CHURCH OF THE HOLY FAMILY BEREAVEMENT SUPPORT GROUP

"Too often, we underestimate the power of a touch, a smile, a kind word, a listening ear, an honest compliment, or the smallest act of caring, all of which have the potential to turn a life around."

~ Leo Buscaglia

Grief is the conflicting feelings caused by a change or an end in a familiar pattern or behavior; it is the normal and natural reaction to loss. Our Bereavement Support Group meets Tuesdays at 2:00 p.m. in the Parish Library. If you, or someone you know is grieving, please join us. These meetings will be confidential and held in a safe environment.

RCIA

RCIA is short for the "Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults." RCIA is the normative process where those who are interested in the Catholic Church have a time of discernment about a possible call to full participation in the Catholic faith.

RCIA is open to:

- Those adults who have not been baptized and are spiritually looking
- Those adults who have been baptized in a recognized non-Catholic Christian tradition
- Those adults who were baptized Catholic, but have not celebrated Eucharist and Communion.

Participating in RCIA does not mean that you have to become Catholic, but it does help you discern as to whether God is calling you to join the Catholic Church.

Please contact the Parish Office at 757-481-5702 if you are interested in learning more.

SPIRITUAL COMMUNION PRAYER:

My Jesus, I believe that You are truly present in the Most Blessed Sacrament. I love You above all things, and I desire to receive You within my soul. Since I am unable at this moment to receive You sacramentally, come at least spiritually into my heart. I embrace You as if You were already there, and unite myself wholly to You. Never permit me to be separated from You. Amen.

CREATION CARE CORNER:

Gas plants, our source for heating, cooling, and other household uses, are vulnerable to a range of extreme weather events, including heat waves, cold snaps, and droughts. The most catastrophic failures occur in the winter. Federal officials have identified five winter storms over the past decade that threatened grid reliability, which controls the flow of gas to our homes.

There are two main causes for gas plants being forced to reduce their generation or shut down entirely. The first is when gas plants themselves fail, usually when equipment fails in freezing temperatures. The second cause is fuel supply problems, which arise when transportation and production disruptions prevent gas plants from getting enough fuel, like when freezing temperatures affect gas production wells.

Such issues have led to widespread gas plant failures, with rolling blackouts on numerous occasions.

The most devastating instance took place in 2021 when Winter Storm Uri hit the central U.S. At its worst point, the storm knocked nearly a quarter of the affected area's power plant capacity offline. All told, more than 4.5 million customers in Texas lost power, some as long as 4 days. Hypothermia caused roughly two-thirds of the 246 deaths in Texas attributed to Uri.

Utilities can bolster grid reliability by pursuing clean energy solutions on both the supply and the demand sides.

Supply-side solutions, such as renewables, energy storage, and transmission, can be effective at improving grid reliability.

Demand-side solutions, including energy efficiency, flexible demand, and distributed energy resources, can reduce the need for electricity at times when the need usually increases dramatically, such as for air conditioning during heat waves and heating during cold snaps.

Pursuing clean energy solutions instead of fossil fuels reduces not only global warming emissions, but also toxic air pollutants that harm public health, particularly in poorer communities, where gas plants are disproportionately located. Further, demand-side solutions can reduce the need for new infrastructure and diminish the land-use impacts that come with large-scale projects.

The recommendation is that grid planners, regulators, and policymakers must update the U.S. energy system with solutions that reduce reliance on gas plants, bolster grid reliability, and mitigate the impacts of climate change.

Granted, this article does not suggest actions we can take as individuals, but its information does emphasize the danger and unreliability of the fossil fuel, natural gas.

This article was adapted from the article, "The Problem: Gas Plant Failures in Extreme Weather," written by Paul Arbaje and Mark Specht, published on January 9, 2024, on the Union of Concerned Scientists email.
