DISCIPLESHIP DIGEST with desi

Today, on World Marriage Day, we celebrate the sacred vocation of marriage; the call for husbands and wives to love as Christ loves. Marriage is an adventure, full of both peaceful waters and stormy seas, each rooted in faith.

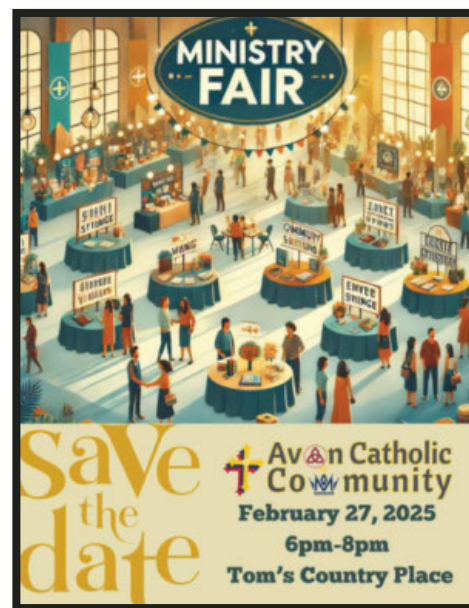

My husband, Matt, is a fisherman—one who knows both the patience and persistence required to wait for a catch. He even proposed to me at a special fishing lake, a place where we had shared so many moments of reflection and joy. Just like fishing, marriage calls for trust: sometimes casting out into unknown waters, believing that even in moments of uncertainty, God is at work beneath the surface.

In today's Gospel, we hear about Simon Peter, exhausted from a long, unfruitful night of fishing. When Jesus tells him to lower his nets once more, Peter hesitates, but obeys—and what follows is an overwhelming catch, far beyond what he imagined. This is the essence of marriage: trusting in Christ, and allowing Him to fill our lives beyond what we imagine.

As we honor World Marriage Day, we also recognize those who support and strengthen the vocation of marriage in our community. Avon Catholic's marriage ministry team, led by parishioners, Chris Kelley and his wife, Alex, have walked alongside engaged couples preparing for the sacrament of marriage. A goal for 2025 is to offer additional fellowship opportunities for married couples of our parishes. They will be at our Ministry Fair on February 27th, offering resources and opportunities to grow in faith together. I encourage you to introduce yourself to the Kelley's and learn more about this ministry.
