The Fullness of Your Talents
My father said that a year in which a person learns nothing is a year wasted. Knowledge of any kind is useful and absolutely necessary, but there is something bigger, something greater—great as the horizon and so incredible that no words can encompass it. It is the study of the spiritual life, or spiritual things, which is the crown of all knowledge and of all natural learning.
One must always remember that grace works on nature. The diet of pietistic spirituality that we used to have disrupted this order and did not allow grace to work to the fullness of its depth.
In my estimation, there is nothing secular in the world, for the world has been created by God—touched by God—and so is sacred. Our ancestors used to divide it into the sacred and the profane. But I cannot imagine anything created by God as being profane. Therefore, I repeat, all things are sacred to me.
My passionate desire is for you to develop to the fullness of your capacity and talents. These talents may be latent and you may have to dig for them, but you must overcome every difficulty to develop them. It is worth everything to enlarge your natural horizons so as to allow the supernatural ones to have room to grow and expand. In other words, to give Christ room, not only to grow to his full stature in you, but to have a place within you to roam as he may wish, a place for him to breathe and stretch.
Catherine de Hueck Doherty, Grace in Every Season
Catherine de Hueck Doherty (1896–1985) was a Russian-born aristocrat who dedicated her life to “the gospel without compromise.” Author of numerous books, she established the Madonna House in Combermere, Ontario.

La Plenitud de Tus Talentos
Mi padre decía que un año en el que una persona aprende nada es un año perdido. El conocimiento de cualquier tipo es útil y absolutamente necesario, pero hay algo más grande, algo más grande, tan grande como el horizonte y tan increíble que ninguna palabra puede abarcarlo. Es el estudio de la vida espiritual, o las cosas espirituales, que es la corona de todo conocimiento y de todo aprendizaje natural.
Siempre hay que recordar que la gracia obra en la naturaleza. La dieta de la espiritualidad pietista que solíamos haber interrumpido este orden y no permitió que la gracia obtuviera la plenitud de su profundidad.
En mi opinión, no hay nada secular en el mundo, porque el mundo ha sido creado por Dios, tocado por Dios, y por eso es sagrado. Nuestros antepasados solían dividirlo en sagrado y profano. Pero no puedo imaginarme nada creado por Dios como profano. Por eso, repito, todas las cosas son sagradas para mí.
Mi deseo apasionado es que se desarrolle al máximo de su capacidad y talento. Estos talentos pueden estar latentes y es posible que tenga que buscarlos, pero debe superar todas las dificultades para desarrollarlos. Vale la pena todo para ampliar tus horizontes naturales para que los sobrenaturales tengan espacio para crecer y expandirse. En otras palabras, para darle espacio a Cristo, no solo para que crezca a su estatura completa en ti, sino para tener un lugar dentro de ti para vagar como él desee, un lugar para que él respire y se estire.
Catherine de Hueck Doherty, Grace in Every Season
Catherine de Hueck Doherty (1896–1985) fue una aristócrata nacida en Rusia que dedicó su vida al "evangelio sin concesiones". Autora de numerosos libros, estableció Madonna House en Combermere, Ontario.
