GOSPEL MEDITATION BY FR. JOHN MUIR

I remember middle school baseball tryouts. A friend of mine, Robert, was trying to make the team to please his father, but his heart wasn't in it. He was lackadaisical and unenergetic. When the final cut-list was announced and his name wasn't on it, he was relieved. He realized the coach was not insulting him but essentially telling him, "Bobby, this only works if you actually want to play ball." I was saddened he'd miss out on the fun, but I knew it was best. Putting Robert onto the team would not have been kindness. It would have made him miserable.

Jesus speaks to us today about his identity as our King and Judge. He separates those who inherit the kingdom from those who do not. The King explains, "Whatever you did for one of the least brothers of mine, you did for me" (Matthew 25:40). His judgment hinges on willingness to participate in love. Heaven is not a prize imposed at the end of life. It is a life freely chosen and engaged. Hell is not a destination prepared for human beings, but a terrible and sad acknowledgment of an opting out which God never intends for us.

Jesus' role as judge proclaims to us: "Heaven only works if you actually want to love." How do we know if we want it? How we serve the hungry, the sick, the imprisoned, and the forgotten. These acts of mercy are not arbitrary tests. They are the very shape of divine life. There is no better game to play than this. We ought to begin playing it right now. The King will come to judge us. ©LPi

Kings and Peace

It's a little ironic that, when Pope Pius XI instituted the Feast of Christ the King, he did so in a world that was growing awfully weary of kings.

The year was 1925. World War I had ended only seven years before. Most of Europe's monarchies were torn asunder in the conflict, yielding to other forms of government more deferential to popular opinion.

But there was a problem. The kings were gone, but still the world did not know peace — and it certainly didn't know justice. The Pope was unflinching in his words: "discord," "rivalries," "insatiable greed," "selfishness," "neglect (of) duty…society in a word, shaken to its foundations and on the way to ruin," he lamented in his encyclical Quas primas, describing the state of the world.

Americans are very proud that we've never bent the knee to a monarch, and I, for one, am a big fan of democratic republics like ours. But I don't think tyranny is inherent to — or prevented by — any particular form of government. I think any human can become an oppressor if they make the choice to.

The question was never what prevented tyranny. The question was who. And the answer is: only a king who "demands of (his) subjects a spirit of detachment from riches and earthly things, and a spirit of gentleness," wrote Pope Pius XI. A king whose subjects "hunger and thirst after justice" and who "deny themselves and carry the cross."

There has only ever been one such king. There has only ever been one such kingdom.

Today, we bend the knee.

CARING FOR WHAT BELONGS TO CHRIST

Recognize one person, responsibility, or resource God has entrusted to your care. Express gratitude for that gift and take one intentional step to care for it more faithfully. Let your generosity reflect the loving care of Christ, our Shepherd and King.

QUESTIONS OF THE WEEK
REFLECT AND RESPOND TO SCRIPTURE

Christ's kingship challenges us to reconsider what it means to possess anything at all. Ezekiel reveals a Shepherd whose authority is expressed through faithful care. The psalm reminds us that our security rests in God's providence. Saint Paul points toward the day when all things will be subject to God. And Jesus reveals that our earthly choices carry eternal significance. Everything we have received is entrusted to us for a time. The question is not simply how much we have accumulated, but whether our stewardship reflects the generosity of the One to whom everything belongs.

- Where have I begun to treat something entrusted to my care as though it belonged exclusively to me, without responsibility toward God or others?
- How might recognizing Christ as the true Lord of my life change the way I exercise authority, manage resources, or fulfill responsibilities?

QUESTIONS FOR THE FAMILY

Imagine someone asks you to take care of something very special while they are away. They trust you to keep it safe and use it wisely. You would probably want to do your very best! God trusts us with wonderful gifts too. He gives us our families, friends, abilities, and the beautiful world around us. Today we celebrate Jesus as our King. But Jesus doesn't rule like kings in storybooks. He shows us how to care for others with love. When we use God's gifts responsibly and generously, we show that we are learning to live as members of His Kingdom.

- What does it mean when someone trusts you to take care of something important?
- What has God entrusted to our family that we can care for and share more faithfully?

CALLED & SENT

A KINGDOM, A CALLING, A PURPOSE

As the liturgical year draws to a close, the Solemnity of Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe, invites us to consider a deeply personal question: What does it mean to allow Christ to reign in my life?

We often approach vocation by asking what God wants us to do. Perhaps a more important question comes first: Who is God calling me to become?

Every vocation begins with our relationship with Jesus Christ. Through Baptism, we are called to holiness, to grow in friendship with Him, and to discover how our particular lives can reflect His love. This calling belongs to everyone, regardless of age, circumstances, or state of life.

For some, God's invitation leads to the priesthood or consecrated life. For others, it unfolds through marriage, family life, or a particular mission in the world. Yet our vocation is never simply a role or occupation. It is a lifelong response to God's love.

Pope Francis reminds us in Christus Vivit that discovering our vocation means recognizing why we were created and allowing God to shape the direction of our lives. We may not see the entire path ahead, but through prayer, reflection, and attentive listening, we gradually discover where He is leading us.

Sometimes that direction becomes clear through an unexpected opportunity, a conversation, a persistent desire to serve, or an experience that changes our priorities. At other times, God's call emerges slowly through years of faithful commitment to the responsibilities already entrusted to us.

As we prepare for Advent, a season of watchful expectation, we might consider whether we have allowed enough silence in our lives to recognize God's voice. Are we listening only for what we expect Him to say, or are we open to where He might lead us?

Christ our King does not simply ask for a place in our schedules. He invites us to entrust our whole lives to Him.

What might change if we allowed Christ to guide not only what we do, but who we are becoming?
