Tic tac toe

Today, the Church, in her motherly tenderness, calls us to remember and pray for all the faithful departed — our brothers and sisters who have gone before us marked with the sign of faith. On All Saints' Day, we celebrated those already in heaven; today, on All Souls' Day, we turn our hearts toward those still being purified on their way there.

Jesus assures us in the Gospel, "I shall lose nothing of what the Father has given me." (Jn6:37) No one who has trusted in Him is forgotten. This is a day of mercy, love, and hope.

We commemorate the dead because love does not end at death. Death changes our relationship with our loved ones, but it doesn't destroy it.

The Church teaches that the faithful departed who died in God's friendship but still need purification can benefit from our prayers, sacrifices, and especially the Holy Mass.

The Catechism of the Catholic Church says: "From the beginning the Church has honored the memory of the dead and offered prayers in suffrage for them, above all the Eucharistic sacrifice, so that, thus purified, they may attain the beatific vision of God." (CCC 1032)

We pray for them out of faith, love, and hope:

Faith, because we believe in the Resurrection and the Communion of Saints.

- Love, because we still care for those who have died.

- Hope, because we trust in God's mercy that completes what was unfinished in them.

Just as we help our brothers and sisters on earth through prayer, so too we help those who are being purified — because love, in Christ, is stronger than death.

A little boy was lighting candles in church on All Souls' Day. Someone asked him, "For whom are you lighting all these candles?"

He said, "For my grandpa. Mom says he's with God, but still on the way."

When asked what he meant, he replied, "That's why I pray — so Grandpa's window in heaven will shine brighter!"

That child's words capture the meaning of Purgatory — souls "on the way" to heaven, being purified by God's love before seeing Him face to face.

The Catechism teaches: "All who die in God's grace and friendship, but still imperfectly purified, are indeed assured of their eternal salvation; but after death they undergo purification, so as to achieve the holiness necessary to enter the joy of heaven." (CCC 1030)

Purgatory is not God's anger — it is love's final healing.

Imagine a bride preparing to meet her beloved — she wants to be spotless. Likewise, when we stand before God's perfect love, we long to be completely purified.

Purgatory, then, is the refining fire of mercy, not punishment — a place of transformation where God's love burns away every last trace of selfishness and sin.

All Souls' Day reminds us that we belong to one great family — the Communion of Saints:

The Church Triumphant (the saints in heaven).

The Church Suffering (the souls in purgatory).

The Church Militant (us, still on earth).

The Catechism says: "Our prayer for them is capable not only of helping them, but also of making their intercession for us effective." (CCC 958)

When we offer Mass, prayers, or sacrifices for the faithful departed, we join in this holy exchange of love — what the early Christians called the "mutual assistance of the Mystical Body." The Gospel gives us the deepest reason for hope: "Whoever comes to me, I will never cast out." (John 6:37)

Our loved ones are not gone — they are with Christ, being readied to share His glory. Death is not the end but the beginning of eternal life.

We commemorate the souls of the departed because we believe that love continues, prayer helps, and mercy triumphs.

Venerable Fulton J. Sheen beautifully said: "Purgatory is not a place where God's justice is satisfied, but where His mercy is completed." Today, as we pray for the souls of the departed, may our prayers become wings of mercy lifting them into the joy of heaven.
