Ashes

"You've got dirt on your forehead."

We're likely to hear those words from thoughtful friends who display their intimate concern as well as their religious absent-mindedness when we go out in public after Mass on Ash Wednesday.

The distribution of ashes after the homily replaces the penitential act at the beginning of Mass. Instead of merely "calling to mind our sins," receive a very public reminder of our sinfulness.

"Repent and believe in the Gospel," we hear. Or, "Remember that you are dust and to dust you shall return."

But it wasn't always that way. In the early church, only public sinners wore ashes. These sinners convened regularly to prepare for their reconciliation at a parish service and they formed --- well, what we now call "support groups." As penitents, they used to wear ashes on their heads or in their clothes. Symbols to human mortality, ashes represented their complete dependence on the mercy of God. In the middle ages, the support groups dwindled but sinners remained strong in numbers. So Pope Urban II ordered up the first Ash Wednesday in 1091. Ashes were for everybody, and we've been rubbing dirt on our foreheads ever since.

Dirt is something we're constantly washing off children and ourselves. Only in church do we deliberately put dirt on the most public part of our bodies, our foreheads. Ashes are what are left in the now-cold fireplace. Ashes hear the barbecue. Ashes are all that remains of the home after the tragic fire. Ashes enrich the compost heap. Ashes of the faithful departed fill commemorative urns. Ashes represent destruction, refuse, and waste, but they hint at new life.

Long after recycling became popular, the church got into the act of Ash Wednesday. Ever wonder what happens to those palm branches left over from last Holy Week? They've been burned into ash, stuffed into bags and now await the chance to dirty your forehead on Ash Wednesday this year. The symbol of Christ's glory has become the symbol of our sin.

On Ash Wednesday, you're not just another dirty face. No, you've tossed yourself into the recycling bin of Lent, ready for the renewal this Easter.

2. Now the Vatican is inviting Catholic clergy and the Church's lay faithful to participate in a consultation survey as the Vatican prepares for the October 4 -25, 2015 continuing "Synod of Bishops" in Rome addressing the topic of, "The Vocation and Mission of the Family in the Church and Contemporary World."
