St. Patrick Mission Statement

A welcoming parish called in FAITH to know, LOVE and serve God and neighbor in the HOPE of heaven.

Dear Friends in Christ,

As we continue to operate on a summer schedule, the space for this weekly column continues to be used for moments of Church/Faith teachings/events. This week we continue our summer series on the 2nd Vatican Council. See Page 3 & 4 to discover why the Second Vatican Council was and continues to be really important.

In Christ.

Fr. Godwin.

Summer 2021 Bulletin Series Vatican II - History, Documents, Key Players & More

Why the Second Vatican Council Really Is That Important

If you put all the writings from all the councils through the centuries into one big stack, nearly a third of the pile comes from Vatican II. The bishops issued sixteen documents, with the ones called constitutions having the highest teaching authority. The documents reflect new ways of thinking applied to ancient beliefs, and they shook many people to the core. To many both outside and inside the Church, it seemed like the Council changed everything from the ground up, and in some ways it did. From a theological perspective, the Council reaffirmed the fundamental teachings of the faith while updating their presentation and practice. The bishops tried to look beyond the historically conditioned nature of many Church teachings to the basic ideas those teachings were trying to convey, then took those ideas and expressed them in light of modern understandings and ideas. The documents of Vatican II are themselves historically conditioned, and future generations of Catholics will once again need to retrieve the basic ideas presented in them and express them in ways that make sense in their own time. For now, however, these documents give us the best picture possible of who the Church is and how it sees its mission. The following are the top seven reasons why the council really is that important:

Aggiornamento: Updating the Church

This Council was all about renewal, which means restoring something to its original state. This was not an effort to make the Church look as it did in the second century but rather to get back to its roots in figuring out what was most important in its mission. The bishops attempted to show how the traditional teachings were relevant, even vital, to the modern world

Religious Freedom: Conscience Is Key

Historically, the Church had held the view that every person had a duty to be Catholic and that governments should make Catholicism the official religion; the Church had also taught a legalistic morality that revolved around doing what you were told. The bishops at Vatican II certainly did not tell people to throw Church authority out the window, but they recognized that in the end, people have a duty to develop their own consciences rather than simply following the Church's rules. In addition, governments, they said, have a duty to protect the rights of all citizens rather than trying to promote a certain set of religious beliefs. These were huge changes.

Ecumenism and Interreligious Dialogue: Talking to People with Other Beliefs

The Church had been battling other Christian believers and groups for much of its history. Through it all, the Church had seen itself as the sole bearer of truth, with other believers misled by their all-too-human pride. At Vatican II, though, the bishops acknowledged that God is not limited to working through the Catholic Church but is found working through other Christian denominations and even in other religions. Vatican II explained that while Catholic teaching gives the fullest human expression of God's truth, God's truth can also be found in these differing beliefs.

The Church's Mission: Living the Good News

The Church has always held that its mission is to share with people the good news of Christ, but too often it has confused the cultural "packaging" for that good news with the good news itself. Vatican II owned up to this confusion and said that missionaries need to recognize the beauty of the cultures where they are working and express the Christian message in ways that make sense within those cultures. The Council also pointed out that there is more to the Church's mission than converting people to Christianity. To live the message it proclaims, the Church must also stand with the poor and the afflicted, educate young people, fight disease and famine, promote better living and working conditions, and work for peace.

Scripture: Read It for Yourself

For centuries, Church leaders did not want the laity to read the Scriptures for themselves because they might misinterpret it and thus threaten their salvation. After all, Protestants split into thousands of denominations based on their differing interpretations. At Vatican II, however, the bishops recognized that Catholics need to ground themselves in the Scriptures. Moreover, while earlier Church leaders had been skeptical of using modern methods of scholarship to study the Bible, at Vatican II the bishops encouraged those methods, as long as the scholars worked within the limits of the Church's teaching authority.

The Faithful: All Working Together to Be Church

Too often people saw the Church as a pyramid, with the Pope at the top, the bishops acting as his deputies coming next, and the laity at the bottom simply following orders. The Council talked about the different roles within the Church. Bishops, they said, are more than middle managers carrying out the Pope's orders; they are teachers and shepherds with a responsibility before God for their work. The laity are not just worker bees but are absolutely necessary to the Church's work in the world. Lay Catholics need to be active in the lives of their parishes and dioceses and beyond that in society as a whole. Their baptismal faith is a call to action in the world.

On a practical level, the bishops changed the way the Mass was celebrated. People could use their native languages rather than Latin, altars were turned around so that the priest faced the congregation, lay people could be readers and assist with the distribution of the Eucharist (when necessary), and the required fast before taking communion changed from midnight on to just one hour. Through these and other changes, the Council sought to get lay people more involved in the worship service that was the center of their lives as Catholic Christians.

Diversity: Different Ways of Being the Same Church

For centuries, the Church had thought of unity as meaning that everybody did the same thing everywhere all the time. This usually was translated as everybody doing things the way that European Catholics did them. The bishops at Vatican II saw that true unity could accommodate diversity, not just of culture but also of individual church communities—each is important and brings something to the whole. In other words, the universal Church is really the communion of all the local churches.

Vatican II covered a lot of ground—so much, in fact, that more than half a century later, the Church is still working through what it means. That work has been challenging and not without its critics. While the Council created a Church that is more open and participatory, some people feel it weakened what being Catholic really means. They point out that Catholics growing up after Vatican II seem to pay less attention to rituals like novenas or the Stations of the Cross and that some seem to rely so much on their own consciences that they neglect or ignore the Church's teaching that it presents the truest expression of God's will.

Some individuals and groups found the changes so unsettling that they broke away from the Church entirely, claiming it had abandoned being faithfully Catholic in exchange for fitting in with the modern world. Many more Catholics remained in the Church but still felt deeply concerned about the changes. Many other Catholics were so excited that they wanted to implement everything as quickly as possible. The late 1960s and early 1970s were rough but exciting times in the Church, and the dust is still a long way from settling. But as Catholics work together to navigate the waters of a more open Church, they are finding that even rough waves carry them to a deeper sense of what it means to be Church.

News from St. Patrick Religious Education Office

RE Registration 2021-2022/Volunteers Needed

Registration for Religious Education for the 2021-2022 school year is OPEN. We have planned to go back to a more traditional program with multi-aged classrooms and monthly family gatherings for the upcoming year. If mitigations change, we will reevaluate at that time. Registration materials are available at: <https://stpatrickmchenry.org/religious-education> and in the church narthex. At this time, we are only looking for registration, so we can properly prepare for the number of students that will be attending in the fall. Please register as soon as possible! If you are prepared at this time to make payment, payments can be turned into the parish office or made online via GiveCentral at <https://www.givecentral.org/location/355/event/7842>.

Important: If you have a 1st grader or 7th grader, our program requires two years of religious education prior to the receipt of Sacraments. This means, that if you want your child to be prepared to receive their Sacrament with their age level in 2nd (First Communion) or 8th (Confirmation) grade, they MUST be enrolled in the fall.

More information about the plans for our program are available at <https://stpatrickmchenry.org/religious-education>.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED: With the anticipation of a more traditional classroom setting, our religious education program is in need of volunteers for the upcoming year. Volunteering as a catechist (lead teacher) or an aide (assistant) is a way to put your faith into action and lead our youngest disciples in faith. Please consider coming and being part of this life changing ministry. We are looking for volunteers for kindergarten through 8th grade classrooms as well as substitutes and for the Sacramental Programs. Volunteers include any high school students through retired parishioners that are willing to help. All volunteers need to be up to date with their Protecting God's Children training appropriate for their age. We will be providing some training opportunities to prepare our teachers, so even if you have no experience, you are welcome to come and join.

If you have questions about registration or volunteering, please contact Lisa Johnson at reoffice@stpatrickmchenry.org or 815-347-2583.

During visits to families-in-need, Vincentians regularly bring bags of food and gift certificates to a local grocery store which can be used for meat and fresh produce. What is often lacking - and greatly needed - are toiletry items. Our families-in-need greatly appreciate receiving shampoo, soap, deodorant, toothpaste, and shaving cream. However these items are only included in our food bags if these items have been donated to SVdP. When shopping this month, please consider adding an extra toiletry item to your list for donation to St. Vincent de Paul. Every donation is greatly appreciated. Corinthians 9-10 "Now he who supplies seed to the sower and bread for food will enlarge the harvest of your righteousness."

Sacraments

Baptism of Infants or children under 7 years of age:

To schedule a Baptism, please begin by calling the parish office. Baptism is celebrated on the 2nd and 4th Sunday of each month immediately after the 11AM Mass. Please consider scheduling your child's Baptism before your child is born to ensure an opening in the month of your choice. In addition, a Baptismal preparation class is required for the parents. This is a one session class that is held on the 1st Sunday of each month after the 9AM Mass. Sign-up is required and you may take the class before your child is born. You must be a registered parishioner of St. Patrick prior to scheduling a Baptism.

Sacrament of Marriage:

At St. Patrick, couples planning to marry need to meet with the Pastor before a wedding date can be set. Please contact the parish office to setup an initial meeting at least 6 months prior to any requested marriage date. This initial meeting will give you an overview of the requirements for marriage and the preparation required. At least one of the couple, or their parents, must be registered parishioners for at least 6 months and be active participating members of St. Patrick Church in order to be married at the church. Both individuals must be at least 19 years of age.

Annulment Process - Information

If you or someone you know needs a previous marriage investigated for its validity or invalidity (the annulment process) so that you may fully participate in your Catholic faith or become Catholic please call the Tribunal Office at 815-399-4300.
