Jesus said to them, "There is no need for them to go away; give them some food yourselves." But they said to him, "Five loaves and two fish are all we have here." Then he said, "Bring them here to me," and he ordered the crowds to sit down on the grass. Taking the five loaves and the two fish, and looking up to heaven, he said the blessing, broke the loaves, and gave them to the disciples, who in turn gave them to the crowds.

FR. MICHAEL MORRIS UPDATE

Fr. Michael Morris, the pastor of Regina Coeli, was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer this spring. He is an extraordinary priest who was devoted to the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, hearing confessions, and great solicitude to the sick.

He is currently living in the Bronx while undergoing chemotherapy. He recently wrote: "The chemotherapy treatments have been quite debilitating. But I am not complaining. In fact, this time here at the O'Connor Residence has been a time of great grace and a marvelous opportunity for spiritual renewal. The first round of chemo will end in September and that is when the staff at Sloan-Kettering will be able to determine the success of the treatments. I do hope to get up to Regina Coeli as soon as I can, but in the meantime, you remain in prayer, especially in the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, and I am so grateful for your prayers and the tons of cards and Mass cards sent my way."

FIRST THURSDAY HOLY HOUR - AUGUST 6th (9:00 am - 10:00 am)

Cardinal Dolan had asked back in the summer of 2025 that the parish have a Holy Hour for Vocations to the Priesthood. Jesus Christ, the High Priest, established the ordained priesthood on Holy Thursday. The ordained priest is necessary to offer the unbloody Sacrifice of the Mass making present Christ's one saving sacrifice of the Cross on our altars. The priest has been given by Christ through ordination, Christ's authority to forgive sins in Christ's name. The priest has been given the power to bless and anoint. Pope St. John Paul II used to repeat, "Without priests there is no Eucharist. Without the Eucharist there is no Church." In order to be the People of God, we must do our part to encourage, inspire, and pray for vocations to the sacred priesthood.

THE ABSOLUTION PRAYER OF THE SACRAMENT OF PENANCE

Penance, also called Confession or Reconciliation, is the sacrament established by Jesus Christ to forgive sin committed after Baptism. Our Lord's ministry began with the exhortation, "The Kingdom of God is near! Repent and believe in the Gospel." (Mark 1:15) To repent means to change the orientation of one's mind and heart away from choosing to love false goods, towards choosing to love God. It includes sorrow for sin motivated by fear of deserved punishment and/or love of God.

On the evening of His Resurrection, Jesus forgave His Apostles for abandoning Him after the Last Supper. In doing so, He gave them, His first priests, His own authority to forgive sins saying, "Peace be with you," Jesus said to them again. "As the Father has sent me, so I send you." After saying this, he breathed on them and said, "Receive the Holy Spirit. If you forgive anyone's sins, they are forgiven. If you retain anyone's sins, they are retained." (John 20:21-23) This power was passed on by the sacrament of Holy Orders so that men validly ordained as bishops or priests are given the power to forgive sins or those who are contrite and willing to confess.

On December 2, 1973, Pope St. Paul VI promulgated a revision of the Rite of Penance changing some of the words of the Absolution prayer. However, the pope kept unchanged the form of the sacrament, that is, the essential words pertaining to the absolution necessary for the Sacrament of Penance to take effect, or, in the language of Church law to be "sacramentally valid." These words are: "I absolve you from your sins in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit."

The entire prayer is as follows:

God the Father of mercies, through the death and resurrection of His Son has reconciled the world to himself and poured out the Holy Spirit for the forgiveness of sins. Through the ministry of the Church may God grant you pardon and peace. And I absolve you from your sins in the name of the Father, and of the Son, + and of the Holy Spirit. Amen.

For comparison, the older prayer of absolution is translated from the Latin as follows:

May our Lord Jesus Christ absolve you; and I, by His authority, absolve you from every bond of excommunication (suspension) and interdict, in as much as I am able and you need. Therefore, I absolve you from your sins in the name of the Father, and of the Son, + and of the Holy Spirit. Amen.

POPES NAMED LEO - ST. LEO IX

St. Leo IX was born as Bruno, son of Count Hugh of Egisheim, on June 21, 1002. A devout young man, he found his vocation in Holy Orders. The earlier Christian missionary activity of St. Boniface and others was bearing good fruit in the German speaking lands. In the 11th century, devout and influential German laity and clergy were desirous of having worthy and holy men serve as bishops, especially the bishop of Rome. In 1048, after the short reign of less than a month of Pope Damasus II who was of Bavarian stock, Emperor Henry III (r. 1033-1056) nominated his distant cousin Bruno who was from German speaking Lorraine to become Pope. At the time, Bruno was the widely regarded humble reforming Bishop of the small diocese of Toul since 1027. Bruno would only assent to becoming Pope if the Roman people and clergy ratified the Emperor's nomination and they did so. In this way, Bruno demonstrated respect for the liberty of the Church from imperial interference. Becoming Pope on February 12, 1049, he took the name Leo in honor of Pope St. Leo I. His first important act was to hold a synod in April in order to stamp out simony (the sin of buying holy orders for money) and clerical concubinage (the sin of priests living with mistresses). The synod determined that in order to be ordained a subdeacon, a man had to make a promise of perpetual chastity. Fully aware of his role as the unique successor to St. Peter, Leo IX spread these moral reforms by traveling through the dioceses in what is now Italy, Germany and France to preside over local synods. During his pontificate, he would make other trips to continue the push for reform, to foster peace, and to settle ecclesiastical issues.

St. Leo IX was a good judge of talent and he called upon capable, like-minded clergy and made them cardinals. Among them were Hildebrand who would one day be Pope St. Gregory VII, Frederick of Liege who would one day become Pope Stephen IX, St. Hugh of Cluny, St. Peter Damian, and Humbert of Moyenmoutier who would lead the fateful embassy to Michael I Keroularios, Patriarch of Constantinople. Leo IX better organized the cardinals, making them into an advisory senate to the Pope, and setting the stage for Pope Nicholas II, in 1059, to reserve election of the Pope to the college of Cardinals so that secular rulers would not be able to interfere in papal elections. In April 1050, he called another synod in Rome to deal with the heresy of Berengar of Tours concerning the Most Holy Eucharist. Berengar would eventually recant and uphold Catholic teaching.

The Normans were at the time expanding their domains in southern Italy which was claimed by the Byzantine Empire which, however, could not defend its subject people. Southern Italy, though once part of the Patriarchate of Rome, had been uncanonically placed under the Patriarch of Constantinople in 732 by the Iconoclast heretic Byzantine Emperor Leo III. Over the years, the Byzantine Rite replaced the Roman Rite. The Normans, however, seized Byzantine territories and interjected Roman Rite priests into Byzantine churches. This caused tensions. With the Byzantine Empire offering no help, the Pope gathered an army of Italian, Lombard, and Swabian mercenaries to oppose the Normans. However, when they saw the Pope at the head of an army, the devout Normans were not willing to fight him and asked for a truce. The Pope was willing, but the Swabians insisted on the battle which the Normans won. Leo IX became a respected and well-treated prisoner for nine months, but was only released when he acknowledged the Norman conquests in Calabria and Apulia. Leo IX returned to Rome, but died not long after on April 19, 1054, which is his liturgical feast day.

Meanwhile, Patriarch Michael I Keroularios, through Archbishop Leo of Ohrid, had written to the Pope denouncing the use of unleavened bread in the Holy Eucharist, beardless priests, fasting days in the Latin Church, and other Roman ecclesiastical customs. Leo IX responded with a letter to Emperor Michael I asserting his Petrine authority. In 1054, Leo IX sent Cardinal Humbert to lead a negotiation, teach to Constantinople and to meet with Michael I. When he could get no hearing from the haughty Patriarch, Humbert, despite knowing that Leo IX had died, nevertheless, placed a papal bull excommunicating Michael I on the altar of Hagia Sophia. The Patriarch, in turn, excommunicated Humbert and his associates and closed down the Roman Rite churches of Constantinople, stopped remembrance for the pope at the Divine Liturgy, and wrote letters to the other patriarchs. Notably, the Byzantine Rite Patriarch of Antioch, Peter III, rejected most of Keroularios' arguments and urged him to preserve Christian Unity. This is often used as the date for the so-called Great Schism, which Pope Leo XV and Patriarch Bartholomew of Constantinople were working to overcome by the grace of God.
