PASTOR'S COLUMN

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

Last week I began a series of articles concerning the reception of the Precious Blood during Holy Communion. I want to thank Rita A. Thiron, M. A, the Executive Director of the Federation of Diocesan Liturgical Commissions in Washington, DC, for use of her article. She gives a history of receiving Holy Communion from the chalice as well as the theology. Please take some time during this season of Advent to reflect on reception of the Precious Blood and preparation to receive it. Remember – it is optional. Christ is truly present, Body, Blood, Soul, and Divinity in each species separately and distinctly. If you missed last week's beginning of the series, please go to the bulletin on line and pull up last week's to review.

Even under the threat of persecution, the early Church maintained the tradition of gathering on the day of the sun (Sunday), the Lord's Day, the day of the Resurrection. These gatherings included reading "from the memoirs of the Apostles" (Justin Martyr, 150 AD) and communal meals, usually with bread and wine brought from homes and prayers of thanksgiving. Some food was set aside for the poor; the consecrated food was taken by deacons to absent members.

More than a community meal, this bread and wine became ritual food. Often a fragment of the consecrated bread was taken to another community. While liturgical practices differed in various regions, liturgical scholars have found evidence that for at least the first six hundred years, eating both the consecrated bread and drinking the consecrated wine were common. Certainly, the Church continued the unbroken tradition of giving thanks and of consecrating bread and wine at Mass. Indeed, in 1215, the Lateran Council infallibly defined the doctrine of transubstantiation and described in precise scholastic language the transformation of the bread and wine into the actual Body and Blood of Christ.

The faithful's reception of the Precious Blood saw a gradual decline in Western practice. By the twelfth to fourteenth centuries, several factors had contributed to the abandonment of distributing Holy Communion under both kinds -- eucharistic controversies, devotional practices, rampant diseases and contagions, large crowds at major feasts, the danger of spoilage and spillage, and even the scarcity of wine. This trend continued until the Council of Constance (1415) decreed that Holy Communion in the form of bread alone would be distributed to the faithful. The Council cited the doctrine of concomitance -- that Christ is fully present in each species alone. They reasoned: since Christ is indivisible, no one part of Christ's substance can be divided. Thus, Christ's body cannot be separated from his blood which means that Christ's full presence is in each element fully. The priest alone continued to consume the consecrated bread and wine. In general, the faithful received Communion less frequently due to a growing sense of unworthiness to partake of the sacrament. In 1910, partly to encourage people to receive Communion more frequently, Pope Pius X lowered the age of first confession and First Communion to the age of reason (Quam singulari). That same document encouraged the reception of Communion at least once year (an "Easter duty").

Still, the drinking from the chalice was restricted to priests until the mid-twentieth century. [Do you remember the covering which once draped the chalice?] In 1963, the Second Vatican Council restored the ancient practice of receiving the Precious Blood "when pastorally effective and spiritually beneficial" (cf. Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy, no. 55). They specifically cited the newly-ordained, the newly professed in religious communities, and the newly-baptized. Following the Second Vatican Council, the revised Roman Missal (1969) gave conferences of Bishops the authority to extend permissions for the reception of Holy Communion under both kinds. In 1970, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops (sic.), added more instances to the list above. They recognized special persons or occasions, e.g., the bride and groom at their wedding, families at a funeral Mass, liturgical ministers, those present on Holy Thursday, neophytes at the Easter Vigil, and even some weekday Masses. While they promoted ongoing catechesis on the validity of Communion in one form alone, the General Instruction on the Roman Missal (nos. 85, 283) encouraged the reception of Holy Communion under both forms.

More on this next week.

With prayers for a deeper devotion to the Eucharist,

Fr. Norbert

Sunday, Dec 11, 2022'Tis the season to be generous

Seasonal gift-giving was originally an expression of generosity toward the needy. These days, gift-giving has become many other things, including a source of anxiety or obligation, mindless consumerism, one-upmanship, and often, an annual occasion of snowballing debt. The gifts Jesus brings are different—they are restorative, occasions of good news. Consider offering gifts that fill hearts, not closets. Heifer International, World Wildlife Fund, and PlanUSA are among the many organizations that accept donations in directed ways to honor your loved ones.

THIRD SUNDAY OF ADVENT

TODAY'S READINGS: Isaiah 35:1-6a, 10; James 5:7-10; Matthew 11:2-11 (7). "Go and tell John what you hear and see: the blind regain their sight, the lame walk . . . and the poor have the good news proclaimed to them."

Monday, Dec 12, 2022We're good enough for God

The appearance of Our Lady of Guadalupe to Saint Juan Diego in December 1531 is reminiscent of the appearance of the angel Gabriel to Mary. Juan and the young Mary were both understandably overwhelmed by what was asked of them. In the Gospel of Luke, Mary is "greatly troubled at what was said." According to later accounts, Juan told Our Lady to pick someone of higher standing as messenger, since he was a "man of no importance." But by accepting the challenge, a Jewish peasant girl became the Mother of God, and an indigenous Mexican persevered in getting a church built in Our Lady's honor. Today, the Basilica of Our Lady of Guadalupe in Mexico City is the most-visited Catholic shrine in the world. Think you're not good enough for God's plan? Trust that God equips us all for what we're called to do.

FEAST OF OUR LADY OF GUADALUPE

TODAY'S READINGS: Zachariah 2:14-17 or Revelation 11:19a; 12:1-6a, 10ab; Luke 1:26-38 or Luke 1:39-47 (690A). "Do not be afraid, Mary, for you have found favor with God."

Tuesday, Dec 13, 2022Follow the light

Lucy, whose name means "light," is a great saint for these darkening days of Advent. Her name and example personify the "light" mentioned throughout the Bible, not only Isaiah's promises of a future messiah—"people who walk in darkness will see a great light"—but Jesus, who called himself the "Light of the World," while also calling us the same. Scandinavian celebrations of Lucy, with a crown of candles on her head, remind us that she fed persecuted Christians hiding in the catacombs, affixing candles to her head in order to use both hands to serve. How will you be a light to the world today?

MEMORIAL OF LUCY, MARTYR

TODAY'S READINGS: Zephaniah 3:1-2, 9-13; Matthew 21:28-32 (188). "Take refuge in the name of the Lord."

Wednesday, Dec 14, 2022In the darkness, a great light

One of multiple doctors of the church celebrated this month, Saint John of the Cross was a renowned priest and friar in Spain, descended from a line of "conversos" (Iberian Jewish converts to Catholicism). A contemporary of another Carmelite saint,

Teresa of Ávila, John was, like her, a mystic whose writings have lived far beyond his own lifetime as classics of European literature. His seminal work, the poem "Dark Night of the Soul," is the basis of a widely held tenant of spirituality involving spiritual distress as a part of searching and growth. (We all have our "dark nights of the soul.") His "Ascent of Mount Carmel" is likewise widely revered. In this season of holy joy as we celebrate the approach of the Messiah, may we likewise honor the legacy of the humble Catholic friar of Jewish descent whose profound and mystical faith has inspired millions the world over.

MEMORIAL OF JOHN OF THE CROSS, CARMELITE PRIEST, DOCTOR OF THE CHURCH

TODAY'S READINGS: Isaiah 45:6c-8, 18, 21c-25; Luke 7:18b-23 (189). "And Jesus said to them in reply, 'Go and tell John what you have seen and heard.'"

Thursday, Dec 15, 2022The greatest gifts are priceless

The tradition of Christmas gift-giving can be uncomfortable for those wanting to take seriously Catholic teaching about the environment and consumerism. Fortunately, more and more people are open to alternatives: gifts of time or special skills, gifts made from household items, gifts to charitable causes in loved ones' names. How can you celebrate creatively, in keeping with the spirit of Christmas?

ADVENT WEEKDAY

TODAY'S READINGS: Isaiah 54:1-10; Luke 7:24-30 (190). "I tell you, among those born of women, no one is greater than John."

Friday, Dec 16, 2022Truly right and just

The prophet Isaiah tells the Israelites to "observe what is right, do what is just." No easy task, often leading us to ask for some guidance. Fortunately, Jesus showed us the way. As we await the celebration of Christ's coming, take a moment to ponder some of the examples of right and just living Jesus gave us, such as caring for outcasts, being a healing presence, praying, evangelizing, and forgiving. Simply put, follow Christ's advice to love God and your neighbor as yourself and to count your blessings, and let Christ take care of the rest.

ADVENT WEEKDAY

TODAY'S READINGS: Isaiah 56:1-3a, 6-8; John 5:33-36 (191). "These works that I perform testify on my behalf that the Father has sent me."

Saturday, Dec 17, 2022Dip into God's wisdom

Today we begin the recitation of the O Antiphons. The church sings these seven lines during evening prayers (vespers) on the last seven days of Advent, and also uses them as the Alleluia Verse during the daily Mass. Each antiphon is a title for Christ taken from the Book of Isaiah. They go back to an unknown source some 1,500 years ago in medieval Europe, and all begin with "O," thus known as the "O Antiphons." Take an opportunity today to connect to this ancient tradition by enjoying sung versions and explanations of the antiphons on the internet, starting with today's antiphon, O Wisdom.

ADVENT WEEKDAY (O WISDOM)

TODAY'S READINGS: Genesis 49:2, 8-10; Matthew 1:1-17 (193). "The mountains shall yield peace for the people, and the hills justice."

*O Come,
Let Us Adore*

NUESTRO BELÉN VIVIENTE ANUAL
EN EL LEGACY GARDEN

Queridos hermanos,

La semana pasada comencé una serie de artículos sobre la recepción de la Preciosa Sangre durante la Sagrada Comunión. Quiero agradecer a Rita A. Thiron, M. A, Directora Ejecutiva de la Federación de Comisiones Litúrgicas Diocesanas en Washington, DC, por el uso de su artículo. Ella relata la historia de recibir la Sagrada Comunión del cáliz, así como la teología. Tómense un tiempo durante esta temporada de Adviento para reflexionar sobre la recepción de la Preciosa Sangre y la preparación para recibirla. Recuerden: es opcional. Cristo está verdaderamente presente, Cuerpo, Sangre, Alma y Divinidad en cada especie por separado y distintamente. Si se perdió el comienzo de la serie de la semana pasada, vaya al boletín en línea y acceda al de la semana pasada para revisarlo.

Incluso bajo la amenaza de persecución, la Iglesia primitiva mantuvo la tradición de congregarse el día del Señor (en latín, dies dominicus), el día de la Resurrección. En estas reuniones se leían “fragmentos de las memorias de los Apóstoles” (Justino Mártir, 150) se celebraban comidas comunitarias (por lo general, con pan y vino traídos de los hogares de los fieles), y se decían oraciones de acción de gracias a Dios. Se apartaba algo de comida para los pobres y los diáconos llevaban la comida consagrada a los miembros que no habían podido asistir.

Más que una comida comunitaria, el pan y el vino se terminaron convirtiendo en alimentos rituales. A menudo se llevaba un fragmento del pan consagrado a otra comunidad. Si bien las prácticas litúrgicas eran diferentes en cada región, los eruditos litúrgicos han encontrado evidencia de que, por lo menos durante los primeros seiscientos años de la iglesia, comer tanto el pan consagrado como beber el vino consagrado era algo frecuente. Ciertamente, la Iglesia continuó la tradición sin interrupción de dar gracias y de consagrar el pan y el vino en la Misa. En efecto, en 1215, el IV Concilio de Letrán definió infaliblemente la doctrina de la transubstanciación y describió en términos escolásticos precisos la transformación del pan y el vino en el verdadero Cuerpo y Sangre de Cristo.

En Occidente, la práctica de que los fieles bebieran la Preciosa Sangre empezó a abandonarse. Entre los siglos XII y XIV, la concurrencia de varios factores había dado lugar al abandono gradual de la práctica de la distribución de la Sagrada Comunión bajo las dos especies: controversias eucarísticas, prácticas devocionales, enfermedades y contagios desenfrenados, grandes multitudes en las principales fiestas religiosas, el peligro de deterioro y derrame, e incluso la escasez de vino. Dicha tendencia continuó hasta que el Concilio de Constanza (1415) decretó que los comulgantes solo recibirían la Sagrada Comunión bajo la especie de pan. Como argumento, el Concilio citó la doctrina de la concomitancia, es decir, que ambas especies contienen el cuerpo y la sangre de Cristo. Ellos razonaron de la siguiente manera: como Cristo es indivisible, ninguna parte de la sustancia de Cristo puede ser dividida. Por lo tanto, el cuerpo de Cristo no puede separarse de su sangre, lo que significa que la presencia plena de Cristo está en cada elemento por completo. Únicamente el sacerdote continuaba recibiendo el pan y el vino consagrados. En términos generales, los comulgantes recibían la Comunión con menos frecuencia debido a un creciente sentimiento de no ser dignos para participar del sacramento. En 1910, en parte para fomentar que los comulgantes recibieran la Comunión con más frecuencia, el papa Pío X bajó la edad de la primera confesión y de la Primera Comunión a la edad en que se tuviera uso de razón (Quam singulari). En el mismo documento se recomendó que la Comunión se recibiera al menos una vez por año (un “deber Pascual”).

Sin embargo, hasta mediados del siglo XX, solo los sacerdotes podían tomar del cáliz. (¿Recuerdan el velo que cubría el cáliz?). En 1963, el Concilio Vaticano II reinstauró la práctica ancestral de que los fieles bebieran la Preciosa Sangre en los casos en que tuviera eficacia pastoral y fuera beneficioso para el espíritu (cf. Constitución sobre la Sagrada Liturgia, 55). Mencionaron explícitamente “a los ordenados, en la Misa de su sagrada ordenación; a los profesos, en la Misa de su profesión religiosa; a los neófitos, en la Misa que sigue al bautismo” (Constitución sobre la Sagrada Liturgia, 55).

Después del Concilio Vaticano II, el Misal Romano revisado (1969) concedió a las conferencias episcopales la potestad de otorgar permisos para recibir la Sagrada Comunión bajo las dos especies. En 1970, la Conferencia Nacional de Obispos Católicos de Estados Unidos (USCCB) incluyó más ocasiones a la lista anterior. Admitieron a personas u ocasiones especiales, como los novios en el día de su boda, las familias en una Misa de difuntos, los clérigos litúrgicos, los presentes el Jueves Santo, los neófitos en la Vigilia Pascual e incluso las personas que vayan a ciertas Misas semanales. Si bien fomentaron que en la catequesis se siguiera refrendando la validez de la Comunión bajo una sola de las especies, en la Instrucción General del Misal Romano (85, 283) se recomendaba que los fieles recibieran la Sagrada Comunión bajo las dos especies.

Más sobre esto la próxima semana.

Con mis oraciones por una devoción más profunda a la Eucaristía

Fr. Mark

Es la temporada para ser generoso

Dar regalos en temporada era originalmente una expresión de generosidad hacia los necesitados. Hoy en día, regalar se ha convertido en muchas otras cosas, incluyendo una fuente de ansiedad u obligación, consumismo sin sentido, competencia y, a menudo, una ocasión anual para acumular deudas. Los regalos que trae Jesús son diferentes: son restaurativos, ocasiones de buenas noticias. Piensa en ofrecer regalos que llenen los corazones, no los armarios. Heifer International, World Wildlife Fund y PlanUSA son algunas de las muchas organizaciones que aceptan donaciones de forma orientada para honrar a tus seres queridos.
