Jesus said in reply, "Ten were cleansed, were they not?

Knight of Columbus Pancake Breakfast

Join us for a wonderful breakfast & great Fellowship after Mass this Sunday, October 9. Free will donation.

Bible Study: The Eucharist in Scripture

We will continue exploring Jesus' bread of life discourse and the early church's practice of "breaking bread" this Sunday, October 9 at 6:30 pm in the Social Hall.

Winter Clothing Drive & Distribution

We will be hosting our first Winter Clothing Event for the season next Saturday, Oct 15, 10 am-12 pm. Please spread the word as we want everyone to feel welcome. We will continue to accept clean "like-new" jackets, snow pants, boots, hats and mittens to add to this event and for the event we will be hosting on November 19. Donations can be dropped off at the side entry of the church. If you would like to make a monetary donation, we would like to purchase some snow pants in various sizes for our event. Snow pants seem to be something the kids wear out, so we don't see many donations of these needed items.

Cinnamon Roll Fundraiser

Join us after Mass on Sunday, October 16 for fresh delicious cinnamon rolls! Free Will Donations accepted. What will the donations be used for? Our Faith Formation program purchased new Bibles this year so we thought serving delicious cinnamon rolls with an opportunity for people to donate to offset the expense of the Bibles would be a win/win!

Family Faith Formation

We meet next on Wednesday, October 26 at 6 pm.

Join Us Studying The Great Adventure Bible Timeline

We meet next on Wednesday, October 26. We start with dinner at 6 pm, followed by classes at 6:30 pm. If you would like more information about the program, contact Cindy in the parish office at 218-226-3100.

From the Desk of Father Steve: Burial and Cremation, Part III

In the last two bulletin articles, I have been discussing our faith's teaching regarding the proper care and final disposition of the bodies of the faithful who have passed away. I began by reiterating the Catholic Church's preference that the bodies of the Christian faithful who have died remain intact and be buried in sacred ground. I also discussed how the practice of cremation, while not the preferred choice of the Church, is permitted by the Church. However, such permission to cremate the bodies of the deceased members of the Christian faithful depend upon certain conditions being in place. Last week, I spoke about how in her official teaching, the Catholic Church has stated that the cremated remains of the Christian faithful are to be buried in sacred ground which has been set aside for this purpose, i.e., a cemetery. Referring back to the Church's teaching on burial and cremation that we have recently received from the Congregation of the Doctrine of the Faith (CDF) in Rome, the reason for the necessity of burying cremated remains in a cemetery are to ensure that the faithfully departed "are not excluded from the prayers and remembrance of their family or the Christian community. It prevents the faithful departed from being forgotten, or their remains from being shown a lack of respect, which eventuality is possible, most especially once the immediately subsequent generation has too passed away. Also it prevents any unfitting or superstitious practices."

The CDF then addresses several practices that have become popular in secular society but which are at odds with what we believe as Catholics and, therefore, must be avoided. First, it is expressly prohibited for the cremated remains of a member of the faithful departed to be either separated and distributed to multiple people or places, or to be scattered. They must be kept together and buried in sacred ground. The CDF is quite clear in this respect: "In order that every appearance of pantheism, naturalism or nihilism be avoided, it is not permitted to scatter the ashes of the faithful departed in the air, on land, at sea or in some other way, nor may they be preserved in mementos, pieces of jewelry or other objects."

The CDF also states, "The conservation of the ashes of the departed in a domestic residence is not permitted." This has become more common in recent years, especially between spouses. That is, the practice has developed in which when one spouse passes away, the surviving spouse will keep the cremated remains of their deceased spouse in their possession at home until they themselves pass away, with the intention of being buried together. As much as this practice may have real sentimental motivation, it is actually not in accordance with what we as Catholics believe about death, burial and the afterlife. It is important that the entire funeral rites and prayers be offered for the soul of the Christian who has died, and when the ashes are kept until a later date, the prayers and rites offered at the cemetery are denied that soul until an unknown later date, and thus the celebration of their funeral remains incomplete. Keeping the ashes of loved ones at home also results in a significant lack of closure in a spiritual sense, as well as in a psychological and emotional sense for the surviving spouse. It is essential to remember that the most significant, most loving act that one spouse can do for their deceased spouse is to allow them to have a complete Christian burial, and to pray for their souls. This is, therefore, an encouragement from our Church to let go of practices that our society might think are important for sentimental reasons in favor of doing that which our faith in Christ teaches us is of greatest importance: praying for the dead.

I know that some of the teachings of the CDF in this regard may be challenging to us, especially because the death of a loved one is such a source of grief and pain. But it is of the greatest importance that in that pain, we cling most heartily not to that which the world says will bring us peace, but what God has revealed will bring us His peace which is beyond all understanding. I close with a brief story from the life of St. Monica, the mother of St. Augustine.

St. Monica became ill while she and St. Augustine and his brother were traveling in a foreign country. St. Augustine describes her final moments before death, and her attitude encapsulates how the Christian should view death. "The day was now approaching when my mother Monica would depart from this life. We were overwhelmed with grief, but she held her gaze steadily upon us, and spoke further: 'Here you shall bury your mother.' I remained silent as I held back my tears. However, my brother haltingly expressed his hope that she might not die in a strange country but in her own land, since her end would be happier there. When she heard this, her face was filled with anxiety, and she reproached him with a glance because he had entertained such earthly thoughts. Thereupon she said to both of us, "Bury my body wherever you will. One thing only I ask you, that you remember me at the altar of the Lord wherever you may be."

God bless you! ~ Fr. Steve

Hello!

I am so thrilled to be your Parish Life Coordinator at Holy Spirit! Since moving to Two Harbors two years ago, I have learned how special this parish community is and I feel so blessed to be a part of it.

My husband Nick and I grew up in the suburbs of Milwaukee. We met in high school and began dating after a few years of college. We were married two years later and have three beautiful children. Both Nick and I have a lot of siblings and whether or not to move from the Milwaukee area was a difficult decision for us to make. But after a lot of prayer, it became clear that God was calling us up here.

We moved to Two Harbors in 2020 and we have loved becoming a part of this parish community. Having come from larger communities with large parishes where it's easy to go to church on a Sunday and not know anyone, we quickly came to love Two Harbors and Holy Spirit. It didn't take long for us to notice how kind people in this church community are.

I am eager to get to know all of you and have lots of exciting ideas to bring forward. Please feel free to come to me with any interests or ideas you might have as I am still learning and would love to collaborate with my parish family.

~ Margaret
