Third Sunday of Easter
April 10, 2016

First Reading: Acts 5:27-32, 40b-41
Peter's answer to the Sanhedrin speaks volumes about his newfound courage as a witness for Jesus. All of the Apostles with him became models of courage under the pressure from the threat of persecution.

Second Reading: Revelation 5:11-14

John witnesses the acclamation of a great number of creatures of all kinds along with the elders. They unite in giving tribute to Jesus of a kind regularly given to the Roman emperor, pointing to conflict coming in the earthly world between Rome and the young Church.

Gospel: John 21:1-19, or 21:1-14

There are six different stories here, woven into this epilogue to the gospel. Among them, the dialogue between Christ and Peter is the most telling. It leads to Peter's commissioning.

Reflection by Rev. Leonard N. Peterson

Between seasons they change. I am not referring to wheat or willow trees, but to the characters and plots of episodic TV shows. Pick your favorite. Note how the last episode of the TV season leaves you hanging for a long time wondering how this or that situation will resolve itself. That is, unless it was the final episode. So we said goodbye to popular shows like "The Sopranos", "The Wire" and more recently to "Downton Abbey." All hits with audiences.

Today's gospel is really an extra series of "small episodes" added on to all that went before in the life of Jesus and that of the early Church. But unlike a TV series, we are not left hanging. Written last, John's gospel itself is a spiritual reflection on the story told by the three earlier gospels. We have an incident here that strongly proves Jesus is truly alive: He cooks a seaside breakfast for His apostles!

The captivating part of the story is what follows the meal: the dialogue between Jesus and Peter. It balances out the bitterness of Peter's triple denial with three declarations of love in answer to Jesus' questions.

That question of Jesus—"Do you love Me?"—echoes down the centuries to become one for us to answer also. No one of us can flee from it any more than St. Peter could. The Lord has the inherent right to ask it of each of us more times than three. Why? Because every sin we commit at its root is a denial of love for Christ. The sin may be slight or serious, "lower" or "upper case" if you prefer, but it still is a denial. By it we declare that this, that, or the other thing matters more to us than God's will. That is more than an error in judgment. It is like saying "I don't know the man!" as Peter did that first Holy Thursday night. So do not wonder why we pray our "Lord, have mercy" at the start of every Mass.

During this Jubilee Year of Mercy, the whole concept of God's mercy is a timely topic for our reflection. And appreciation. None of us take delight in being sinners, but we can do so as forgiven sinners. There is a world of difference between the two. God's mercy is the reason.

So many people in the world are walking around every day shouldering guilt. Even if that guilt is only imaginary, it still fosters a kind of paralysis in their mindset. The relief is no further away than the nearest confessional. There we meet, in the unworthy person of the priest, the living Jesus with His sacred scarred hands ready to embrace us once we say we're sorry.

At the start of this Jubilee Year of Mercy last December, I recall seeing a photo of a reconciliation Room in some unnamed church with the door open. The caption read: "The one holy door most of us will open." How true! Before this year is out, will you open the one at your church?

Message from Cardinal Dolan: Mercy Saturday, April 16th

2016 - Year of Mercy

Dear Friends in the Lord,

A blessed Easter! I'm sure you have heard that during this Jubilee Year of Mercy we are holding a number of "Mercy Saturdays" throughout the Archdiocese of New York. I want to invite you to attend the upcoming Mercy Saturday on April 16, at the Salesman National Shrine of Mary Help of Christians.

The day begins at 2:30 P.M. and will include talks on mercy, an opportunity to experience God's mercy in the sacrament of confession, and other testimonies and devotions. We will conclude with Mass at 5 P.M. and then a light reception. Our aim is to focus on the call of Pope Francis: that we reflect in a special way on God's mercy toward us, and our need to be merciful toward each other.

I hope to see you there!

Faithfully in Christ,

Timothy Michael Cardinal Dolan
Archbishop of New York

St Boniface Mission Statement

As members of our parish, we believe that we share in the mission of Jesus through our baptism and commitment to the values expressed in the gospel.

The dedication of our parish to the Holy Spirit calls us to be particularly attentive to the inspiration and guidance of the Spirit as we:

Gather as a community that worships together and supports one another in spiritual growth;

Witness to our belief through sharing our faith with others and providing for education in faith to our members;

Respond with compassion to both the spiritual and corporal needs of those around us;

Care for the many gifts we have been given and seek to use them wisely.
