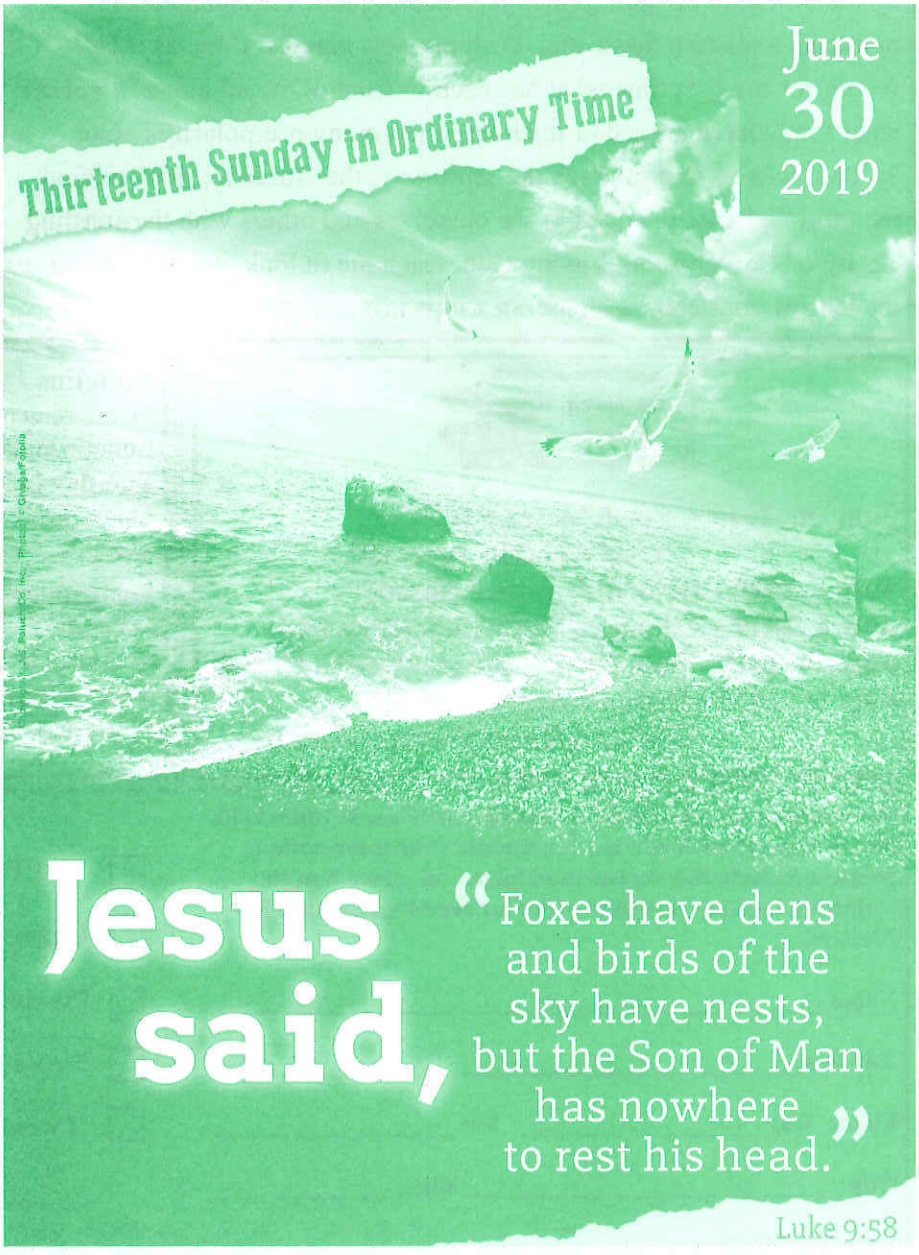
Mission & Vision

Through African American traditions, we are moved by the Spirit to serve.

WE KNOW WHO & WHOSE WE ARE!

"Radical Incarnation"



RADICAL TRANSFORMATION

On this Thirteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time, the readings describe anything but an ordinary time. They are disturbing and they leave us disturbed. The Old Testament reading recounts a young mans radical break with the past to follow a new path. The Gospel describes how life as we know it is abruptly changed if we follow the call of Christ. The psalm and Paul assure us that such life-altering change is possible only because of the power of Gods love. We are presented with a stark choice. To love as God loves, we must leave our old lives behind. We must leave behind not just the bad, the selfish, and the evil but the ordinary, our daily work, and the important, our families, our lives. Loving as God loves requires a radical transformation, not a smooth transition.

Today's Good News ~Living with Christ

Recently I got a pair of sunglasses that are polarized. Not only does that feature remove glare, it also seems to enhance color and sharpness and reveal a depth of layers. As I was driving along the highway and wearing the sunglasses for the first time, I was so moved by the vibrancy of springtime that I had to pull over and take a few moments to absorb the scene. With my new glasses, I feel as if I'm seeing for the first time what has been in front of me all along, I wonder what I may have missed or misinterpreted in my pre-polarized state. St. Paul tells us that in much the same way, the closer we draw to God, the more light we received to see ourselves and others with the startling clarity of God's vision. Loving God, teach me to look at my world through the lens of your compassions. SR. CHRIS KOELLHOFFER, IHM

Faith Formation

Nea on-nin no sua a, ohu

"one who does not know can know from learning"

Knowledge / life-long learning

RCIA is the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults

Whenever you are ready we want to welcome you – with your questions or your quest. Are you seeking Baptism? Do you know someone interested in the Catholic Church? Are you an adult who has not been confirmed? Were you baptized in another Christian denomination and are interested in becoming Catholic? You are most welcome to contact Margaret Roncalli at stcolumbafaithformation@gmail.com with your inquiries.

Reflecting on the Word

From today's Gospel reading: When the days for Jesus' being taken up were fulfilled, he resolutely determined to journey to Jerusalem....

Reflection: The Christian way is frequently described as a journey – but not for sightseeing or mere observation. It requires daily commitment. It might be more accurate to call it a "pilgrimage." Like pilgrims of old, we are traveling together towards a special place, praying as we go and supporting one another as we face the challenges along the way.

So we ask ourselves: How would you describe this moment of your Christian pilgrimage? What is the source of your strength and nourishment as you travel day to day?

Faith Formation for Families and Students

Faith Formation at St. Columba is a generation-integrated, family-based process for raising our children in the faith of our ancestors. There are three parts to Faith Formation (Religious Education): (1) Children's Liturgy of the Word (2) All-Family Faith Days and (3) Sacramental Preparation classes. Together all of these are essential for the whole of helping our children grow in their faith.

Early Registration for Faith Formation

In June we will begin early registration for any of the parts of the 2019-20 Faith Formation programs: Youth group | Children's Liturgy of the Word | Sacramental preparation (first Reconciliation, first Eucharist, Confirmation).

Note: 20% discount for registering by June 30.

Today is the last day!

Did you know...? If your children have already received the sacraments, Faith Formation is still for them! (This means All-Family Faith Days & Children's Liturgy of the Word.) It gathers the children and the parents for growth and fellowship. So you are invited to register your children. We do this annually and—doing it early helps us plan for the next school year.

KEEPING OUR CHILDREN SAFE

Resources to Help Keep Kids Safe

The Web site of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children offers well-produced informational brochures covering a broad range of child safety topics. Go to www.ncmec.org and click on "Resources for Parents & Guardians" to find these brochures and other helpful information about child safety. The modern LGBTQ rights movement and Catholic social teaching have plenty in common Stonewall's lasting legacy is the conviction that all people, regardless of gender identity and sexual expression, are equally human.

By Father Bryan Massingale | U.S. Catholic—June 2019

The Stonewall Inn of New York sits in a quiet part of an often bustling city. Its interior and exterior are rather nondescript. Other than a commemorative plaque in an adjoining small park, there is nothing that marks its historical significance. Yet events here 50 years ago are regarded as the catalytic beginning of the modern gay rights movement. Street protests and demonstrations against police harassment—led by the more marginalized members of the gay community, including transgender persons and persons of color—fueled a demand for "gay liberation" and inspired more comprehensive struggles against social stigma and for equal justice, recognition, and acceptance.

Few could have predicted the far-reaching consequences of what unfolded the night of June 28, 1969. For example, I doubt that the participants in those demonstrations could have imagined that over the course of the next 50 years their activism would lead to gays and lesbians serving openly in the military, the election of openly gay and lesbian political leaders (most recently as the mayor of Chicago), the legalization of same-sex marriages, and the candidacy of an openly gay man for the presidency. The Stonewall events of June 1969 heralded a sea change in our understandings of sexuality and gender that are still continuing today.

This is why every June "Pride" marches occur nationally and internationally, marking not only the pivotal events of the past but also celebrating the existence of gay, lesbian, trans, and queer lives. Such celebrations make visible what was previously hidden.

LGBTQ Christians, including many Catholics, participate in these Pride events. For Stonewall's legacy of social activism also impacts the faith community's reflection upon homosexuality and relationships with LGBTQ persons in complex and complicated ways. The increased social visibility and acceptance of same-sex relationships pose major challenges to every branch of Christianity. Questions over the baptism of children of same-sex parents, the admission of openly gay men to the priesthood and religious life, the employment of openly gay and lesbian believers as school teachers or in positions of church ministry, the provision of health care services to transgender persons, and the pastoral care of LGBTQ young people in our catechetical and sacramental programs: all of these are flashpoints for unresolved tensions in the Catholic community's engagement with the profound mystery of human sexuality.

These tensions were publicly manifested during last fall's Synod on Youth. There the assembled bishops grappled with how to relate to young people who have come of age in societies of increased sexual diversity and visibility. The Synod's preparatory documents used the acronym "LGBTQ" for the first time in official church statements, yet some bishops questioned that move, wondering if it was the prelude to endorsing behaviors the church has regarded as immoral. The Synod ended with a call for deeper study of human sexuality in all its dimensions—a move that was greeted with both cautious optimism by some who hope for significant change and uneasy wariness by others who fear an erosion of traditional beliefs.

Perhaps Stonewall's lasting legacy is the conviction that all people, regardless of gender identity and sexual expression, are equally human and possess fundamental human rights. This is a value shared by Catholic social teaching as its own bedrock conviction. This is why many Catholics publicly participate in Pride events and maintain membership in the church as their faith community wrestles with the implications of that fundamental belief for its relationship with LGBTQ persons.

Bryan Massingale is a professor of theological and social ethics at Fordham University in New York. He is the author of Racial Justice and the Catholic Church (Orbis, 2010).

LGBTQ+ Ministry

Dear friends: Catholics need not be wary of June's "Pride Month" events. It's one way for LGBT people to be proud that they are beloved children of God, that they have families and friends who love them as they are, and that they have the right to be treated with "respect, compassion, and sensitivity," as the Catechism asks, especially after years of persecution. And, for many of them, years of coming to accept themselves as God created them.

Not every Pride Month event or celebration will be to everyone's liking or taste, but the underlying point— LGBT people should be proud of who they are, after centuries of persecution and violence— is an important one. It's also an important time for their families, especially their parents. If you have LGBT friends, tell them you love them. If you have none, you might ask yourself why not.

How can Catholics join in? by loving the LGBT sisters, brothers, and siblings. By listening to their struggles and challenges, especially in their relationship with the church. By reminding them that they are beloved children of God. And by celebrating their presence in our world.

Be proud to love them!

Treating LGBT people with respect, compassion, and sensitivity is much more than just looking at same-sex marriage and same-sex relations, because they are more that just their sexual lives, just as straight people are. We would never focus completely on chastity or something like that with straight people — or even, say, straight young people. But we tend to do that with LGBT people, unfortunately.

TREASURES FROM OUR TRADITION

Processions are life's journey distilled. We move with companions, aware that Christ accompanies us, as we move to the altar for Communion or to the font for baptism, or carry a loved one to a place of rest. In Europe, the season of pilgrimage is beginning now, and tens of thousands of people are moving by foot on well-worn paths. Some take as long as six weeks to walk the last few hundred miles of the medieval pilgrimage route to the Shrine of St. James the Apostle in Compostella, in northern Spain.

Those who make the journey by foot, hiking, or by bicycle, have a kind of passport stamped at villages and monasteries on the road. When they present this document at the cathedral, they are given the emblem of a pilgrim, the scallop shell of St. James. High over their heads at Mass, a huge botafumero twirls clouds of sweet incense through the cathedral. Cynics say it is to mask the odor of smelly feet. The pilgrims know better. Seeing through the clouds the happy faces of those they met along the road, they recognize a foretaste of the welcome into heaven, and the joy of meeting loved ones in the Kingdom of God.
