamental principles of justice” and said the decision to present him with an honorary degree violated the bishops’ 2004 request that Catholic institutions not honor “those who act in defiance of our fundamental moral principles.” The Laetare Medal is presented annually to an American Catholic for outstanding service to the Catholic Church and society. A spokeswoman for the Indiana university confirmed April 27 that Glendon, who served as ambassador from 2007 until earlier this year, was the first person to accept and then later decline the award.

Religious freedom commission recommends US monitor Venezuela, Cuba

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A U.S. government commission has recommended that President Barack Obama’s administration place Venezuela and Cuba among the countries that should be monitored closely for their violations of religious freedom. In its annual report, released May 1 in Washington, the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom also recommended that 13 countries — including Iraq, Iran, Saudi Arabia, China and Pakistan — be designated as “countries of particular concern.” This designation is reserved for countries with the most egregious violations of religious freedom and for governments that tolerate such abuses. The commission, an independent body, makes its recommendations to the president, secretary of state and Congress. During the press conference to release the report, Talul Elad, an imam from Boston and a member of the commission, said Venezuela has steadily increased its tolerance of abuses against Catholics, Jews and U.S.-based Protestant groups in the country. Although there are no official restrictions against religious freedom, he said, the Venezuelan government’s “strong rhetoric” and impunity have created a “hostile environment” for Catholic and Jewish citizens.

Hope for lasting peace grows with US proposal to reduce nuclear arms

WASHINGTON (CNS) — President Barack Obama’s recent move to open a new round of nuclear arms reduction talks this year represents the best opening since the presidency of Ronald Reagan to make meaningful cuts in the world’s nuclear weapons stockpiles, according to faith-based disarmament advocates. Speaking in Prague, Czech Republic, April 5, Obama called for a new Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty with Russia to replace the 1990s-era START, which expires Dec. 5. A new treaty, the president said, would be a step toward the eventual elimination of nuclear weapons. The president said he and Russian President Dmitry Medvedev broached the subject during the economic summit in London in early April. Obama told his Prague audience that he and his Russian counterpart agreed to seek a treaty by the end of the year that is “legally binding and sufficiently bold.” Bold indeed, and a positive step, said Ronald E. Powsk, a retired adjunct professor of history at Cleveland State University who has written on arms control topics for three decades. “It means he’s serious about his goal about eliminating nuclear weapons,” Powski told Catholic News Service. Obama’s offer is being embraced by long-standing nuclear disarmament proponents, such as Pax Christi International and its affiliate, Pax Christi USA, and the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Obama says FOCA is not his ‘highest legislative priority’

WASHINGTON (CNS) — President Barack Obama in his April 29 press conference said the Freedom of Choice Act was not his “highest legislative priority” and that he is instead focusing on reducing unwanted pregnancies. “I believe that women should have the right to choose,” he said, “but I think that the most important thing we can do to tamp down some of the anger surrounding this issue is to focus on those areas that we can agree on.” Some organizations that support legal abortion as well as some pro-life groups, including the Catholic Health Association and Democrats for Life, have said the Freedom of Choice Act, known by its initials as FOCA, was unlikely to move in Congress. Obama said at the press conference that he wants “to reduce the number of unwanted pregnancies that result in women feeling compelled to get an abortion or at least (are) considering getting an abortion, particularly if we can reduce the number of teen pregnancies, which has started to spike up again.” Chicago Cardinal Francis E. George, president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, said in a May 1 statement that he welcomed the president’s words that “the Freedom of Choice Act is not his highest legislative priority.” The cardinal stressed that many people have been “working tirelessly to express their concerns about FOCA and FOCA-related legislation” and that “many people of different religious faiths or none will continue to work respectfully and consistently not only to reduce abortions, but to eliminate them.”

NUNS ADDRESS CLERGY OUTSIDE IMMIGRANT DETENTION CENTER IN ILLINOIS—Mercy Sisters Pat Murphy and Jo Ann Persch address clergy and their supporters in front of the Broadview Immigrant Detention Center in Broadview, Ill., April 30. After two and a half years of weekly prayer vigils outside the facility, Immigration and Customs Enforcement has agreed to allow the clergy to pray with immigrant detainees on the deportation buses on Friday mornings during a month-long trial period. Pope’s pilgrimage will take message of peace to land of conflict

The first thing that can happen is the loss of hope for peace. So for him to speak openly of the possibility and the necessity of peace and reconciliation should thrust those values into the fore,” Father Jaeger said.

“It’s not a political negotiation of course; he’s not going to produce a peace treaty or try to. But the fact that he keeps the value of peace in front of the people of the region, that will be a tremendous contribution by the church,” he said.

The first leg of the pope’s trip will take him to Jordan for a series of carefully chosen liturgies and encounters, including a visit to a mosque in Amman. That event, and the fact that Pope Benedict is spending several days in Jordan, reflects his aim to reach a wide Muslim audience. In 2006, Pope Benedict prayed in a mosque in Turkey, a gesture that spoke volumes to the Islamic world. In Amman, the pope will deliver a speech outside the mosque to Muslim leaders, diplomats and rectorers of the University of Jordan.

For Jordan’s Catholic faithful, who number about 75,000 in a population of 6.2 million, the big event will be the papal Mass in an Amman soccer stadium May 10.

Two smaller papal events in Jordan should not go unnoticed. His first appointment in Amman is at the Regina Pacis center, a special needs facility that has inspired Christian-Muslim dialogue and collaboration. Here the pope is likely to emphasize the importance of the “dialogue of life” and social cooperation among followers of the Abrahamic faiths.

The pope also will lay the cornerstone for a platform being built to host the Aida event in Manger Square.

That afternoon, the pope will visit the Aida Refugee Camp, where some 5,000 Palestinians live. The visit is already politically charged. Latin Patriarch Fouad Twal of Jerusalem said recently that the pope’s visit to Aida will be “critical to their health.” The wheat on board the hijacked vessel is a six month supply for the programs. CRS had hoped that the ship would be able to make its way to its destination of Mombasa, Kenya, as any interruption of the food supply for these vulnerable Rwandans would be critical to their health.

As a follow up, Cynthia Brewer, editor of The Catholic Lighthouse, contacted Michael Hill, CRS communications officer for Sub-Saharan Africa, asking about the conditions of the shipment since the Maersk Alabama had been freed.

Baltimore, MD-Life-saving food aid destined for Catholic Relief Services (CRS) programs in Rwanda was among the cargo of the Maersk Alabama, the ship hijacked by pirates off the coast of Somalia.

Forty-nine containers aboard the ship held 860 metric tons of bulgur wheat that are to be used by CRS relief workers for some of the poorest populations in Rwanda.

The wheat will feed 8,000 of that country’s neediest people through two programs. One targets 5,600 of those considered most vulnerable – people living with AIDS, orphans and those identified as significantly malnourished – living in the southern district of Rwanda, one of its poorest areas.

The other program feeds 2,400 people throughout the country who receive food at safety-net centers, such as orphanages, old-age homes and homes for the handicapped.

They Call Themselves “Catholics”

Lane Bunkers, CRS’ country representative for Ethiopia, shares a story about an older woman who now has access to clean, healthy water.

CRS donated several drilling rigs to the Ethiopian Catholic Church to tap deep groundwater. Our partner, the Hararge Catholic Secretariat, used one of the rigs to drill a borehole in Dire Dawa, an arid eastern district in Ethiopia. The borehole now provides 2,400 households with access to clean water. Recently, the Secretary General of the Ethiopian Catholic Secretariat Abba Hagos Hayish toured some of the communities benefiting from this work.

“What do you think of this water project?” asked Abba Hagos inquired. The woman put down her water jug and looked at him with a slightly puzzled expression.

“They call themselves Catholics,” she said, emphasizing the strange word at the end of her sentence. “I’m not sure exactly what that means, but we give thanks to God for their work.”

About 80 percent of Ethiopia’s nearly 80 million people live in rural areas. Of these, fewer than 15 percent have access to safe water. From one of the system’s taps, “It’s wonderful!” she exclaimed. “Look how clean this water is. Our life has changed.”

“You know who is responsible for this project?” Abba Hagos inquired. “Abba Hagos!” she exclaimed.

Atomic bomb -vs- abortion

Sixty-four years ago the atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima. Approximately 90,000 people died that day, and the world still remembers. In the U.S., over 40,000,000 (40 million) babies have been aborted since 1973. That’s more than the number of lives lost in Hiroshima. Approximately 90,000 people died that day, and the world still remembers.

I gave Mr. Mohammed this information and suggested that it would do him good to learn more about how concerned the Catholic Church is about the poor throughout the world. I advised him to go to the CRS Web sites at http://www.crs.org/ and http://www.crs.org/worldaids-day/ for more information. The video is on the second site. I asked him to please view the video and then send corrections to all those to whom he had sent his press release.

I also informed him that he might want to speak with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention director of the National Center for HIV/AIDS, Viral Hepatitis, STD and TB Prevention, Kevin A. Fenton, MD, an African-Jamaican American, as he provided much information for the CRS video. You can learn about his credentials at: http://www.cdc.gov/about/leadership/leaders/fenton.htm

I forgot to mention what I had printed in the April issue of The Catholic Lighthouse, that the head of a Harvard University research center, Dr. Edward C. Green, director of the AIDS Prevention Research Project at the Harvard Center for Population and Development Studies, had said in response to the pope’s comments that condom use does not help to prevent the spread of AIDS. His statement was, “This is hard for a liberal like me to admit, but yes, [the criticism is] unfair because in fact, the best evidence we have supports [the pope’s] comments.”

I closed my note to him saying that because his last name was Mohammed, I thought he might be Muslim and that his comments might be in support of the pope’s statements since the Islam faith is in agreement with Catholic teaching against sex outside of marriage, and I challenged him that I bet most of the Muslim clerics in Africa would agree with the pope’s statements about chastity. I closed, saying that I was disappointed to see that his comments did not reflect the teachings of either the Christian or Muslim faiths.

Readers, you may wish to send a courteous, personal note to Mr. Martin Mohammed, president of USACC, 10 G Street NE, 7th Floor; Washington, DC 20002; or at (202) 465-0778; or by e-mail at info@usafricanchamber.com. Contact USACC, explaining the truth about the physical, as well as the spiritual, saving power of the efforts of the Catholic Church.

In the U.S., over 40,000,000 (40 million) babies have been aborted since 1973. That’s the equivalent of a Hiroshima bombing every 22 days! And we remain silent! That all may follow God’s command to listen to Christ and follow his example of respect for all human life, we pray.
WASHINGTON, DC — “If there’s a main theme I’m hearing from the tens of thousands of participants around the country at the completion of this spring’s 40 Days for Life campaign, it’s ‘We don’t want to stop!’” said Shawn Carney, 40 Days for Life’s spring campaign director. “People have witnessed first-hand that a prayerful presence outside abortion facilities saves lives and they know they will see additional results by continuing their vigils.”

From February 25 to April 5, 135 cities in the United States, Canada, Australia and Northern Ireland joined together for the 40 Days for Life campaign, an effort that features 40 days of prayer and fasting for an end to abortion, constant vigil outside abortion centers and extensive community outreach.

“It was an amazing 40 days,” said Carney. “Courageous people stood and prayed in rain, cold weather and snowstorms. Abortion workers tried to smear this effort with accusations that 40 Days for Life volunteers’ prayers ‘intimidated’ their clients. But none of this could dissuade peaceful, determined people who knew their efforts touch hearts and impact communities.”

During this campaign, 40 Days for Life received reports of 389 babies whose lives were saved from abortion. “There are undoubtedly others who we don’t know about,” said Carney, “as well we’re aware that many appointments were cancelled when several clinics closed unexpectedly on days when abortions are normally scheduled.” Clinics in such cities as Austin, Texas, and Kalispell, Montana, cut back hours or closed for entire days during the campaign. In other cities, the number of women seeking abortions declined sharply.

In addition, a combined effort with the Silent No More Awareness Campaign resulted in countless men and women with abortion experiences coming forward to pray at abortion centers and warn women about the physical, emotional and spiritual damage they risk by going through with an abortion.

This was the fourth coordinated, simultaneous 40 Days for Life campaign in the last 20 months. Carney said that in these four campaigns:

- 466 local efforts have taken place in 240 separate cities in all 50 states plus seven other nations.
- More than 200,000 people have participated.
- More than 4,000 churches have been involved.
- At least 1,517 babies were spared from abortion.
- At least 17 clinic employees quit their jobs.
- Three abortion facilities closed their doors following 40 Days for Life.

The next 40 Days for Life campaign is set for this fall from September 23 – November 1. Additional information is available online at www.40DaysForLife.com.

house, and Rubi Reyes of The Victoria
Advocate

Nazareth Academy of Victoria was one of 12 schools in the nation to be awarded the “2009 Catholic School for Tomorrow Award” by Today’s Catholic Teacher, a monthly teacher’s magazine.

Nazareth Academy was the only Catholic school in Texas to earn the honor for 2009.

The winning schools were honored during an awards’ presentation banquet at this spring’s National Catholic Education Association Convention in Anaheim, Cali., and were featured in a special section in the March issue of Today’s Catholic Teacher.

Scott Kloesel, principal of Nazareth Academy, received the award during the banquet at the convention. In attendance with him were Dana Howard, NA junior-high journalism teacher, and Sherry Kainer, NA 3rd-grade teacher.

On April 23 the school commemorated its accomplishments with a school rally and the celebration of a school Mass by Bishop David E. Fellhauer, assisted by Father Stan Delhoe, pastor of Our Lady of Sorrows. Jackie Gloo, Congressman Ron Paul’s representative, presented the school with a U.S. flag; and former principal, C.R. “Duke” Alcaridi; Superintendent of Schools for Victoria Diocese John Quarry; and Sister Evelyn Korenek and the Sisters of the Incarnate Word and Blessed Sacrament congratulated the students, faculty, staff and parents.

Today’s Catholic Teacher proudly presents the “Catholic Schools for Tomorrow Award” to honor Catholic schools that have led the way by implementing exemplary innovative programs to improve the teaching and learning of their students, faculty, and staff.

Nazareth Academy received the award for innovative projects in marketing.

“The Nazareth Academy Show has benefited me because this is an opportunity I would not receive at another school,” said Neil Zamora. “The skills I have learned will help me in my career, as most jobs now have something to do with technology.”

“The Nazareth Academy Show has benefited me by making me feel more comfortable talking on camera. It has made me a more outgoing person,” said Mary Gower. “The skills I have learned will also be helpful to me in my future career path.”

Congratulations Nazareth Academy Catholic School, a 2009 national Catholic School for Tomorrow award winner.

Nazareth Academy has also been named a Best Buy Teach Award winner four consecutive years (2006, 2007, 2008, and 2009).

ROSENBERG—Catholic Daughters of the Americas from District 10, 28, 35, and 37 attended the 2009 Multi-District Lenten retreat in Joerger-Lindsey Hall, Holy Rosary, Rosenberg, April 4, 2009. Olga Samaniego, immediate past state regent and state spiritual enhancement chairman, led the retreat titled “Seeking the Face of God.” The retreat was broken down into six sessions: “Created and Loved,” “Surrendered and Joyful,” “Seeking God’s Hand in the Power of Prayer,” “Seeking God’s Face with the Power of Transforming Prayer,” “Called and Gifted” and “Sisterhood and Teamwork.” With song, reverence, humor and several 20-minute prayer and reflection sessions, Olga emphasized that a relationship with Jesus begins by saying yes to an invitation. Olga also stressed the unconditional love of our Heavenly Father and the blessings of “Surrendering to his Will.”

When we embrace his plan for our lives, our transformation leads us to live in trust and peace.

Like Moses, when talking to God, Olga became radiant with her delivery of the Word and with one-on-one prayer petitions. This transformation before our eyes is a reminder to us that a deep and intimate relationship with our Lord is very doable! Rev. Bill Bartinski, pastor of Holy Rosary, welcomed retreat attendees as the first group to use the new Joerger-Lindsey Hall. Rev. Donald Ruppert of East Bernard, state chaplain and national clergy consultant, attended a session and presented remarks about CDA, adding greetings from the national board. Hosts were CDA District Deputies 10-

Alma Slawinski of Rosenberg, 28 – Carolyn Rapsilver of Sealy, 35, and 37. Rosenberg court members served as hostesses with Alma Slawinski as retreat coordinator.

BISHOP BLESSES STATUES FOR HOSTYN
PARISH—Bishop David E. Fellhauer came to Queen of the Holy Rosary Parish in Hostyn on March 22, 2009, to bless the statues in the new narthex. Bishop Fellhauer presided at the concelebrated morning Mass with Msgr. Stanley J. Petru and Deacon John McCourt. After Mass, everyone congregated in the narthex for the blessing of the statues. The statues blessed were of Pope John Paul II, Our Lady of Guadalupe, St. Francis, Divine Mercy, and Queen of the Holy Rosary. When the bishop blessed the Adoration Chapel last November, the statues had not yet arrived. In addition to these five statues, the parish also has St. Katherine Drexel and St. Elizabeth Ann Seton. The statues, donated by the parish families, have been placed in the new Adoration Chapel and narthex.
Holy Cross student receives Webcam visit from her Navy dad

By Cynthia Brewer

Kindergartner Jolee Garcia of Mrs. Cook’s class at Holy Cross Elementary in Bay City received a surprise visit from her father who is deployed overseas in the U.S. Navy. The surprise visit happened through a Skype video call to the Holy Cross School office Tuesday, April 21, 2009.

“Jolee’s father, Chief Warrant Officer Joe Garcia, is deployed for months at a time and is always in harms way,” said Linda Torrez, the school’s computer teacher. “He just left in March and won’t return until October or November.”

Jolee was totally surprised when she was called to Mrs. Torrez’s computer classroom and saw her daddy in Mrs. Torrez’s computer via the Webcam.

“She just kept staring at the monitor and Sister (Geraldine Pavlik, IWBS, principal) kept telling her to talk,” said Mrs. Torrez. “I think she just couldn’t figure out how her daddy was in my computer.”

Jolee received four calls from her dad between April 21 and 28. They all come through Mrs. Torrez’s computer. She told him to call as often as he is able, even if it’s only for a few minutes.

“Jolee’s dad asked her how she was doing in school, was she cleaning her room, was she listening to her mom,” Mrs. Torrez said.

“She threw him a kiss and he threw one back at her.”

“He asked her about Sister Geraldine’s chicken (Chicken LaLa) who hatched some chicks here at school and she was excited to tell him all about the babies,” she said.

Jolee was able to see and talk to his little girl.

“Her daddy asked her, ‘Jolee can you see me?’ and she said ‘Yes, but how did you get in there?’”

“If readers know of any Catholic woman who has been released from jail or prison, or who seriously wants to change a life marred by addictions, please send them our way. Meetings are 1st and 3rd Mondays of each month at 5 p.m. at Our Lady of Lourdes’ rectory at 105 N. William Street, Victoria.”

Catholic women’s prison ministry awarded governor’s service award

By Cynthia Brewer

We’re just a handful of Catholic women helping a smaller handful of Catholic women who have experienced incarceration in jail or prison.

The Sisters of St. Mary Magdalene (SMM) received the “Susan Cranford” Volunteer Award for female offender programs at the 14th Annual Governor’s Day Programs and Wills & Living Trusts.

Criminal justice Volunteer Service Awards in Austin, April 3, 2009.

Cynthia Brewer of the Victoria SMM Chapter, Minnie Moraida of the Corpus Christi Chapter, and Leigh Ann Soliz on behalf of Kathy Ward of the Houston Chapter, received the governor’s volunteer award on behalf of all the SMM Program Chapter volunteers within the state of Texas.

The Sisters of St. Mary Magdalene is a ministry originally developed by Deacon Bob Leicht Jr., a chaplain with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice at the Wayne Scott Unit in Angleton, Texas, to minister to Catholic female offenders as an in-prison ministry. He also developed the very successful Brothers of St. Dismas for male offenders. Both ministries were originally approved by, now retired, Archbishop Joseph Fiorenza of the Galveston-Houston Archdiocese “for the hope it offers our Catholic incarcerated.” The director of corrections for the Galveston-Houston Archdiocese, Father Ron Cloutier, has affirmed this effort.

The SMM is a successful volunteer program, which aims at establishing a ‘sorority’ of Catholic female offenders through an in-prison crusade event called the St. Mary Magdalene Metanoia Retreat. After the crusade, volunteers follow-up with continued in-prison support through Bible study focused on life applications, re-entry goal setting, restorative justice and a 12-step Christian program, all of which are supported by the Catholic sacraments. There are approximately 700 SMM members.

Volunteers continue helping post-release women with re-entry assistance by connecting sorority sisters with local “free-world” SMM Chapters and resource entities that help with temporary housing, transportation, gift packages, mentoring and job leads.

The SMM Chapters provide support and healing within the Catholic community for women who are returning to the “free-world,” or for any woman who is recovering from addictions of any sort, for anyone suffering from an addiction is in her own personal prison.

Susan Majors, an ex-offender who came to Perpetual Help Home from the Plane State Jail, worked with Emily Yeary and myself to organize the Victoria SMM in 2005 with approval of Bishop David E. Fellhauer and the assistance of Father Celestino Say, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes.
