Word of Life

22nd Sunday in Ordinary Time: Humility

“For everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, but the one who humbles himself will be exalted.”

(Lk 14:11)

Humility has never been an easy virtue to put into practice. However, the saints teach us, through their lives and their writings, that without humility holiness is not possible. But there are many levels of humility. One level helps us to recognize ourselves just as we are and to accept the truth of the corrections that others make about us, even when others knowing our defects hurts us. There is the humility of our accepting the mystery of God’s will for our lives, despite our not understanding why the Lord allows some misfortunes to happen. Then, there is the humility of our needing to ask for help when we are unable to do as much as we would like, due to poor health or time constraints. There is the humility of our not expecting to be applauded or thanked, even though it may be deserved. There is also the humility of our enduring injustice and calumny, as long as we are the ones harmed and not the others. And finally, though the list could go on, there is the humility of our willingness to risk failure to fulfill God’s will instead of waiting for others to act.

But something is missing without which it becomes not only difficult but impossible to live out this humility. What is lacking is our love for the humility of Christ. For Him and to be like Him, we must accept everything that God wants or allows to happen in our lives. For Him and with Him, we can do nothing without His help. For Him and like Mary, our great example of humility who teaches us how to do God’s will with simplicity, we do not attribute importance to ourselves but accept the mystery that “God can write straight even with crooked lines.”

ASPIRATIONS: Accept God’s plans, even though you do not understand them. Accept critiques. Work so that God may be loved, even if it is not noticed or acknowledged by others.

Fr. Santiago Martin

Founder & President of the Franciscans of Mary

Palabra de Vida

Domingo XXII: Humildad

“Todo el que se enaltece será humillado y el que se humilla será enaltecido”. (Lc 14,11).

La humildad no ha sido nunca una virtud de fácil aplicación. Sin embargo, todos los santos enseñan, con su vida y sus escritos, que sin ella no hay santidad posible. Pero hay muchos grados en la humildad. Está aquella que nos ayuda a reconocernos como somos, a aceptar la verdad de las correcciones que nos hacen los demás, aunque nos duela que nuestros defectos sean conocidos por los otros. Está la humildad de quienes asumen el misterio de la voluntad de Dios para sus vidas a pesar de que no entienden por qué el Señor permite ciertas cosas, ciertas desgracias. Está la humildad de los que quisieran hacer más de lo que hacen pero se ven imposibilitados por sus malas condiciones de salud o de tiempo, e incluso se ven forzados a pedir ayuda. Está la humildad del que trabaja sin esperar un aplauso o una muestra de agradecimiento, aunque la tenga más que merecida. Está también la humildad del que soporta la injusticia y la calumnia, siempre que sea él y no otro el perjudicado. Y, para poner fin a una serie que sería interminable, está la humildad del que no le importa correr el riesgo de fracasar y hacer el ridículo para hacer la voluntad de Dios, en lugar de quedarse a la expectativa esperando que sean otros los que resuelvan los problemas.

Pero, para vivir esa humildad, hace falta algo, sin lo cual resulta no sólo difícil sino imposible. Hace falta estar enamorado del Cristo humilde y, por Él y para ser como Él, asumir todo lo que Dios quiere o permite que ocurra en nuestra propia vida. Por Él, pero también con Él, pues sin su ayuda no podemos hacer nada. Por Él y como María, la gran maestra de la humildad, la que nos enseña a hacer la voluntad de Dios con sencillez, sin darnos importancia y aceptando el misterio de los renglones torcidos de Dios.

Propósito: Aceptar los planes de Dios, aunque no los entendamos. Aceptar las críticas y trabajar para que Dios sea amado, aunque no nos lo reconozcan.

P. Santiago Martín

Fundador & Presidente de los Franciscanos de María
