USCCB fall meeting to be livestreamed

Bishops expected to discuss Eucharistic revival, mental health

PRESS RELEASE

WASHINGTON -- The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) will gather for the 2023 Fall Plenary Assembly in Baltimore, Nov. 13-16. Throughout the meeting, the bishops will spend time in prayer and fraternal dialogue with one another. Public sessions of the assembly on Nov. 14 and 15 will be livestreamed.

While the meeting agenda has not been finalized, the bishops are anticipating a full schedule that includes a number of items: updates on the 2021-2024 Synod of Bishops, the U.S. bishops’ Eucharistic revival initiative and national congress, the Institute on the Catechism, and the recently-launched mental health campaign; a consultation of the bishops on the cause of beatification and canonization of Servant of God Isaac Thomas Hecker, priest and founder of the Missionary Society of Saint Paul the Apostle (the Paulist

The Eucharist shines in the image of the Baby Jesus on Bishop Brendan Cahill’s chosen Christmas cards this year.

The art for the cards are winning entries of a contest organized by the Office of Evangelism and Catechesis for the Diocese of Victoria. The inspiration for the contest is the desire to enkindle a deeper Eucharistic devotion through the National Eucharistic Revival of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops. The theme for the art contest was “O Come Let Us Adore Him,” which will be printed on the cards.

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

Each Wednesday afternoon when he is in Rome, Pope Francis gives a talk and greets pilgrims who have traveled there.

On Wednesday, Oct. 18, he expressed his concern about the situation in the Middle East and the wars in different parts of the world. He asked us to join with men and women from around the world on Friday, Oct. 27, for a day of prayer, penance and fasting for peace.

The following words are published on the website www.vatican.va, under the section General Audience of Oct. 18:

Appeal of the Holy Father

“Today, too, dear brothers and sisters, our thoughts turn to Palestine and Israel. The number of victims is rising and the situation in Gaza is desperate. Please, let everything possible be done to avoid a humanitarian disaster. The possible widening of the conflict is disturbing, while so many war fronts are already open in the world. May weapons fall silent! Let us heed the cry for peace of populations, of the people, of the children! Brothers and sisters, war does not solve any problem; it sows only death and destruction, foments hate and proliferates revenge. War cancels out the future. I urge believers to take just one side in this conflict: that of peace. But not with words — with prayer, with total dedication. With this in mind, I have decided to call for a day of fasting and prayer, of penance, on Friday 27 October, to which I invite sisters and brothers of the various Christian denominations, those belonging to other religions and all those who have at heart the cause of peace in the world, to join in as they see fit. That evening, at 6 p.m., at Saint Peter’s, we will spend an hour of prayer, in a spirit of penance, to implore peace in our time; peace in this world. I ask all the particular Churches to participate by arranging similar activities involving the people and families of God.”

I realize that I’m writing this before Oct. 27 and you will be reading this after Oct. 27. But I also believe that as we offered our prayers, penance and fasting for particular intentions during the Rosary Congress, we can continue to join our prayers together. We can also invite other people to join us in praying for peace in the world, especially peace in the Middle East, and to ask God’s protection for our military personnel, especially those serving overseas.

Reflecting on the power of our prayer a few years ago, I gave a talk on the reasons why we pray and fast.

First, the example of Jesus Himself who prayed and fasted in the desert for 40 days and nights before beginning his public ministry.

Second, the example of Moses who prayed and fasted for 40 days and nights imploring God’s mercy for the Hebrew people in the desert.

Third, we gain clearer vision when we take away things that may be distracting us from the most important thing – love of God and neighbor.

Fourth, we gain greater compassion with all those who are involuntarily hungry each day. We may choose to give up a meal, but most of the world doesn’t even have that choice.

Fifth, we can learn even more deeply that everything we possess is a gift from God.

May our hearts continue to be united in prayers of Eucharistic Adoration and the rosary, may we offer penances and receive the sacrament of penance, and may we be attentive to the voice of our Lord Jesus, speaking especially in the readings and prayers of the Mass each day.

God bless you and your families. Let’s keep each other in prayer.

+Brendan

Father Timothy Radcliffe said Monday that “the most fertile time” of the Synod on Synodality will be the months of “active waiting” leading up to the final 2024 synod assembly. Speaking at the livestreamed opening of the general congregation on Oct. 23, Radcliffe likened the months of waiting between the two synod assemblies to “a pregnancy.”

“In a few days’ time, we shall go home for 11 months. This will be apparently a time of empty waiting. But it will be probably the most fertile time of the whole synod, the time of germination,” the English Dominican said.

“Those 11 months will be like a pregnancy,” he added. “We, my brothers and sisters, are pregnant with new life.”

Radcliffe, who serves as the spiritual adviser to the synod, also warned delegates not

Christmas at Sea gift collection

As the holiday season comes again, please consider helping with the Christmas at Sea program at the port in Point Comfort. Your gifts can brighten the life and console a seafarer far away from their family. While these gifts are not fancy or expensive, they are so important to those who receive them. The gifts are a reminder to the seafarers that someone cares about them.

Pack your gifts of love inside a shoe box (no boot or children size boxes, please) or a drawstring dirty bag (about 12”w by 15”h). If the packages are roughly all the same size, hopefully the gifts will be of approximately equal value.

Then wrap boxes securely as one unit in Christmas paper. As there are very few women onboard the ships, we would request that the gifts be packed for male seafarers.

Completed packages can be dropped off between Nov. 1 and Dec. 15 at these locations:

- Diocese of Victoria Chancery, 1505 E. Mesquite Lane, Victoria
- Holy Family Church, 704 Mallette Dr., Victoria
- Our Lady of the Gulf Church, 415 W. Austin St., Port Lavaca
- Russell Cain Real Estate, 2025 TX – 35, Port Lavaca
- Mikes on Main Café, 458 Main St., Palacios

Father Charles Kram Corner

EDITOR’S NOTE: Father Kram wrote this sermon for the 30th Sunday in Ordinary Time, Cycle B. He titled it “To See or Not to See.”

What is worse, to be physically helpless like many in the nursing home or to be deaf or to be blind? I have heard people say, “I sure hope I never get to the point where I have to depend on others and can’t do anything for myself.”

Advocates of abortion and euthanasia say, “Let’s do away with the unwanted babies before they are born and with the elderly when their productive lives are over.”

The deaf are in a special predicament. They live in a world of silence. They cannot hear the voices of others or the sound of music or talking book records.

The blind have to feel their way around or be led by others or by dogs.

In the face of all these things, some would say, “That’s why I can’t believe in God.” Some evangelists say, “Write to us, and we will pray for your healing.”

Politicians say, “Elect us, and the government will provide.”

But the fact remains that God is still in charge of the universe and nothing escapes his kindly providence. Although miracles are few and far between, and the promises of politicians are often valid only until the election, God is still able to make all things work together for the good of those who love Him and for His final glory.

So, what if our bodily ailments make life more complicated with every passing year? What if our diminishing usefulness makes others resent and avoid us? What if God’s purpose for us becomes more and more difficult to understand?

We could idle our time away, waiting for something to happen, but the Christian tries to change for the better those things that he can; he patiently endures those things that he cannot; he trusts in God’s kindly purpose through it all.

A hundred years from now, none of us will be alive and God will have shown us why the things we now have to endure had to be the way they were, and we will rejoice.

One more thing we Christians can -- and should -- do often is to express our gratitude to God for all that He has given us. In fact, one of the best ways of ensuring God’s favor in the future is to say often, “Thanks, Lord, for all your past favors.”

We must keep trying. We must keep looking ahead. We must be trustful and thankful.

Lord Jesus, thank you for taking care of us in so many ways, sometimes even by miracles. Help us always, in good times and in bad, in sickness and in health, always to trust in you. Grant that our faithfulness in our own struggles and in our efforts to help others in theirs, may lead to much happiness in this life and in the life to come. Amen.

to speak negatively when they return home from Rome, quoting St. Paul’s letter to the Ephesians: “Let no corrupting talk come out of your mouths” (Eph 4:29).

Little has been made public regarding what will take place between the two synod assemblies. Synod spokesman Paolo Ruffini has confirmed that the synodables attending this month’s assembly will be returning to Rome next year for the October 2024 synod assembly. Synod organizers have also said that a new Instrumentum Laboris, or working document, for the 2024 assembly will be written based, in part, on the synthesis document produced at the end of the 2023 gathering.

Radcliffe described the gap between the synod assemblies as “a time of active waiting,” noting that it will be “hard for many people to understand what we are doing.”

“When we go home, people will ask, ‘Did you fight for our side? Did you oppose those unenlightened other people?’ We shall need to be profoundly prayerful to resist the temptation to succumb to a party-political way of thinking,” he said. “That would be to fall back into the sterile, barren language of much of our conflictual society. It’s not the synodal way. The synodal process is organic and ecological rather than competitive. It’s more like planting a tree than winning a battle.”

Radcliffe encouraged the delegates to reflect on how their words can “nurture the tender plant that is the synod” after leaving the 2023 assembly. “Will we speak fertile, hope-filled words, or words that are destructive and cynical? Will our words nurture the crop or be poisonous? Will we be gardeners of the future or trapped in old sterile conflicts? We each choose,” he told the delegates.

Radcliffe is one of two “spiritual assistants” who helped to lead the meditations for the retreat and the prayers throughout the synod assembly this month, along with 79-year-old Mother Maria Grazia Angelini.

Angelini told the synod delegates in her spiritual reflection at the start of the final week of the assembly that the synod meeting has been a “month of sowing,” like Jesus’ parable of the sower.

“Today -- in a culture of striving for supremacy, profit, and ‘followers,’ or escapism -- the patient sowing of this synod is, in itself, like a deeply subversive ... and revolutionary act,” the Italian sister said. “Thus, the synod seems to me to find itself called to dare a synthesis-as-sowing, to open a path toward a new form, the reform that life itself demands,” she said.

Pope Francis: To evangelize, ‘faith must be inculturated’

BY MATTHEW SANTUCCI
Catholic News Agency

Pope Francis in his ongoing catechetical series on apostolic zeal on Wednesday spoke about the example of Sts. Cyril and Methodius, the ninth-century “apostles of the Slavs” whose mission was built on three pillars: unity, inculturation, and liberty.

At the center of the pope’s Oct. 25 general audience was an emphasis on the relationship — and harmonization — between culture and faith. This process of inculturation is seen in the example of Sts. Cyril and Methodius, whose task was to “study the culture of those peoples in depth,” the pope said. Pope Francis recounted the story of the two brothers as one of encounter with the Slavic people, who had to confront a “pagan” culture, thereby integrating the faith into the specific, local cultural context.

Sts. Cyril and Methodius, born circa 826 and 815, respectively, hailed from modern-day Thessaloniki, Greece. Pope Francis recalled how the brothers, who came from an aristocratic family, “renounced a political career to devote themselves to monastic life.”

Departing from his prepared remarks, the pope stressed that “faith must be inculturated and culture must be evangelized. The inculturation of faith, evangelization of culture — always.”

At the center of the saints’ effort to evangelize was localizing the faith. For Cyril, this work consisted of developing a native, Slavic alphabet. “Indeed, to proclaim the Gospel and to pray, one needed a proper, suitable, specific tool. So, he invented the Glagolitic alphabet. He translated the Bible and liturgical texts. People felt that the Christian faith was no longer ‘foreign,’ but rather it became their faith, spoken in their mother tongue,” the pope said.

The Holy Father went on to remark: “Just think: two Greek monks giving an alphabet to the Slavs. It is this openness of heart that rooted the Gospel among them.”

“Some opposition emerged on the part of some Latins, who saw themselves deprived of their monopoly on preaching to the Slavs,” he said.

Taking a moment to go off script, the pope emphasized: “That struggle within the Church, always like this.”

“Their objection was religious, but only...”

Finding Beauty in Mystery
By Sister Rosario Resendez, O.V.I.S.S.

Pull over, let Jesus in, and find your destination

Every year, the first full week of November is dedicated to vocation awareness. Many times when we talk about vocations, we think only of priesthood and religious life, but married life and single life are also vocations. One must discern and pray to find out to which vocation God is calling one.

I believe God calls us all to a vocation. Being that it’s a calling, we can choose to answer it or not. God gives us that choice. At times, I wonder if it would be easier for us if He did with us like He did with Jonah. When we try to run away from the call He puts us in time out (not necessarily in the stomach of a whale) and brings us back to where we are called. I think our discernment would be so much easier, because then there would be no doubt about where God was calling us. However, now we know that there will not be a whale to swallow us, nor will the Lord come down with all His glory and tell us which vocation to take. He leaves that for us to decide.

When I think of my own vocation story, I compare it to a NASCAR race track. Jesus is standing to the side and I’m trying to drive away from Him as fast as I can, but after a couple of left turns I see Him again asking to be allowed in the car with me. No matter how fast I tried to drive away, I would always come back around to Him. When I finally picked Him up (said “yes” to religious life), the track changed to a road where the journey was unknown. Though still a little nervous, I knew I wasn’t alone. If Jesus was calling me to this, if He thought I could do this, then I told Him that he was going to have to come with me because there was no way I could do it alone.

I think many of us can say that they have heard the call of God to a certain way of life. Obviously, He didn’t call us on our cell phone, send us a text message, or create a TikTok video; it’s something we feel inside, a certain yearning. Maybe that yearning is to have your own family and, therefore, you are being called to the married life. Or maybe that yearning is something you feel when you see the priest celebrating Mass, or when you see a religious sister in prayer, or you feel content serving the Lord as a single layperson. These yearnings are the call, but many times fear and social norms make us doubt that we can live the lives to which God is calling us.

So what happens if we do not answer the call? We know that God can make the best of every situation as long as we trust Him and invite Him into our lives. Our lives will still have value, we can still be an instrument God uses to show others His love, and we can still be happy.

When I went on the pilgrimage to Mexico City with Bishop Cahill and a group of people, I remember we went to a church where St. Juan Diego’s uncle was cured. This church was built before cars were invented and before the technology we have today, so no microphones or sound system were invented. The church was beautiful, but when we were inside, it was hard to hear because of all the traffic that was happening outside. Our tour guide began to talk to us but his microphone made everything sound garbled. We tried to be good sports about it and just sat closer to him so he didn’t have to use the microphone. Then we celebrated Mass and, like I said, the church was beautiful and it was wonderful to be there.

When our reader went up to read, the microphones still made it hard to understand her, but we had the readings so it was OK. Then she sang and her voice carried beautifully throughout the church. It sounded like the skies had opened up and we were hearing the angels. It was then that I realized that this church was created with singing in mind. It was built where people didn’t need microphones, (because, of course, they weren’t invented) because they would be singing and the acoustics in the church were created for that.

Was the church still functional? Yes. Was it still beautiful? Yes. Could it still be used for what it was built for? Yes.

Just like us, we would still be functional, still beautiful and still be used for the purpose for which we were created. But if we took the time to discern our true vocation, whichever one it may be, and not settle for what we think is expected of us, just imagine how magnificently beautiful our lives would be.

Magnificently beautiful; not easy.

Therefore, we should also support one another. Pray for vocations, all of them, but especially for the priesthood and religious life in particular in the Diocese of Victoria. Study the discernment process so that you may walk with people who are discerning and understand it. Do not discourage people.

in appearance: God can be praised, they said, only in the three languages written on the cross: Hebrew, Greek, and Latin,” Francis continued. Again departing from the prepared text, the pope excoriated those who opposed their efforts by saying: “These were closed-minded to defend their autonomy.” The pope, showcasing Cyril’s tenacity and love of God, said: “But Cyril responds forcefully: God wants every person to praise him in their own language.”

The theme of unity has been at the center of Pope Francis’ pontificate and at the fore of Synod of Synodality, which closes its first session this weekend. In the Sep. 30 public consistory for the creation of cardinals, Pope Francis [reminded] the newly-created cardinals that they were “representing the harmony and synodality of the Church.”

“Mother Church, who speaks all languages, is one and is Catholic,” he said, stressing that “the faith is transmitted in dialect.” During Wednesday’s audience, the pope went on to stress that the evangelical mission of Sts. Cyril and Methodius is one rooted in unity, between “the Greeks, the pope, the Slavs.”

He continued: “At that time, there was an undivided Christianity in Europe, which collaborated in order to evangelize,” the pope said. “Evangelizing culture and inculturation shows that evangelization and culture are closely connected. You cannot preach an abstract, distilled Gospel. No, the Gospel must be inculturated and it is also an expression of culture,” the pope said. The saints hold a special place both for the Catholic Church and the Eastern Orthodox Churches. St. John Paul II, the first Slav to become pope, made the saints co-patrons of Europe, alongside St. Benedict, in 1980. They are also venerated in the Eastern Orthodox Churches as “equal-to-apostles,” a title given to those saints whose contribution to the spread of Christianity is equivalent in scope and magnitude to the apostles.

Pope Francis reaffirmed the impossibility of women becoming priests, or even modern Church deacons, in an interview for a book released Tuesday in Italy.

The question of whether some women in the early Church were “deaconesses” or another kind of collaborator with the bishops is “not irrelevant, because holy orders is reserved for men,” the pope said.

The pope’s answers to questions about women’s roles in the Church were included in a book published in June in Spanish as “El Pastor: Desafíos, razones y reflexiones sobre su pontificado.” The book, whose title means in English “The Shepherd: Struggles, Reasons, and Thoughts on His Papacy,” was released in Italian on Oct. 24.

About the possibility of women deacons, Pope Francis pointed out that the diaconate “is the first degree of holy orders in the Catholic Church, followed by the priesthood and finally the episcopate.” He said he formed commissions in 2016 and 2020 to study the question further, after a study in the 1980s by the International Theological Commission established that the role of deaconesses in the early Church “was comparable to the beneficences of abbesses.”

In response to a question about why he is “against female priesthood,” Francis told Argentine journalist Sergio Rubin and Italian journalist Francesca Ambrogetti, the authors of the book, that it is “a theological problem.”

“I think we would undermine the essence of the Church if we considered only the priestly ministry, that is, the ministerial way,” he said, pointing out that women mirror Jesus’ bride the Church.

“The fact that the woman does not access ministerial life is not a deprivation, because her place is much more important,” he said. “I think we err in our catechesis in explaining these things, and ultimately we fall back on an administrative criterion that does not work in the long run.”

“On the other hand, with respect to the charism of women, I want to say very clearly that from my personal experience, they have a great ecclesial intuition,” he said.

Asked about women’s ordination bringing “more people closer to the Church” and optional priestly celibacy helping with priest shortages, Pope Francis said he does not share these views. “Lutherans ordain women, but still few people go to church,” he said. “Their priests can marry, but despite that they can’t grow the number of ministers. The problem is cultural. We should not be naive and think that programmatic changes will bring us the solution.”

“Mere ecclesiastical reforms do not serve to solve underlying issues. Rather, paradigm...
Scouts can sign up for St. George Trek and explore their vocation

ROCIADA, N.M. – The National Catholic Committee on Scouting is offering an opportunity for high-school-age scouts in Boy Scouts of America (BSA) programs to apply for the 2024 St. George Trek, a 16-day adventure, including 11 days of backpacking in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains at Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico.

According to a press release from NCCS, teens experience the sacraments and the Church’s life of prayer as they explore the majesty of God’s creation – and their vocation. The next St. George Trek is July 3-18, 2024. All eligible teens need to do to get started is to apply online at www.nccs-ysa.org/saint-george-trek/

“Catholic Scouting encourages young people to dig deeper into their faith and form a real relationship with Jesus, truly discerning what God is calling them to do in their life. Sometimes this leads to a religious vocation,” said NCCS Chair John Anthony. “We know of 12 St. George Trek participants who have entered seminary formation over the past decade – and three have been ordained to the priesthood. We also know of several Trek participants who have begun formation with religious orders.”

Due to NCCS sponsorship and the generosity of supporters, the 16-day St. George Trek only costs $1,575. In many cases, local Catholic Scouting committees pay some or all of the Trek fee. Scouts are responsible for personal gear like hiking boots, as well as transportation from their home city to Albuquerque.

Male or female Scouts can apply. The Trek is not co-ed; there are separate hiking groups for male and female teens.

According to the press release, there is evidence that young people involved in Catholic Scouting are more likely to remain engaged in the Church and to consider a religious vocation. For example, being involved in Scouting is something many recent men ordained to the priesthood have shared. Since 2006, 30 percent of ordinands to the priesthood in the U.S. were active in BSA Scouting growing up, according to a survey conducted by the Center for Applied Research in the Apostolate at Georgetown University.

NCCS is a Church committee of concerned Catholic laity and clergy, which is advisory to the BSA and relates to the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) through its Episcopal Liaison. NCCS-sponsored Catholic Scouting is the only Scouting program sanctioned by both the USCCB and BSA.

The bishops are expected to discuss and vote on several action items including: a new introductory note and materials supporting Forming Consciences for Faithful Citizenship, the bishops’ teaching document on the political responsibility of Catholics; the approval of a framework for indigenous ministry; a number of action items pertaining to liturgical texts from the Committee on Divine Worship; and replacing the current USCCB Strategic Plan cycle with a newly-proposed Mission Planning process.

During the assembly, the bishops will vote for the new conference secretary, as well as chairmen-elect of six conference committees. The terms for the bishops elected for committee chairmen will serve for one year as chairman-elect before beginning a three-year term at the conclusion of the 2024 Fall Plenary Assembly.

Public sessions of the assembly on Nov. 14 and 15 will be livestreamed at: www.usccb.org/meetings – news updates, vote totals, texts of addresses and presentations, and other materials will be posted to this page. Those wishing to follow the meeting on social media are invited to use the hashtag #USCCB23 and follow on X (formerly known as Twitter) (@USCCB), as well as on Facebook (www.facebook.com/usccb) and Instagram (https://instagram.com/usccb).

The plenary will begin with an address by the Papal Nuncio to the U.S., Cardinal Christophe Pierre. The bishops will hear from Archbishop Timothy P. Broglio of the Archdiocese for the Military Services, USA, president of the USCCB.

Firefighter/paramedic from Shiner parish honored for Christian service

HOUSTON – Joseph Gamez of Shiner, a member of Sts. Cyril and Methodius Catholic Church and a firefighter/paramedic for the Village Fire Department in Houston, was chosen to receive a special medal for living out his Christian values in his service to the community.

The Kimberly Ann Smith Medal was presented to him Oct. 15 at the Co-Cathedral of the Sacred Heart in the Archdiocese of Houston-Galveston during the annual Firefighters Mass in the archdiocese, with Cardinal Daniel DiNardo as the celebrant.

Kimberly Ann Smith was a Houston Firefighter killed in the line of duty at an arson fire on Feb. 14, 2000. She lived a faithful Catholic life by displaying Christian values and she believed in service to the community. The medal in her name is presented annually to a firefighter who espouses the same qualities.

Retired Fire Chief Chris Chavez of the St. Florian Society of the archdiocese presented the medal to Gamez saying, “The life of a paramedic is many times an arduous and sometimes thankless job. They are up all night tending to the sick or injured and sometimes they are there just to hold a person’s hand to say that everything will be alright. This person has worked in the poorest neighborhoods in the City of Houston for many years. However, the thing that separates him from the rest is that he does this with a smile, no matter the situation, no matter the time of day or night. Moreover, the smile is genuine and not contrived.

“Unfortunately for the Houston Fire Department, we let him get away and he now graces the streets of the Village. What do his fellow firefighters think of him? From his first day on duty, he set a standard which I hope all firefighters who follow behind him will follow. He is a natural leader, an excellent paramedic, and a firefighter who is extremely knowledgeable in all aspects of the fire service. One cannot help but notice that instantly upon meeting him that he always has a smile on his face and brings laughter to the shift day in and day out. Moreover, he always seems to bring light into the darkness that we all too often live in throughout our careers.”

St. Florian is the patron of firefighters. He was an elite Roman soldier, and a Christian, who lived in the Third Century and was martyred for not following orders to serve the Roman gods and persecute Christians. The St. Florian Society sponsored the Mass.

Very Rev. Jacob Koether, episcopal vicar of evangelization and catechesis for the Diocese of Victoria, said children have a faith that is more in tune with the spiritual. “A lot of times, we can be surprised at what they can see. They know that this is something important and different.”

The images they drew demonstrate that they see the similarities in the Body and Blood and Jesus in the flesh – Jesus present in a physical way.

“They’re beautiful in how they bring those two mysteries together,” Father Koether said.

The Eucharistic Revival continues through the summer of 2024 when a national gathering will take place in Indianapolis, Ind. Pilgrimage teams from different parts of the nation will make the journey and meet up in Indianapolis for the National Eucharistic Congress in July.

One team of pilgrims will begin in Brownsville and journey through the Diocese of Victoria on May 27-30, stopping at our churches as they make their way to Indianapolis. Father Koether hopes to have as many people as possible involved in the pilgrimage while the core group of 10 people are here. There will be coordinated events and times for people to gather and walk with the pilgrims. Plans are still being made but the website www.eucharistpicpilgrimage.org is available for those who want to be updated on the routes of the pilgrims.

The Diocese of Victoria also has passes for 100 people who want to attend the Eucharistic Conference in July. Father Koether said it is for people of all ages and he encourages parents to attend with their children. Anyone who wants to attend is encouraged to contact Father Koether at jkoether@victoriadiocese.org.

In the meantime, Koether is offering mini-missions for local parishes to teach about the biblical foundations of the Eucharist. He said the website for the National Eucharistic Revival also has lots of resources for people who want to foster a deeper devotion to Jesus in the Eucharist in their small groups. Your work must show in order to pass the test

At Your Service

By Deacon Michael Tankersley

“Not everyone who says to Me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ will enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of My Father who is in heaven will enter.” (Matthew 7:21)

In 1964, my freshmen year at Premont High School, Mr. Pat Caruthers was my Algebra I teacher. (He was also my Driver’s Ed instructor until I backed into the Superintendent’s new automobile.) Mr. Caruthers was an intimidating figure – stern with a ruddy face and gruff voice – who announced his class rules as if they had been brought down from Mt. Sinai with those other commandments.

I remember being shocked to see that my first test was decorated with a huge red X that went from corner to corner of the page. When I discovered that my answers were identical to a fellow student who got a perfect score, I approached Mr. Caruthers for an explanation.

“I remember being shocked to see that my first test was decorated with a huge red X that went from corner to corner of the page. When I discovered that my answers were identical to a fellow student who got a perfect score, I approached Mr. Caruthers for an explanation to this injustice.

As I remember, I quickly launched into a passionate and solid defense: “There is no work to show, because I figured it out in my mind. I shouldn’t be penalized because I can see the answer without doing the steps that others need.” (I probably should have kept the references to being a “boy genius” and him harming my chances for a math scholarship to myself.)

After exhausting my plea, Mr. Caruthers rose and spoke forcefully: “Son, my tests are not about what you know in your head. The real test is in showing your work with your hands.”

About 33 A.D. at the Mount of Olives, just east of Old City of Jerusalem, another teacher held class. It was His final session with His disciples before His Passion story would begin. Jesus spoke of the signs of the end of the age and of His return to earth. He described in parables those who would be prepared (“Parable of the Ten Virgins,” 32nd Sunday), those who would be invested in Him (“Parable of the Talents,” 33rd Sunday), and those who would be eventually called to the heavenly banquet. (Solemnity of Christ the King).

On that day of final judgment, we hear that Christ Jesus will return as king and assemble all who have ever lived. “And he will separate them one from another, as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats. He will place the sheep on his right and the goats on his left.” Those on the right will hear the sweet sounds of “Come you who are blessed in my Father. Inherit the kingdom prepared for you.” Those on the left, however, will taste the bitter words: “Depart from me, you accursed, into the eternal fire.”

And by what measures will the King determine who is on the right or left? Whether sheep or goat? Who is invited to “come” and who is ordered to “depart”?

Listen: “For I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me drink, a stranger and you welcomed me, naked and you clothed me, ill and you cared for me, in prison and you visited me.” (Matthew 35:36)

Notice that value is placed on doing rather than knowing and on practice of love over the profession of love. It is as if Jesus is saying to His sons and daughters, “My test is not about what you know in your head. The real test is in showing your work with your hands.”

It is often suggested in commentaries and homilies that this gospel passage highlights the importance of seeing Jesus in all peoples, especially in the most vulnerable. In this telling, the righteous (the sheep) lent their aid because they saw Jesus in the hungry, the thirsty, the stranger and naked and ill and imprisoned. And because they helped, they passed the test. Conversely, because the goats failed to see Jesus in the vulnerable, they neglected to act and failed the test.

I have no quibble with the personal goal of seeing Christ in others as a source of inspiration to service, but the message of this gospel goes beyond that. The fact is, when Jesus commended the sheep for feeding Him “when I [He] was hungry, etc.,” the response of the sheep was identical to the response of the goats who failed to act.

Both groups replied, “Lord, when did we see You hungry and feed You, or thirsty and give You something to drink? And when did we see You a stranger and invite You in, or naked and clothe You? When did we see You sick or in prison and come to You?”

The point is that neither the sheep nor the goats saw Jesus in those who were in need.

The righteous did not help because it mattered that it was really JESUS who was in need. They helped because it didn’t matter WHO was in need, only that someone, anyone was in need. The sheep did not act because they saw Jesus in those who were hurting, rather they saw those hurt AS Jesus saw them.

The righteous, then, had become who they believed in; had become who they had faith in; had become like Christ the King.

Authentic faith is a restless child, unable to sit idly in silence for long. It must get up and move outside of thought into action. It cannot be contained in the confines of head or heart, but must express itself in words and deeds. As we move to close out this liturgical year in the celebration of the Solemnity of Christ the King, it is worthwhile to reflect on the poem attributed the St. Theresa of Avila:

Christ has no body but yours; No hands, no feet on earth but yours; Yours are the eyes with which He looks Compassion on this world; Yours are the feet with which He walks to do good; Yours are the hands, yours are the feet, Yours are the eyes; You are His body.

No one can embrace Christ the King as simply an idea without the impulse to respond in the service to others – to those in whom we can see Christ as well as those who appear as other.
Eucharistic Revival brings to mind a moment when faith became real

In Communion
By Very Rev. Jacob Koether

When I was in high school, I had the opportunity to go to a weekend youth conference. I didn’t know what to expect and didn’t have any big hopes for it. I mostly went because of the friends who had already decided to go. My faith at the time was OK. I went to Mass because I had to, and I knew the answers to most of the questions in CCD.

At the conference I was met with something different – Christians who were alive. There was joy, passion, excitement, vitality. It shook me in a good way and caused me to wonder about my faith more deeply.

What stands out to me the most is a moment during the conference when we had time for Eucharistic Adoration. The consecrated Bread from Mass was brought out and placed in a beautiful vessel that allowed us time to reflect on the mystery of Communion. We sang songs of praise, glorifying the Lord Jesus who continues to make Himself present to us. Eventually, after some time of prayer, I was surprised to see the priest take the Eucharist from the altar and begin to solemnly process through the crowd, bringing Jesus close. When he finally got near enough to our group, something changed in me. My faith was no longer an abstract idea. I had gone to Mass my whole life, went to Catholic school, had been receiving Holy Communion for years, but it was at that point that I realized – this is Jesus. And it started me down a path that I am very grateful to God for.

I wish everyone could know Jesus in the Eucharist. I’m sure most of you reading this article have the same desire to share the mystery of Eucharistic Communion with everyone. You can probably think of similar experiences of encounter and transformation and can relate with my story.

We can also number some challenging experiences when it comes to the mystery of Jesus in the Eucharist: trying to teach our First Communion classes about the beauty of this Gift, the struggle of persuading parents to worship in Mass every Sunday, our friends and family members who have left the Catholic Church because they weren’t being fed, the lack of reverence some show in church because no one introduced them to the One who abides in the tabernacle, and all the many ways we ourselves don’t allow the grace received in Communion to make us like Jesus.

COVID was a critical point, when it became clear to many in the Church that the Eucharist does not appear to be the “source and summit” of our Christian lives. Most parishes are still reporting Mass attendance numbers that have not recovered from the pandemic.

Flowing from this dissatisfaction in the difference between our faith and the lived experience of so many, the bishops decided that now is the time to launch a multi-year Eucharistic Revival, a time of reflection, formation, renewal and conversion, so everyone could grow in devotion to Jesus in the Eucharist.

The Eucharistic Revival began on Corpus Christi Sunday this year and will continue for the next few years first with a diocesan phase, then a parish phase and, lastly, a year of missionary renewal.

To transition between the Eucharistic Revival and the launch of the year of mission, there will be a national Eucharistic Congress. Our diocesan Office of Evangelization and Catechesis has been tasked with implementing the Eucharistic Revival in our area and assisting parishes in doing their own processes of renewal. The’re will be events to come and more information to follow.

As we begin, I invite you to make the Eucharistic Revival your own and to join in this important work. Spend some time reflecting on your own experience of the Eucharist. How has the Lord impacted you through Communion? How has the Mass transformed you? What if everyone could not only know about Jesus in the Eucharist but truly meet Him there?

What would our nation look like if the Eucharist were truly the source and summit of our lives?

Manténenos unidos en oración, ayuno y penitencia por la paz

Queridos hermanos y hermanas,
Cada miércoles por la tarde, cuando está en Roma, el Papa Francisco da una charla y saluda a los peregrinos que han viajado hasta allí.
El miércoles 18 de octubre expresó su preocupación por la situación en Medio Oriente y las guerras en distintas partes del mundo. Nos pidió que nos uniéramos a hombres y mujeres de todo el mundo el viernes 27 de octubre para un día de oración, penitencia y ayuno por la paz.
En el sitio web www.vatican.va, en la sección Audiencia general del 18 de octubre, están publicadas las siguientes palabras:

LLAMAMIENTO
"También hoy el pensamiento va a Israel y Palestina. Las víctimas aumentan y la situación en Gaza es desesperada. ¡Se haga, por favor, todo lo posible para evitar una catástrofe humanitaria!
Preocupa la posible prolongación del conflicto, mientras en el mundo ya hay muchos frentes de guerra abiertos. ¡Callen las armas! ¡Se escuche el grito de paz de los pueblos, de la gente, de los niños! Hermanos y hermanas, la guerra no resuelve ningún problema, solo siembra muerte y destrucción, aumenta el odio y multiplica la venganza. La guerra cancela el futuro. Exhorte a los creyentes a tomar en este conflicto una sola parte: la de la paz; pero no de palabra, con la oración, con la dedicación total.

Pensando en esto, he decidido convocar, el viernes 27 de octubre, una jornada de ayuno y oración, de penitencia, a la cual invito a unirse, de la forma que consideren oportuna, a las hermanas y los hermanos de las varias confesiones cristianas, los pertenecientes a otras religiones y a cuantos tienen en el corazón la causa de la paz en el mundo. Esa tarde a las 18:00 en San Pedro viviremos, en espíritu de penitencia, una hora de oración para implorar sobre nuestros días la paz, la paz en este mundo. Pido a todas las Iglesias particulares que participen, preparando iniciativas similares que involucren al Pueblo de Dios"

Me doy cuenta de que escribo esto antes del 27 de octubre y que lo leerás después del 27 de octubre. También creo que al ofrecer nuestras oraciones, penitencia y ayuno por intenciones particulares durante el Congreso del Rosario, podemos continuar uniéndonos a nuestros oraciones juntas. También podemos invitar a otras personas a unirse a nosotros para orar por la paz en el mundo, especialmente la paz en el Medio Oriente, y a pedir la protección de Dios para nuestro personal militar, especialmente aquellos que sirven en el extranjero.

Hace unos años, reflexionando sobre el poder de nuestra oración, di una charla sobre las razones por las que oramos y ayunamos.

Dos eventos espirituales previstos para la diócesis

La Oficina del Ministerio Hispano de la Diócesis de Victoria se complace en anunciar los últimos dos eventos espirituales del año.

En sintonía con el recientemente promulgado Plan Pastoral Nacional para el Ministerio Hispánico por la conferencia de Obispos Católicos de Estados Unidos, estaremos ofreciendo dos encuentros espirituales que nos pueden ayudar a profundizar y enriquecer nuestra relación con la Santísima Trinidad.

Este encuentro se realizará en colaboración con el Padre Eliecer Patiño, el día sábado 11 de noviembre de 9 am a 12:30 pm.

Padres de familia que tengan niños en clases de catecismo y adultos en general de la diócesis estarán cordialmente invitados.

Nuestro segundo encuentro y con el cual concluimos las actividades del año es un “Retiro Espiritual Bilingüe de Meditación y Silencio” a cargo del Padre Robert Moreno Jr. quien ejerce su ministerio en la parroquia de St Benedict Catholic Church en la Diócesis de Brownsville.

Este retiro se llevará a cabo del 17 al 19 de noviembre en el Spiritual Renewal Center y es para hombres y mujeres mayores de edad que quieran experimentar tres días de silencio y oración para meditar en el amor y misericordia de Dios en sus vidas cotidianas. November: Blessing of Food

From Catholic Rural Life

As all are seated at table for this meal of giving thanks, we begin with prayer.

OPENING PRAYER

Let us pray: Creator who sustains all your creatures with food, drink and friendship, we enjoy this moment of special pleasure. We acknowledge your gifts and your goodness. We thank you this day, for you have blessed us beyond measure. From us as people filled with praise, filled with faith in you, filled with the generosity you have shown to us. We ask this through Christ our Lord. Amen.

SONG OF PRAISE:

Psalm 65:10-14

Response:

To you we owe our hymn of praise, O God of Zion. You visit the earth and water it, make it abundantly fertile. God’s stream is filled with water; you supply their grain.

Thus do you prepare it: you drench its plowed furrows, and level its ridges. With showers you keep it soft, blessing its young sprouts. You adorn the year with your bounty; your paths drip with fruitful rain. The meadows of the wilderness also drip; the hills are robed with joy.

Therefore do you share with joy. The pastures are clothed with flocks, the valleys blanketed with grain; they cheer and sing for joy.

RESPONDING PRAYER: Psalm 65:15-18

Grace and peace: the Lord be with you.

Today’s Reading: Leviticus 26:2-6

The Reward of Obedience

Keep my Sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary. I am the Lord. If you live in accordance with my statutes and are careful to observe my commandments, I will give you your rains in due season, so that the land will yield its crops, and the trees their fruit; your threshing will last till vintage time, and your vintage till the time for sowing, and you will eat your fill of food, and live securely in your land.

I will establish peace in the land, and you will lie down to rest with no one to cause you anxiety. I will rid the country of ravenous beasts, and no sword shall sweep across your land.

SELECTIVE READINGS:

Exodus 34:22; Leviticus 19:9-10; Deuteronomy 16:14-15; Amos 9:13; John 4:36; Revelation 14:15

Silent Reflection, or invite sharing of thoughts.

CLOSING BLESSING

(Each person lifts a dish of food or glass of drink.)

Blessed are you, Lord our God. You have lavishly provided for us the fruits of the earth. As you have always promised your faithful people, you fill us with good things. Bless us as we share this food, knowing that we will share with you in the eternal celebration one day. We pray to you as one voice: “Bless us, O Lord, and these Thy gifts, which we are about to receive from Thy bounty, through Christ our Lord. Amen.”

Praise to our God who gives life and joy!

White Mass
Bishop Brendan Cahill celebrated the Feast Day of St. Luke on the evening of Oct. 18 by offering a White Mass, especially blessing all healthcare professionals in the Diocese of Victoria. He is shown on the steps of the cathedral with some of the healthcare workers who attended the Mass. Father Peter Nimo, the hospital chaplain for the Diocese of Victoria, is shown delivering the homily for the Mass and reminding the healthcare workers that they are the hands and feet of Jesus, the Divine Healer, in their vocation. He said just their presence brings hope and healing to the patients they serve.

Blue Mass
Bishop Cahill is shown with law enforcement personnel honored during the Blue Mass on Sept. 29. Father Ryan Kapavik, who serves as the police chaplain in Victoria, delivered the homily. “You are not alone,” Father Ryan, shown to the right of the bishop, told the men and women who serve in law enforcement and emergency services. Like the archangels Michael, Gabriel and Raphael, whose feast day is Sept. 29, the first responders were created to serve, he said. That desire to serve is from the Creator. He encouraged officers to pray the prayers to the archangels for intercession, particularly to St. Michael, their patron. And he reminded them that he and many others were there to support them and pray for them.
