ST. AUGUSTINE'S SPOTLIGHT

MARCH 31, 2019 - FOURTH SUNDAY OF LENT

Today's gospel is one of the most well-known and loved parables – the prodigal son. We know how it goes: the greedy, selfish son takes his inheritance and squanders it in a sinful life (probably a Las Vegas equivalent), but then falls on hard times. He repentantly returns to his father willing to be a hired hand, but the father welcomes him back with celebration. Then the steadfast brother is angry over his brother's treatment.

It's a good exercise to place ourselves into each of these characters. No matter who we choose, we're stuck with some discomfort. Of course, we would never be so bad as the prodigal son, would we? But we are all sinners, and Jesus chose a particularly brazen sin to make the point of God's infinite love and mercy. We shouldn't be so quick to pat ourselves on the back for not living up to the terrible example, for we rely on the Father's mercy as much as the most terrible sinner. Then there is the oh-so-human son who always obeyed his father but failed to share in the joy of his brother's salvation. Most of us find it easy to identify with this guy because we would like to think of ourselves as the good son and having our righteous indignation. However, this son sinned against his brother and his father by wishing ill of his brother and disrespecting his father's love and mercy. Finally, and most difficultly, is the father. Clearly he represents our heavenly Father and His infinite love and mercy. How could we be him?

Because we are called to be the loving presence of God among His people. We must be merciful as He is merciful. The measure with which we measure will be used to measure us. Every time we say the Lord's Prayer we say, "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us." There are two ways to look at this. Forgive us because we forgive others or forgive us in the same way that we forgive others. Either way, we are either liars or setting ourselves up for harsh judgment if we not also infinitely merciful.

Thank you to everyone who contributed time and/or money to our CRS Helping Hands project on Saturday. If you contributed directly to CRS, I cannot thank you for your donation because they keep donations private. More important, 15,000 hungry brothers and sisters in Burkina Faso thank you.
