

Fifth Sunday of Lent March 22, 2015

La Historia y Usted: Quinto Domingo de Cuaresma Dónde vives? Pasen y vean. Con esa invitación, Jesús atrae a los primeros discípulos a sí mismo.
Han oído hablar de él, pero eso no es suficiente.
Quieren conocerlo.

Es interesante que en los tres primeros evangelios --
- llamó los sinópticos porque cuentan la historia con el mismo ojo-Jesús llama a sus discípulos lejos de sus barcos de pesca y en la vida pública con él. Pero en el evangelio de Juan, los primeros discípulos lo buscan en primer lugar. Ellos se acercan a él, y él los invita a venir y ver.

¡Qué gran mensaje de Cuaresma para nosotros. La vida espiritual a veces se ilumina con Dios "encuentros" -tiempos cuando sentimos el Espíritu Santo vive en nosotros, y nosotros con alegría responder. Esta fue la experiencia de Pedro, Santiago y Juan, cuando Jesús los encontró y los llamó.

Pero la mayor parte de nuestras vidas, que espirituales, es decir, nuestras vidas reales, se gasta la búsqueda activa de Cristo, posicionándonos para que lo encontremos en la que vive.

Así que esa es nuestra gran, búsqueda que conmueve el alma. ¿Tiene un lugar de encuentro con él, donde se encuentra el Espíritu Santo cada vez que vaya allí? Algunos amigos a encontrar a Cristo cada vez que sirven una comida a las personas sin hogar. Otros lo buscan donde vive por vivir y trabajar en los lugares más difíciles en el mundo en desarrollo.

Para mí, cualquier escuela donde los niños están a salvo y feliz es donde Cristo parece habitar en deliciosa abundancia. Pero sé que tengo que ir a verlo en las escuelas donde los niños tienen hambre, y no es seguro. Como dijo la Madre Teresa, "No es Cristo en su disfraz más angustioso."

¿Dónde vas a encontrar a Cristo en la que vive?

The Story and You: Fifth Sunday in Lent Where do you live? Come and see. With that invitation, Jesus draws the first disciples to himself.
They have heard of him, but that's not enough.
They want to know him.

It's interesting that in the earliest three gospels--- called the Synoptics because they tell the story with the same eye—Jesus calls the disciples away from their fishing boats and into public life with him. But in John's gospel the first disciples seek him first.

They approach him, and he invites them to come and see.

What a great Lenten message for us. The spiritual life is sometimes illuminated with "God encounters"—moments when we feel the Holy Spirit alive in us, and we joyfully respond. This was the experience of Peter, James and John when Jesus found them and called them.

But most of our spiritual lives—which is to say, our real lives—is spent actively seeking Christ, positioning ourselves so that we may encounter him where he lives.

So that's our great, soul-stirring quest. Do you have a place of encounter with him, where you find the Holy Spirit every time you go there? Some friends find Christ every time they serve a meal to those who are homeless. Others seek him where he lives by living and working in the most challenging places in the developing world.

For me, any school where children are safe and happy is where Christ seems to dwell in delightful abundance. But I know that I must come and see him in the schools where children are hungry, and not safe. As Mother Teresa said, "There is Christ in his most distressing disguise."

Where do you go to find Christ where he lives?

PARISH EVALUATION

For the last couple of weeks we have been asking you to complete our Parish Participation Survey. Obviously, this is something completely different for our parish, and we understand you probably have a lot of questions. In order to better assist you with this process, we will be hosting a parish meeting on Wednesday, March 25 at 7:00 pm in the church. Everyone is invited to attend. In the meantime, if you have not yet completed the Parish Participation survey, please visit the website at www.srlDenver.org and click on Links on the Homepage right under the parish photos. The survey is very brief, so please take a few moments to complete the form so that we will have accurate data to report and evaluate. Thank you so much for taking the time to participate in the survey! If you have no computer access, we do have a printed form. You can get one from Fr Jerry or at the office. We would love to have this survey completed by March 31.
