Vicki and Dan at the Cathedral of St. Peter in Belleville. Dan will be ordained a Permanent Deacon, June 3, 2023

Dan Laquet called to Sacred Orders.

After six years of study, prayer and discernment, Dan Laquet will be ordained a Permanent Deacon at the Cathedral of St. Peter.

According to Dan, about two weeks ago he received an email from Bishop McGovern asking him to meet him at the Blessed Sacrament Chapel, located inside the Cathedral of St. Peter this past Monday. During that meeting, Bishop McGovern, after much prayer informed Dan he will be ordained a Permanent Deacon, in service to the Diocese of Belleville.

Bishop asked him to make his Profession of Faith and Oath of Fidelity, which are then signed by Bishop McGovern and Dan, officially calling him to Holy Order.

Congratulations to Vicki and Dan, what exciting news!

PALM SUNDAY APRIL 2, 2023

A story that we can relate to. "There was a report of a coal mining accident. Many miners escaped with their lives, but three men were trapped somewhere deep within the earth's crust. Whether they were dead or alive no one knew. What made the accident even more frustrating was the presence of intense heat and noxious gases within the mine itself. If the rocks had not crushed them, they very well would have been asphyxiated by the fumes or killed by the heat. Two days went by before a search expedition was allowed to even enter the mine because of heat and fumes. Even then there was a great danger in store for anyone who would dare descend into what could be a deep black grave. A brief interview was conducted with one as he was preparing to enter the mine. A reporter asked him, "Sir, are you aware of the noxious gases and the extreme danger of the mines." The fireman replied, "Yes, I am aware." The reporter asked again, "Are you still going down?" And the man replied, "The men may still be alive." Without another word of explanation he put on his gas mask, climbed into the elevator and descended into the black mine. That rescuer put his life on the line that others might live. That's what Jesus did - by entering Jerusalem, He put his life on the line that others might have life." John Rose in 'John's Sunday Homilies'

Here is the difference. Jesus' enemies were looking for a miracle worker. But Jesus didn't come to be a miracle worker; he came to be our Savior. If Jesus had come down from the cross, his enemies would have seen an awesome display of power; no doubt about that. But that would have been the end of it. No doubt the scoffers would have trembled in their sandals, and they would have begged Jesus for mercy. And probably the story of this miracle would have been circulated through Judea, Samaria and Galilee for several generations. But that would have been the end of it. The event, and indeed, the whole story of Jesus, would have been lost in the dustbins of history, along with hundreds of other stories of miracle workers, real and imagined. But Jesus did not come down, and that's why we're here this morning. We're here because he stayed on the cross, because he refused to save himself.

In one sense, Jesus' enemies were right when they said, "He cannot save himself." If Jesus had saved himself, he would have been entirely out of character. He would have been untrue to God, to his calling, to his purpose in coming to earth, and to who he was. So the mockers, unknowingly, were right; Jesus, being Jesus, could not save himself.

(Ecce Homo – Behold the Man) A reproduction Ecce Homo by Antonio Ciseri. Antonio Ciseri was born in the Italian speaking part of Switzerland in 1821.

One of the reasons it is such an aid is because it leaves much for the imagination. Specifically, we don't see the faces of Jesus or Pilate from the front (as is usually the case in Catholic art). Instead, we have a view from the rear of the scene, as if from the perspective of a roman servant.

What pulls the eye in right away, of course, is the central scene of Pilate displaying Jesus Christ to the Jews and saying 'Behold the Man'. Even if the title of this painting wasn't "Ecce Homo," it's still simple to derive that this is indeed the moment the painting captures. Notice the motion of Pilate's arm, pointing towards Jesus Christ, the crown of thorns barely visible on Christ's head, and the exposed back indicating the recent flagellation.

When the eye wanders more through the art painting, it will notice the most visible face in the entire image: that of the woman on the right. The look of anguish on her face, her outstretched arm embracing her friend (or servant perhaps) for emotional support—all indicate that this figure would be none other than the wife of Pontius Pilate.

"And as he (Pontius Pilate) was sitting in the place of judgment, his wife sent to him, saying: Have thou nothing to do with that just man; for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of him." Matt 27:19

If it was her explicit wish for her husband to have nothing to do with a just man, then her emotional pain displayed in the picture makes perfect sense. The moment Pilate begins to announce that he has tortured the Christ, her heart sinks as the realization truly sets in that her husband displayed cruelty to the just man, despite her warnings. She turns from his side and begins slowly withdrawing—the moment captured in this art painting.

We can relate to the agony of Pilate's wife by inserting how our own sins have caused the suffering of Jesus Christ. The brilliance of the perspective of Pilate's wife is that she, apparently, had no idea that Jesus was God or that He was dying for ours sins. If she had so much sorrow simply because she sensed that something was awry and unjust, imagine how great her sorrow could have been had she known the sublime and grim reality of what was happening before her eyes.

RESPECT LIFE

When battered by life's storms, or immersed in a dense fog of suffering and uncertainty, we may feel alone and unequipped to handle the circumstances. Yet with words that echo through thousands of years into the corners of our hearts, the Lord says to us, "Do not fear: I am with you" (Isaiah 41:10).

He speaks these words not as one who merely observes our pain, but as one who experienced immense suffering. And the very wounds that bear witness to his suffering indicate the essence of our identity and worth: we are loved by God.

Reflecting on the healed wounds of the Risen Christ, we see that even our most difficult trials can be the place where God manifests his victory. He makes all things beautiful. He makes all things new. He is always with us. Jesus promised this when he gave the disciples the same mission he gives to each of us: Go.

Go be my hands and feet to a world enslaved by fear. Go to the woman who is unexpectedly pregnant and fears the future. Go to your friend who fears reprisal at work because he takes a stand for the protection of human life. Go to your aging parent in failing health who fears being a burden. And go to others, too, for their support.

We don't need to have everything figured out. We can simply follow the guidance of Our Blessed Mother, the first disciple: "Do whatever he tells you" (John 2:5).

Walk with each other. Do not be afraid to embrace God's gift of life. Whatever storms or trials we face, we are not alone. He is with us.

"Behold, I am with you always, until the end of the age" (Matthew 28:20).

Palm Sunday of the Passion of the Lord

"As they were marching out, they came upon a man of Cyrene, Simon by name; this man they pressed into service to carry his cross." Matthew 27:32

The Lord calls us to love God and to love our neighbor. Every day we are presented with opportunities to love our neighbor and help him "carry his cross." These opportunities aren't usually big events, they are usually ordinary occurrences like helping someone carry their groceries or holding the door open for them. The key is putting the other person's needs before our own and not expecting anything in return.

Alright, enough is enough! I'm not doing it, I'm a feline, a fierce one at that, not a critter. After a nice long catnap this is how I woke up. My brother Blaise was laughing at me, and rolling around like a crazy feline who had too much catnip! No matter how many belly rubs I get, there is no way, I am helping that crazy critter, that has been running around the lawn teasing me all week. If I find out who did this, well they will be ignored for days...but I do that anyways, oh well! Happy Easter! Love Sister Gracie
