WORSHIP TOGETHER

4

27TH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Faith like a child

By Elisha Valladares-Cormier, Communications Coordinator

I was nine years old when I first received my First Communion. I don't remember much about the Mass or actually receiving the Eucharist, but I do remember my heart bursting with joy afterward. It was a Saturday, so I received my second Communion the next morning at Sunday Mass. I was so overwhelmed with happiness, I wrote in my daily journal, because I finally received the Body and Blood of Our Lord. I couldn't wait to become an altar boy and assist the priest at the most sacred hour of my week.

When I was growing up, I had such a burning love in my heart for the Church and my faith. Our parish community was like a second family to me; the church was a second home. I was going to be a priest, I told my mom, so she had better start saving my Little People and Legos to put in the cry room at my first parish. Going to Mass brought me a joy I still cannot adequately describe.

And then, something changed. We moved and joined another parish that almost completely lacked a passionate zeal for the faith. I became an altar boy there and was as active as could be. But little by little, that faith of my childhood became slowly slipping away. I still loved my faith, but it was stagnant. Several things were at play: exposure to new vices, lack of depth in my spiritual formation, and feeling almost alone in my faith journey. I was still the altar boy everyone, including myself, expected would enter seminary and become a priest. However, the passionate flame that led me to that point was increasingly diminishing and being replaced by deep affection for the Church much different from the life-giving joy faith given me as a child.

Why does this matter? In today's Gospel, Jesus tells us how valuable and irreplaceable this childlike faith is:

“Let the children come to me..., for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these.
Amen, I say to you, whoever does not accept the kingdom of God like a child will not enter it.”

Just reflect on that: the natural piety of a child, the reverent curiosity they have as they gaze upon the signs and symbols of our faith from their perch in the pew. Yes, children learn of their faith from the adults around them, but we have more to learn from them when it comes to being docile before God. The innocence with which a child approaches their belief in God is an example to us all.

Today's Church is faced with many challenges. Some of those challenges are self-inflicted: petty disagreements and growing polarization amongst parish communities and the greater Church are common. And don't get me wrong – the issues being discussed are often very important, whether it's the Sacred Liturgy, issues of life, or others. But the way we approach these issues often lacks a necessary charity and leads us to lose sight of a more important goal: cultivating our own relationship with God.

Almost 15 years have passed since my First Communion and my faith journey remains a constant struggle, a perpetual navigation of ups and downs. As it turns out, I was not called to the vocation of Holy Orders, but rather Matrimony, and I am very glad for this gift. While pursuing the faith I had as a child might become a perpetually elusive mission, today's Gospel is a reminder that faith requires a child's love for their Father who already loves them unconditionally. He's not just waiting for you with open arms; He's beckoning his beloved child – you.

will be participating in

Cross Catholic International Outreach's BOX of JOY.

Our goal is to fill 50 boxes

Please send to the parish office in an envelope labeled: BOX of JOY, c/o Sandy Smith
