Fourth Sunday of Lent

By this time, we should be walking in our conversion. It is not easy to leave behind the habits, customs, sins, and temptations that we may have carried for years, even knowing that they harm our spiritual life and our relationship with God, ourselves, and those around us. It is difficult because, on many occasions, they have already become part of our lives and have taken deep root. We may even believe they are part of our very being, even if they are not. Probably in the past we have made Lenten attempts to leave behind that evil ballast. However, they remained only that failed attempts and intentions perhaps due to a lack of conviction or awareness, postponing these changes for later, lack of will, or believing that we will not be able to do it.

Life goes on, and we need to convince ourselves that with God we can change and become new people. Let us remember in the Bible the conversion of Zacchaeus, who left everything to live as Jesus teaches; the adulterous woman (whom many identify with Mary Magdalene), who with love and dedication believed in and followed Christ; and the centurion, whose faith in Jesus restored health to his servant. Not to mention a multitude of saints who even persecuted Him at first. Remember St. Paul, who went from persecutor to persecuted. After a sincere encounter with Jesus, they turned to Him and lived holy lives. Consider St. Augustine of Hippo, who, in search of the truth, immersed himself in philosophy, law, and sin, causing great suffering to his mother, St. Monica. She spent years praying to God for the conversion of her son, which she eventually saw fulfilled. In the end, St. Augustine became a model of what a Christian should be.

We can also remember St. Francis of Assisi, who left material comforts and fame to humbly serve our Lord; and St. Ignatius of Loyola, who left behind arms and riches to become a soldier of Christ. These are just a few examples of conversion. They lived their Lent perhaps in ways more difficult than ours, yet they managed to please the Lord in such a way that those who knew them saw in them the way of salvation for their souls.

If they could do it, so can we. We need the conviction, the will, and the discipline to let go of the chains that do not allow us to be true Christians. Precisely this season of Lent invites us to draw closer to God through numerous practices such as fasting, prayer, works of charity, and the sacraments. Fasting disciplines us. You may say, "But I am sick," yet there are other ways to fast for example, limiting the use of the phone or television, abstaining from dessert, dedicating time to reading about Christian topics, being kind, and avoiding gossip. Prayer strengthens the soul against temptation and brings us closer to God. It strengthens the will, encourages the spirit, and deepens our relationship with Him. It allows us to see not only our own needs but also those of our loved ones. It also makes us more aware of human suffering and calls us to solidarity with others. Works of charity teach us to detach ourselves from material selfishness and to be empathetic with those who have less and with those who suffer the most. With our small contribution, we can help alleviate human poverty both material and spiritual and recognize the suffering of Christ in others.

Finally, the sacraments connect us with God, from whom we receive forgiveness, grace, sanctification, and spiritual maturity. These are just a few ideas that can help us practice and live Lent while purifying the soul.

Rev. Manuel Padilla

Cuarto domingo de Cuaresma

Para este tiempo, deberíamos estar caminando en nuestra conversión. No es fácil dejar atrás los hábitos, costumbres, pecados y tentaciones que quizá hemos llevado durante años, aun sabiendo que dañan nuestra vida espiritual y nuestra relación con Dios, con nosotros mismos y con quienes nos rodean. Es difícil porque, en muchas ocasiones, ya se han vuelto parte de nuestras vidas y han echado raíces profundas. Incluso podemos llegar a creer que son parte de nuestro propio ser, aunque no lo sean. Probablemente en el pasado hemos hecho intentos cuaresmales de dejar atrás ese lastre del mal. Sin embargo, se quedaron solo en eso intentos e intenciones fallidas quizá por falta de convicción o de conciencia, por posponer estos cambios para después, por falta de voluntad, o por creer que no podremos hacerlo.

La vida continúa, y necesitamos convencernos de que con Dios podemos cambiar y convertirnos en personas nuevas. Recordemos en la Biblia la conversión de Zaqueo, quien dejó todo para vivir como Jesús enseña; la mujer adúltera (a quien muchos identifican con María Magdalena), que con amor y dedicación creyó en Cristo y lo siguió; y el centurión, cuya fe en Jesús devolvió la salud a su siervo. Sin mencionar a una multitud de santos que incluso lo persiguieron al principio. Recordemos a San Pablo, que pasó de perseguidor a perseguido. Después de un encuentro sincero con Jesús, se volvieron hacia Él y vivieron vidas santas. Pensemos en San Agustín de Hipona, quien, en busca de la verdad, se sumergió en la filosofía, el derecho y el pecado, causando gran sufrimiento a su madre, Santa Mónica. Ella pasó años orando a Dios por la conversión de su hijo, la cual finalmente vio cumplida. Al final, San Agustín se convirtió en un modelo de lo que debe ser un cristiano.

También podemos recordar a San Francisco de Asís, quien dejó las comodidades materiales y la fama para servir humildemente a nuestro Señor; y a San Ignacio de Loyola, quien dejó atrás las armas y las riquezas para convertirse en un soldado de Cristo. Estos son solo algunos ejemplos de conversión. Ellos vivieron su Cuaresma quizá de maneras más difíciles que las nuestras, y aun así lograron agradar al Señor de tal manera que quienes los conocieron vieron en ellos el camino de salvación para sus almas.

Si ellos pudieron hacerlo, nosotros también podemos. Necesitamos la convicción, la voluntad y la disciplina para soltar las cadenas que no nos permiten ser verdaderos cristianos. Precisamente este tiempo de Cuaresma nos invita a acercarnos más a Dios mediante numerosas prácticas como el ayuno, la oración, las obras de caridad y los sacramentos. El ayuno nos disciplina. Puedes decir: "Pero estoy enfermo", sin embargo hay otras maneras de ayunar por ejemplo, limitar el uso del teléfono o de la televisión, abstenerse del postre, dedicar tiempo a leer sobre temas cristianos, ser amable y evitar el chisme. La oración fortalece el alma contra la tentación y nos acerca más a Dios. Fortalece la voluntad, anima el espíritu y profundiza nuestra relación con Él. Nos permite ver no solo nuestras propias necesidades, sino también las de nuestros seres queridos. También nos hace más conscientes del sufrimiento humano y nos llama a la solidaridad con los demás. Las obras de caridad nos enseñan a desprendernos del egoísmo material y a ser empáticos con quienes tienen menos y con quienes más sufren. Con nuestra pequeña contribución, podemos ayudar a aliviar la pobreza humana tanto material como espiritual y reconocer el sufrimiento de Cristo en los demás.

Finalmente, los sacramentos nos conectan con Dios, de quien recibimos perdón, gracia, santificación y madurez espiritual. Estas son solo algunas ideas que pueden ayudarnos a practicar y vivir la Cuaresma mientras purificamos el alma.
