James and the Giant Peach JR.

Cataldo Catholic School will present a production of Roald Dahl's James and the Giant Peach JR. on Thursday Feb. 1 and Friday Feb 2 at 7pm at Ferris High School. A delightfully offbeat adaptation of the classic adventure of a boy, his insect friends and their amazing journey across the ocean on a piece of fruit. Behind its wit and whimsy, James and the Giant Peach explores sophisticated themes of family, loss and importance of working together. This fruit-filled adventure includes a cast of 70 students! Tickets available online at showtix4u.com for $6.50 and at the door for $7.

Catholic Women:

The inaugural WHOLEHEARTED Catholic women's conference is scheduled for Feb. 10, at St. Thomas More, Spokane. This year's theme is "Warmth from the heart; light to the world." Let Your Voice be Heard!

Each year in late January, Catholic Charities co-sponsors a day for people of faith to come together and learn how to carry our voices and values in to the public square.

Saturday, January 27, at St. Mark's Lutheran Church Among the presenters and topics covered will be: Bishop Emeritus William Skylstad, speaking on what it means to be involved in public policy from a faith perspective in these times

Nadine Van Stone, Catholic Charities, speaking on challenges of and responses to homelessness Donna Christensen, lobbyist with the Washington State Catholic Conference, Care of Creation, and Criminal Justice

We will hear about legislation in process in Olympia and how we can make our voices heard with elected officials. The Washington State Catholic Conference represents the Bishops of WA State in matters of public policy and has presented at this event for many years. The Fig Tree is the chief sponsor locally and asks for a $20 registration fee, which includes lunch. If at least 5 people come from one congregation, the fee drops to $15 per person

A Word from Father...

Dear Friends,

May I share with you something rather special for me? In just a few more weeks, my second book will finally hit the bookstores, which nowadays mostly means Amazon.com. It has been almost ten years in gestation, but this past week, I sent in to the publisher the very final corrections to the typeset manuscript and the week before that, they sent to me a picture of the cover that will grace the book. I am both happy to have it soon in readers' hands, but also very much relieved to have this long project now wrapped up. You are the first to see the new cover:

Writing in challenging work and sometimes it takes ten years to get things right. It is also a wonderful exercise in creativity that makes all kinds of synapses in the brain spark especially when you find just the right combination of words to express something ineffable.

Writing, I discovered with the first book, is also ministry. Since my first book, To the Field of Stars was published almost ten years ago, I have received countless emails, notes, letters, and the occasional phone call from its readers thanking me for touching them in some way through my words, and often enough that "touching" was something spiritual and religious. I discovered that writing that book was a way to evangelize, to share the Good News, to bring Christ to people in a new and surprising way. I am ever so grateful for that gift in my life.

I can only hope that the new book, Beyond Even the Stars, (you'll never know how long it took to settle on that title!), will also serve the Lord in some small way. It is, I believe, a deeper book, a more personal book, a more explicitly religious (and I dare say, "Catholic" book). I expect some folks will find it too much so, while I am sure for others it will be just what they needed at this point in their lives to reopen their eyes to the beauty of God present in all our lives' pilgrimages.

As To the Field of Stars related my journey along the Camino de Santiago de Compostela in Spain, Beyond Even the Stars tells the tale of my much longer walk through Belgium and France some four or five years later. It is already listed on Amazon.com for advance orders and will become actually available, if all goes well, on March 6th. I'll try to have copies here for purchase and signing as soon as possible, presuming a few of you may want to read the further adventures in France of your peripatetic pastor!

Have a wonderful week!

Fr. Kevin
