Pastor's Column

Fr. Thomas Keller

This week Archbishop Carlson and the Archdiocese of St. Louis released the names of priests and deacons with credible and substantiated sexual abuse of minors allegations. “Credible and Substantiated” means that the allegation is more likely true than not true. The names were released online and in the St. Louis Review. He freely chose to release these names because some dioceses have had that list released as the result of law enforcement investigations and the Archbishop felt it was important to be completely transparent.

For the last 8 months, the Archdiocese of St. Louis permitted an independent, third party firm to review over 3,000 files dating back to 1950. The list includes the names of priests and deacons who were criminally tried, settled out of court, or were never tried because the statute of limitations ran out. It should be noted that some are deceased and never had a chance to defend themselves. No priest or deacon who appears on the list is in active ministry today. There may be names on the list that we did not expect or that we have known in the past and had no idea allegations were made against him.

It seems inconceivable to most people, or at least at one time it seemed inconceivable, that a priest would sexually abuse a child, but in retrospect, we see the all-too sinful side of trusted religious leaders. When I was growing up, I was with priests all the time and the furthest thing in anyone’s mind was whether I was safe from predatory behavior. Luckily for me, they were good priests and I was always treated with respect and love. I realize now, not everyone had the same positive experience.

For many years, the bishops treated the issue as a moral failure and avoided bringing embarrassment on the Church by privately chastising and quietly reassigning those priests under the cover of regular transfers, hoping that the priest would not repeat the action. That was a terrible policy. It did not address justice for the victims. It left other children vulnerable, and it has only delayed the embarrassment until now.

As early as the 1980’s, the bishops were aware of the psychosexual disorder of pedophilia and bishops attempted to detect and mandate treatment. But again, many priests were reassigned after treatment in the hope that they were safe to serve in public ministry. It did not work.

After revelations in 2002 of the magnitude of the problem, the bishops met in Dallas to create a charter holding priests accused of sexual abuse accountable to both civil and ecclesiastical justice.

It is terrible that anyone has been abused, that anyone’s innocence has been lost, and that any priest may have received protection from justice for his crimes in the past.

It is important to know that today the Archdiocese of St. Louis and Assumption Parish has installed safeguards to protect children from incidents like this in the future. Our Safe Environment programming includes: Protecting God Children, Code of Conduct, Safe Touch Program, and Virtus Training.

- No priest can serve in any public ministry who has received a credible accusation.
- Tight control of the clergy is exerted through a system of permissions and reporting.
- Ongoing training and evaluations take place to make sure that priests are suitable for ministry.
- Guidelines regarding interactions between priests and minors are in place.
- Extensive background checks.
- These rules apply to all adults serving children including teachers, coaches, etc.

If anyone has suffered sexual abuse in the past, from a member of the clergy or anyone else within the Archdiocese, from a family member or other person, please seek assistance from the appropriate agency. Do not be alone and in the dark, but find help, justice, and peace. To report any suspicion of abuse by any Church personnel please contact local law enforcement, or call the Missouri Department of Social Services Child Abuse Neglect Hotline Number: 1-800-392- 3738. In addition, anyone who has knowledge of sexual abuse or misconduct by a member of the clergy, an employee or volunteer of the Archdiocese of Saint Louis is urged to call the Office of Child and Youth Protection at 314-792-7704.

Assumption Parishioners have suffered greatly in the past, and certainly some past and present parishioners still suffer. Their families suffer too. We must, for their sake, pray for healing, work to protect children in the future and promise justice for those who have been harmed. Please pray for all victims and their families.

God bless, Fr. Keller

RECLAIMING MY CATHOLIC FAITH

Respecting the Holy Eucharist

An ancient tradition of the Church is to express bodily respect to the Holy Eucharist in the most solemn manner possible. The solemnity of the action expressed belief that God is present in the Holy Eucharist.

One could see how ancient Catholics expressed respect for the Christ in the Blessed Sacrament by the customs of some of the oldest religious orders. Benedictine and Byzantine monks expressed respect for the Blessed Sacrament through a solemn bow, while Carthusian monks would prostrate flat on the ground.

Catholics from Rome genuflected whenever they passed before the tabernacle. A genuflection is when one stops and lowers their right knee to the ground. Often, a genuflection is accompanied by the Sign of the Cross.

Much of our Catholic Faith has been forgotten since the 1960's. One of the great losses since the Second Vatican Council is the deep respect that Catholics once had for Christ in the Blessed Sacrament. People today barely turn to acknowledge the Sacrament or they may hastily nod their heads. No official document or pronouncement from the Vatican ever insisted or even suggested discontinuing the respectful postures that Catholics had once used to express their deep love for God and belief in the Presence of Christ in the Eucharist.

Certainly, some people are unable to genuflect due to disability or age, but normally Catholics should reclaim this practice.

Questions for Reflection:

1. Do I acknowledge Jesus Christ present in the Blessed Sacrament when I enter and leave the church?
2. Do I take time to pray by focusing my attention of the Blessed Sacrament?
3. Do I genuflect when entering and exiting my pew or when I pass before the tabernacle in church?

Senior Ministry Activities

No Senior Ministry activities Monday through Thursday this week due to Laura's vacation.

8/2 8:00 am First Friday Mass

No Pot-Luck breakfast or chair exercises due to Laura's vacation.

The July Speaker Luncheon was very well attended, as seniors came to hear Police Officer Brandon O'Brien and Yago his canine companion demonstrate his strength and agility! Officer O'Brien answered many questions about a typical day on the job. We learned that Yago knows 16 commands in German, since all of the St. Louis police dogs are born and trained in Germany. This way the officer's commands cannot be not understood by the suspect being pursued!
