Catechesis of the Good Shepherd is a religious program for K-5th grade students.

Catechesis of the Good Shepherd

Our Catechesis of the Good Shepherd classes participated in the beautiful Celebration of the Liturgy of Light recently. Resurrection is such a great mystery that a celebration is required if we are to really begin to grasp its meaning. The Church enters the season of Easter with the Liturgy of Light at Easter Vigil. In the atrium, the children process and listened to reading and Psalms. Students came forward when they heard their name called and received the Light of Christ. They all were in awe of the darkened room and the glow of the Paschal candle and now a lit candle in front of them. The Wonder they felt, this new feeling of exultation. Imagine the glow of 26 the small candles, the happiness on each child's face, the heart of Jesus was present in our atrium. Now they are gearing up for Sunday May 6th at 2pm when these students come to the Altar of God to receive their First Holy Communion, a pinnacle of a child's faith driven religious life.

Q. "...nowhere does the Council [Vatican Council II] call for the priest to turn around and face the people rather than face God." So since God is everywhere, no matter in which direction the priest faces, he is facing God. (Part 1)

A. Jesus is physically present in the tabernacle of the church. He is not physically present in the pews. He is not physically present in the narthex. He is not physically present in the sacristy. He is physically present in the tabernacle, and only in the tabernacle (except, of course, from the moment of the consecration until the time the Blessed Sacrament is again reposed in the tabernacle). Given that fact, it can rightly be said that the priest can indeed "face the people rather than face God," when the context is the physical presence of God vs. the physical presence of the people, which is the context within which I was writing. So, the fact of the matter is, the priest is facing the people rather than facing God for most of the Mass. The Mass is our principal act of worship. It is an act that takes place between the people and their God, not between the people and their priest. The people are led in this act of worship of their God by the priest. Now, there are those who say that in the Traditional Latin Mass (TLM) the priest celebrated "with his back to the people." But, if the priest is leading the worship, and not the object of the worship, then doesn't it make more sense that he face the object of worship rather than face those doing the worshipping? When the priest was facing the tabernacle, he no more had his "back to the people" than the person in the pew in front of you has his back to you. All, priest and people alike, were facing God, the object of the worship. So, it seems to be a bit misleading to say that in the TLM the priest had his back to the people. He was, rather, simply facing in the same direction as the people, so as to lead the people in the worship of God. Some will argue that having the priest face the people emphasizes the communal aspect of "the meal" we are celebrating. I understand that as far as it goes, but the fact of the matter is, the Mass is first and foremost a sacrifice, not a meal. That's why we have an altar, not a dining room table. And, as Cardinal Ratzinger once wrote, before becoming Pope, "the Eucharist that Christians celebrate really cannot adequately be described by the term 'meal'." The point of all of this? In order to fully appreciate what exactly it is we are participating in whenever we attend the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. For any questions, or about future apologetics classes, call/text Barbara Furnari @ 816-878-2838, FurnariFlock@aol.com
