

Sean Tucker to perform at Air Show

Sean Tucker, in his Challenger II, brings a solo aerobatic performance to Burke Lakefront Airport, Aug. 31-Sept. 2 for the 1-800-COLLECT

Radio show feature Arab-American views

In the 1950's, it was "Swing and Sway" to the musical refrains of Sammy Kaye. In the 1990's, radio pumps out more than music, it "rants and raves" to the likes of Howard Stern and WMJI's John Lanigan. On the other hand, Jimmy Kassouf, the "rags to riches" kid says he takes to the airwaves to inform.

Every Thursday morning at 10 a.m., Kassouf hosts his own brokered show on WERE 1300 AM. For months he has used his "60 Minutes" to target Israel and its "slaughter" of Lebanese refugees and civilians.

Kassouf charges that the killings continue with bombings though the American press seems to have gone silent on the reporting side.

Kassouf who is of Lebanese ancestry, charges that he speaks for the Arab-American community on subjects like the bombing of Lebanese civilians, Jerusalem, Gaza Strip and Golan Heights.

He further claims that the pro-Israel lobby controls the U.S. government and therefore, the White House and Congress annually give Israel $3 billion dollars plus to use as they choose.

Kassouf claims the Israel government uses the no strings attached funds to buy military weapons to control every facet of Lebanese and Palestinian lives.

The local chapter of the Anti Defamation League has criticized Kassouf for what they claim to be demonization of Jews.

Kassouf has invited the ADL Director Clifford Savren to appear on the show for his viewpoints but he has apparently declined.

Meantime, "Straight Talk" continues to stir controversy and WERE General Manager John Hill says they monitor the show very closely. The radio station like others across the nation operate with a federal (FCC) license.

Tucker, of Salinas, California performs an aerial display of extreme originality and style. His explosive aerobatic performance called "Sky Dance," subjects him to gravitational forces ranging from +9.2 G's to -7.5 G's during his routine.

The G forces exerted on Tucker when he is flying, is as great as the forces exerted on modern fighter pilots, like the U.S. Navy Blue Angels. The 350+ horsepower aircraft is an exclusively built, one-of-a-kind biplane. It is regarded as being the most high-performance biplane of its size in the world.

Because of the intensity at which Sean flies his aircraft, its engine is overhauled by Ly-Con of California of Visalia, and the wings are completely rebuilt at the end of each season. It is powered by a custom modified Lycoming AEIO-540 engine.

Tucker is one of the hottest air show performers in America today. His naturally competitive nature gained him prominence in aerobatic competition. Receiving the title of U.S. National Advanced Aerobatic Champion, he has been named "Ambassador of the Air" by the California State Legislature.

The two highest Presented in the North American air show industry are the Art School Memorial Showmanship Award and the Bill Barber award for Showmanship. In 1992, Tucker became the first air show star in history to capture both of these awards.

"I've loved the sky since I was a boy and began to skydive in high school," says Tucker.

When a close friend was involved in tragic skydiving accident, he began flying lessons as a way to stay in touch with the sky and overcome his fear.

"I still felt a residue of fear," said Tucker, "even though I loved to fly. It was only after I mastered aerobatics that the fear went away."
