JESUS FEEDS 5000

Today's Gospel, John 6:1-15, was written some 60 years after the death and Resurrection of Jesus. Celebration of the Eucharist had been established as an expression of what it means to be a disciple of Christ. John constructed this 6th chapter in such a way that readers would see their Sunday observance reflected in his Gospel. Almost 20 centuries later, we see this same reflection in our Liturgy.

The chapter opens with a narrative of how Jesus fed five thousand people with just five barley loaves and two fish. John is showing us the Mass is not a private devotion nor the privilege of only a select few. It is a celebration of 'all' who choose to participate throughout the world.

John mentions that the Jewish feast of Passover was near. That was not so much a designation of time as it was an indication of the meaning of the Eucharist. The Eucharist is our Christian Passover: the celebration of the sacrifice which has given us the gift of freedom from sin and established us as God's people.

When it was time to feed the people, a boy came forward with five loaves and two fish and gave them to Jesus. It seemed like almost nothing considering the needs of so many.

In the same way at Mass, representatives of the people bring forward bread and wine to begin the preparation of the gifts. They are that lad of the Gospel, and the gifts presented to the priest seem insignificant in comparison with what they will become.

Jesus performed Eucharistic actions. He took the loaves of bread and gave thanks -- the very word Eucharist means to give thanks. Matthew in his narrative of the same event provides an important detail. He states that after Jesus looked up to heaven and gave thanks, He broke the bread and gave the loaves to His disciples, who distributed the bread among the people. That looks exactly like what happens at Mass. The fish? They are not part of our Eucharistic meal, but a fish is an ancient, and still current, Christian symbol. The initial letters in Greek for "Jesus Christ, God's Son, Savior" form an acronym which spells out the Greek word for fish: "ICHTHUS."

This narration of the multiplication of loaves and fish sufficient to feed five thousand is one of only a few that appear in all four Gospels. John's version is the only one that mentions barley loaves, thus tying it back so distinctly to the story of Elisha, the holy man of God in our first reading 2 Kings 4: 42-44, who miraculously multiplied the barley loaves into quantities large enough to feed one hundred people and have leftovers.

The other three Gospel narratives are found in Matthew 14:13-21, Mark 9:32-44, and Luke 9:10-17. You might find it interesting to read all the versions and compare details for a composite picture of this event.

God has truly blessed us with this great gift of His Body and Blood, the Most Holy Eucharist. It has been just over a month now that the restrictions on attending Mass in our Archdiocese were eased. Let us renew our thanks to the Lord for this blessing.
