The VINE & BRANCHES

16TH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME
JULY 21, 2024

What does it take to be a good shepherd? Shepherding may not be a field we can major in college or learn in a trade school. It is doubtful that that occupation will be found on our resumes, at least in the part of the world we live in, but the Gospel invites us to reflect upon our vocation as shepherds in Christ just the same. The disciples return from an apostolic journey; Jesus takes them into solitude so that they can rest, but the crowd seeks them out. When Jesus sees the crowd, he is filled with pity for them because they are like sheep without a shepherd, and he begins to instruct them in detail. The theme of the passage as read in the liturgy is sheep without a shepherd, whom Christ wishes to evangelize. ... Continued on p. 2

The passage tells us, then, of the anxious concern Jesus feels for the crowds. The evangelists like to point out that the crowds follow Jesus (see Matt 4:25; 8:1, 18; 12:15). We read that Jesus is moved by the sight of the crowd (Mark 9:36; 15:32), that the crowd is struck by wonder at Jesus (Matt 12:23), and has a great desire to hear his teaching (Mark 11:18; 12:37; Luke 5:1, 15). This desire for teaching, along with the desire to be cured and to see more miracles, is what draws the crowds after Jesus.

Jesus' mission is to teach. He teaches in the synagogues. He himself can say at the end: "Day after day I sat teaching in the temple area" (Matt 26:55;). He teaches with authority (Matt 7:29) and says that the Father has told him what he is to teach. His teaching in parables is also near and dear to our hearts and embedded in our memory, as the sower sows seeds, the shepherd looks for a lost sheep, and the prodigal son returns home again. Jesus' teaching is powerful, as it is frequently accompanied by healing of body and soul. The reason why St. Mark says so much about the teaching of Jesus is that his gospel is meant as a catechesis, perhaps for use during the Eucharist of the Jewish-Christian community. This purpose explains Mark's care throughout the gospel to show Jesus confirming his teaching by miracles. When Jesus is moved at the sight of a crowd that resembles sheep without a shepherd, his first reaction is to teach them. In his eyes, the first and most important job of a shepherd is to communicate the Father's teaching.

Mark, in his gospel, sees teaching as the first and foremost task of Jesus the Shepherd. What Jesus teaches has, moreover, been entrusted to him by his Father. In fact, what Jesus teaches is precisely that God is a Father and that he loves people and wants to save them. At the same time, today's passage from Mark shows that Jesus was especially concerned to teach his disciples, who would themselves later become teachers of others. He explains his parables to them because they accept him with faith. Teaching in any way, shape or form gathers the learners, as it transforms their minds and hearts. We who claim to be followers of Jesus must constantly discern the voices that teach us and guide us. The standard for teaching is the standard of shepherding: leading us home to the merciful love of the Father.

Go Make of All Disciples

Christ is our peace who made both one

Our second reading from Ephesians (2:13-18) gives me hope. In all of the division in our country, community, even our homes, St. Paul reminds us that in the midst of it, Jesus is our peace. "For he is our peace, he who made both one and broke down the dividing wall of enmity, through his flesh." Recent events in our nation have shown that division and enmity are clearly present. However, no matter which political party one claims themselves to be part of, there is never a case of needing to murder someone with another belief system. What weapon do we pick up then? Our weapon is prayer. Only God can change hearts.

When one person in the body of Christ is hurting, we are all hurting. Being reconciled to one another and to God builds up the body of Christ, which puts all division and enmity to death. The only blood that needs to be poured is Christ's blood. Jesus died for us so that death no longer wins. As we come together to celebrate Mass, that same blood is poured once again, as Jesus is sacrificed for us. As we have access to that spiritual food, may it be the ammunition we need to put on Christ and fight through praying for one another. In a particular way, I encourage you to pray for someone you are struggling with. Maybe it is a spouse, a friend, another relative or coworker. Only God can change hearts.

God bless,

WELCOME NEW KNIGHTS

TRIPLE STAR COUNCIL

You may have heard by now the wonderful news that our council has achieved Triple Star Council status for our fraternal year which ended on June 30th. This is the first time our council has achieved Triple Star and we feel very blessed and humbled. To accomplish this feat, it took every member of our council to make a concerted effort to share their own stories with men of our parish and personally invite them to join and share in our mission. Through the intercession of Blessed Michael McGivney and the grace and blessings which our Lord showered down upon us and our council, we were able to grow our membership to 15 new knights this past year. I believe our Grand Knight, Tom Iacobelli, just recently said it best, "Triple Star status is a great distinction. But even better, is that we have introduced 15 new men to the benefits of being a knight, and built our manpower and our ability to do good accordingly". Please welcome our two newest knights who, along with the thirteen brothers who already joined this past year, made Triple Star possible. They are Ciro Biundo and Matthew Dominski. Please keep them in your prayers as they embark on following the Pillars of Charity, Unity, and Fraternity of the Knights of Columbus.

Blessed Michael McGivney pray for us!
