*"Righteous Father, the world also does not know you,
but I know you, and they know that you sent me.
I made known to them your name and I will make it known, that the love with which you loved me
may be in them and I in them."*

Dear Friends,

Love is sufficient of itself, it gives pleasure by itself and because of itself, it is its own merit, its own reward. Love looks for no cause outside itself, no effect beyond itself. Its profit lies in its practice. I love because I love ... I love that I may love. Love is a great thing so long as it continually returns to its fountainhead, flows back to its source, always drawing from there the water which constantly replenishes it. For when God loves, all He desires is to be loved in return. The soul purpose of His love is to be loved, in the knowledge that those who love Him are made happy by their love of Him.

These words come to us from our cathedral patron, St. Bernard of Clairvaux, whose solemnity we celebrate here at the cathedral this weekend. Liturgical law allows for the weekend celebration of the parish church's patron with due solemnity and reverence.

This weekend, we rejoice in the spiritual richness and wisdom of St. Bernard and offer prayers of thanksgiving for his unceasing intercession before the throne of God as we continue to move through the elevation project. May our prayers be one with his as we join in thanksgiving to the Lord for all that has been accomplished, and for all that is yet to come.

Beautiful description of love

St. Bernard's description of love is most fitting and beautiful, and imitates the words of St. Paul, when he says that love "believes all things, hopes all things, and endures all things." If there is ever a question of whether or not our love is genuine or superficial, St. Bernard gives us a short equation in this reflection to help us discern: does the act of love we bring forth "return to its fountainhead" - namely God, who is love itself. Is the love we are bringing forth being drawn from the fountain of salvation that flowed from the precious wounds of Christ, or is the act more inwardly focused and reliant upon the self.

St. Paul also reminds us that "love does not seek its own interests"; it is entirely other. Love's motivation has nothing to do with us; it has everything to do with someone else. What are we willing to sacrifice of ourselves for the goodness of another person? That is what we must always be asking ourselves to ensure that the love which comes from our heart is authentic and genuine.

St. Bernard also reminds us that love is a constantly flowing fountain. As God's love is poured into us, we pour it out in acts of sacrificial service to our brothers and sisters, and as love is poured out, it is replenished again - "always drawing from there the water which constantly replenishes it."

Proper love is constantly regenerating itself within us as we draw near the fountain of Christ's mercy. The more love we give away, the more that God pours into our hearts. That is the central mission of the Christian life, friends, and everything hinges on our understanding of and exercise of true, Christ-like love.

Dates for raising the bells

I wanted to provide a brief update on the raising of the bells into the bell tower, which is now scheduled for Wednesday, September 3rd and Thursday, September 4th (Wednesday is the primary day and Thursday, the alternate). These dates are, of course, largely dependent on the weather conditions, but our hope is that we'll be able to make one of these two days work. Because of strict OCEA requirements, there will be close monitoring of personnel that are on campus for the lifting. Due to several pieces of heavy equipment and the potential swing hazards, we have to ensure that we're observing all safety protocols and keeping extraneous personnel to a minimum.

This will be a media event, and members of the media will be present, but from a distance. I want to ensure that as many of you have an opportunity to see this historic part of the project in person as possible.

I'm currently making arrangements to have these events broadcast live on our Facebook page. That way, you can join in the excitement from the comfort (and safety) of your home or workplace. I'll provide additional information to you in next weekend's bulletin on how to take advantage of the live stream opportunity.

A peek behind the scenes

This past Wednesday, I had the opportunity to visit the metalware factory in Illinois that is casing all of our new metalware for the cathedral. A few photos are attached of our candlesticks in the midst of production. It's quite the facility! I also visited our plasterers, who were gracious to show me the inner workings of their

LIVES OF THE SAINTS

August 27, 2025

The following information is reprinted with permission from www.catholicculture.org:

St. Monica

St. Monica is an example of those holy matrons of the ancient Church who proved very influential in their own quiet way. Through prayer and tears she gave the great Augustine to the Church of God, and thereby earned for herself a place of honor in the history of God's kingdom on earth.

The Confessions of St. Augustine provide certain biographical details. Born of Christian parents about the year 331 at Tagaste in Africa, Monica was reared under the strict supervision of an elderly nurse who had likewise reared her father. In the course of time she was given in marriage to a pagan named Patricius. Besides other faults, he possessed a very irascible nature; it was in this school of suffering that Monica learned patience. It was her custom to wait until his anger had cooled; only then did she give a kindly remonstrance.

Evil-minded servants had prejudiced her mother-in-law against her, but Monica mastered the situation by kindness and sympathy.

Conversions through prayers and tears

Her marriage was blessed with three children: Navigius, Perpetua, who later became a nun, and Augustine, her problem child. According to the custom of the day, baptism was not administered to infants soon after birth. It was as an adolescent that Augustine became a catechumen, but possibly through a premonition of his future sinful life, Monica postponed his baptism even when her son desired it during a severe illness. When Augustine was 19 years old, his father Patricius died; by patience and prayer Monica had obtained the conversion of her husband.

The youthful Augustine caused his mother untold worry by indulging in every type of sin and dissipation. As a last resort after all her tears and entreaties had proved fruitless, she forbade him entrance to her home; but after a vision she received him back again. In her sorrow a certain bishop consoled her: "Don't worry, it is impossible that a son of so many tears should be lost."

Tears of joy at last

When Augustine was planning his journey to Rome, Monica wished to accompany him. He outwitted her, however, and had already embarked when she arrived at the docks. Later she followed him to Milan, ever growing in her attachment to God. St. Ambrose held her in high esteem, and congratulated Augustine on having such a mother. At Milan she prepared the way for her son's conversion. Finally the moment came when her tears of sorrow changed to tears of joy. Augustine was baptized. And her lifework was completed. She died in her 56th year, as she was returning to Africa. The description of her death is one of the most beautiful passages in her son's famous Confessions.
