GATHER

Youth work in teams to rescue their teammates, bringing them safely across a dangerous path. Thematically, the game corresponds to Jesus as our Savior who shields us from danger and saves us from death.

PROCLAIM

The following are the main teaching points of the Proclaim:

- Jesus' Passion began with his arrest, suffering at the hands of the authorities, and his Crucifixion.
- Jesus took on the punishment for our sins, redeeming and saving us from an eternity separated from God.
- Jesus accepted all of the pain and suffering of death for our sake. Through his Passion and Death, God proves his great love for us and the lengths he would go to bring us back to him.

BREAK

Youth pray through the Scriptural Stations of the Cross as a way to follow in Jesus' footsteps during the Passion.

SEND

Youth reflect on the empty tomb as the final note of the Passion and take a moment in their small group to process the session together.

WEEKLY CHALLENGE

Reflect on the Stations of the Cross at home. Meditate on the one that stands out to you the most.

THE FINAL BATTLE

The Passion and Death of Jesus

PREP

Collect all materials needed for the Edge Night.

The Break for this session is intended to be done as a walk around your parish grounds. Map the path you plan to walk ahead of time, including the 14 stops, one for each station. If the weather does not permit you to go outside, compile a slideshow of images representing each station to project during the activity in the main meeting space. The activity follows the Scriptural Stations of the Cross. If your parish has icons of these stations inside the church or outdoors, consider praying this prayer there. Alternatively, consider using the “Way of the Cross” pamphlets your parish uses during Lent.

The next Edge Night in this series, “Saved the Day,” includes a time of Eucharistic Adoration. Coordinate final details with your parish priest and music minister.

SETUP

Follow the Environment suggestions for the series.

Create a “chasm” down the center of your main meeting space. Use tape to outline the left and right boundaries of a “chasm” 15 feet wide. Mark the start and finish lines perpendicular to the chasm sides about 50 feet apart. If your space allows, consider making the sides of the chasm slightly zig-zag, rather than straight.

Test all audio-visual elements of the Edge Night.

Project the environment image and play the “ES - Unsuspecting Hero” Spotify playlist as the youth enter.

COMING SOON

The next Edge Night in this series, “Saved the Day,” includes a time of Eucharistic Adoration. Coordinate final details with your parish priest and music minister.

THE FINAL BATTLE

The Passion and Death of Jesus

GATHER

Introduction

Welcome the youth and introduce those who are there for the first time. Invite the preselected core member to begin in prayer. Give a brief overview of the Edge Night topic, using the following as an example:

The most epic part of superhero stories is when they finally face their nemesis. The head-to-head battle that ensues is momentous: Will good triumph over evil? In these fights, we often see the hero pushed to their limits, down and out, with no strength left. It appears for a moment that the villain has won. This is how the disciples and followers of Jesus saw his Death — the hero he was supposed to be was overcome by death. However, Jesus' Death was not his defeat, and it ultimately laid the path for our salvation and freedom.

The Harrowing of Sheol (20 min)

Divide the youth into three equal teams. Each team must protect three blindfolded members as they walk through a chasm while the other two teams try to hit the blindfolded members with dodgeballs. If a blindfolded player is hit by a dodgeball, they must return to the start line with at least one teammate.

The team members who are not blindfolded may freely deflect dodgeballs with their hands and arms. If they are hit in the torso or legs, they must stop where they are for three seconds before moving again, counting the seconds out loud. They may also throw the dodgeballs back at the throwing teams.

If a player on a throwing team is hit, they must sit down and stop throwing dodgeballs for five seconds, counting the seconds out loud. Players may retrieve dodgeballs, but they cannot throw them until they are standing on their side of the chasm again.

Place the two throwing teams on either side of the chasm. Line up the dodgeballs along the tape lines. Provide three blindfolds or bandanas to the first team passing through the chasm.

On “go,” begin a timer. Stop the timer when the crossing team gets all of its members from the start to the finish. Play three rounds so that each team gets the chance to pass through the chasm. The team with the shortest time wins!

Suggestion

Play thrilling cinematic music during the game.

Step It Up

Place stacks of cardboard boxes or tables on their side to create the walls of the chasm. Use stage platforms to elevate the throwing teams.

Alternate Gather

For smaller groups, consider playing Save the Civilians. Divide into two groups. Select one person from a team to be the first “hero.” The rest of that team, the “hostages,” stand in a large circle in hula hoops, as spread out as your space allows. The hero stands in the center of the hostages within an eight-foot diameter circle with dodgeballs. The hero’s job is to toss dodgeballs to the hostages without them being deflected by the opposing team of “villains” standing between the hero and the hostages. Villains may not throw dodgeballs and should be discouraged from “puppy guarding” the hostages. If a hostage catches a dodgeball, they may leave their hula hoop and join the hero, tossing dodgeballs to their other teammates. Time two-minute rounds, swapping the two teams and the starting hero between each round.

PROCLAIM

“The Final Battle” Teaching (10 min)

Victory?

Share with the youth a one-to-two minute clip of your favorite (appropriate) final battle scene from a movie. This clip should show the heroic actions of one of the main characters. Share with the youth why you like this clip. Write your thoughts here:

- Most epic movies have a character who sacrifices something for the good of others.
- This storyline is so popular because it speaks to a deep reality that we are made for something great, and we are made by someone great.
- But for us as Christians, this type of heroic epic battle and courageous character is not something that is reserved only for movies or books; it is our reality.
- Our Savior, Jesus, laid down his life to save us. The events of Jesus’ Passion detail just how much he went through to bring about our salvation.
- This culmination of what Jesus came to accomplish began with his arrest by the Jewish authorities. In the middle of the night, they came and arrested him in secret and put him on trial late into the night. (Mark 14:53-64, Luke 22:52-53)
- Even though there was no evidence to convict Jesus, they brought him to Pilate, the Roman authority in Jerusalem, who was the only one with the power to put Jesus to death.
- Pilate attempted to appease the crowd by having Jesus publicly beaten, but they insisted on his Crucifixion.
- If Jesus’ followers believed he was truly the Messiah, this is not how they thought things would go. How could Jesus save them if he were tortured and died a criminal’s death?
- Jesus’ Passion does save us, just not in the way his followers thought it would.

Going Deeper

Read and discuss the following quote. “Jesus’ violent Death was not the result of change in an unfortunate coincidence of circumstances, but is part of the mystery of God’s plan.” Share with the youth the connection between Jesus and the sacrificial lamb in the Old Testament, and how his blood is now the blood of the New Covenant. God had a plan from the very beginning to bring us back to him. (CCC 599)

Saving Grace

- From the beginning of time, after the fall of Adam and Eve, God promised to save us from our sin. (Genesis 3:15)
- The entire Old Testament outlines how God formed a people to be his own, but they kept on sinning and breaking their covenants with God. Finally, God sent his own Son to fulfill his promises to his people to set them free from sin. (CCC 602)
- We could not redeem ourselves, as history had shown time and again. But only by the power and grace of God could our salvation be accomplished. By his Passion and Death, Jesus took on all the consequences of sin and all the consequences of the broken covenants and overcame them all.
- Jesus' Death "restores [us] to communion with God by reconciling [us] to God through the 'blood of the covenant, which was poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins.'" (CCC 613)
- God shows us that his plan was a plan of love – a love that would go to any end, even death, to save us.
- This ultimate sacrifice would be more understandable if, like in our hero's story, we were innocent bystanders captured by the evil villain. However, in the case of sin, we turn our backs on God, rejecting his goodness and willingly submit ourselves to lesser things. Even then, God does not reject us.

Project and read Romans 5:6-8.

- God did not wait for us to "get it right" to save us. He suffered greatly so that we might be saved even while we were still separated from him. Through Jesus' sacrifice, he brought us back to him.
- We do not have to do anything to earn God's love or to earn this gift of salvation; it is freely given to all of us.

He Saved You

- Jesus suffered and died for all of humanity, but that also means that he did this all specifically for you. Jesus freely gave his life for you because he loves you. Jesus freely gave his life for you so you could experience new life now and for eternity. "Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." (John 15:13)
- Jesus knows your struggles, sufferings, and sins, and he loves you and died for you to set you free. He wants you to know him, to love him, and to follow him, for in him is the fullness of life. (John 10:10)
- Jesus "knew and loved us all when he offered his life." (CCC 616, Galatians 2:20, Ephesians 5:2)
- He knew you, and he loved you, when he died on the cross. In his death, he shows you the lengths he is willing to go to for you.

End the Proclaim by projecting an image of Jesus on the Cross.

BREAK

Stations of the Cross (35 min)

Bring the youth outside to the first stop on your preplanned path. Introduce the Stations of the Cross, using the following as an example:

The Stations of the Cross is a prayer that commemorates the Passion of Jesus and the painful path he walked to the Cross. Praying the Stations of the Cross helps us remember the weight of Jesus' sacrifice, allowing us to reflect on the actions leading up to his Death and challenging us to see the Passion as an act of love.

Pass out a copy of the "Scriptural Stations of the Cross" to each youth. Invite them to read along and respond at the appropriate times.

Suggestion

Consider putting on a "Living Stations" by assigning one or two stations to each small group. With their small group members, they create a tableau image of the station for others to look at while the meditation is read aloud.

Step It Up

Place a bowl of two-inch stones at each stop along your path. After each station is prayed, have the youth pick up one rock to place in a bag that they carry, signifying the weight Jesus carried on the road to Calvary.

SEND

The Fifteenth Station (10 min)

Gather back in the main meeting space, and invite the youth to sit down. Invite them to take a quiet moment to reflect on what they just experienced in the Stations of the Cross.

After a few moments, walk them through the next reflection, using the following as an example:

The week that began with Jesus' triumphant entry into Jerusalem ended with his being laid in the tomb. However, that is not the end of the story. Jesus did not remain in the grave.

Project an image of the empty tomb.

We will expand more on this in the next session, but we can still look ahead and remember that Jesus is victorious over death. Just as it was not the last word for him, it is not the last word for us either. The final word of this great battle is one of love that conquers the grave — Jesus' infinite love for you.

Invite the youth to gather in their small groups to process the session. Consider using the following questions to prompt discussion:

- What stood out to you the most from the Stations of the Cross?
- What feelings did you experience as we prayed through them?
- What do you want to remember the most from this experience?

Step It Up

While the youth are outside the main meeting space for the Break, set up an “empty tomb” with large fake rocks, greenery, and loose white fabric to represent the burial garments.

Weekly Challenge

Invite the preselected core members to present the Weekly Challenge and Closing Prayer.

Reflect on the Stations of the Cross at home. Meditate on the one that stands out to you the most.

Dismiss the core members preassigned to parking lot safety.

Make announcements related to your program.
