Mission Statement

The Church of St. Francis Xavier, a Roman Catholic parish in the Jesuit tradition, strives to be a prophetic, welcoming community, and an inclusive witness to the presence of Christ Jesus in our midst. Mindful of our utter reliance on God, and need for God's grace, we rejoice together in our celebration of the sacraments and proclamation of the Gospel.

As a people of hope, we commit ourselves through prayerful and creative discernment to respond to God in our time by: Being a respectful community Where seekers and their questions are welcomed, Where injustice is challenged, Where the poor, the alienated and the marginalized find a home, And where people are refreshed, reconciled and renewed.

CULTURAL INCLUSIVITY IN MUSICAL WORSHIP

What do you think of when you hear the terminology of our “Universal Church?” We experience it every Sunday when we hold hands and sing the chanted version of The Our Father. Chant and Latin are historically one of the primary examples of the Church’s universality. The first time I experienced it at Xavier was one of the most inspired Church moments of my life. Absolutely everyone sings it!

But what does it mean to us when we make the claim that “All are Welcome?” How can “All be Welcome” and “Universal” at the same time? I’ve been asking myself these questions throughout the years and have always prided myself on choosing musical selections for worship that are eclectic. But at the present time I am taking inventory in this regard and find that it is time to go further with this inclination. My question today is “How can we acknowledge cultural diversity in our Universal Church without supporting Nationalism as something exclusive rather than inclusive?” The answer to that, for me, is to focus on that which is beautiful. Beauty draws people together, it does not divide.

Some of you are saying by now, “Come on...get to the point!” Music in worship gives us a very direct way to acknowledge the cultural diversity within our Catholic Faith while at the same time giving credence to our claim that “All are Welcome!” But it only does this if we are using the music of various cultures. And although we have done so over the years, the question remains....to what extent? On Martin Luther King weekend, we often sing “We Shall Overcome” as a fitting tribute to this modern day prophet and to the civil rights movement. And even though we have three African-American members in the choir and a number of Filipinos and Latinos with most choir members being “white folks,” we have often taken ownership of African-American Spirituals and Canciones Latinas (this reflects our congregation as well). Three years ago we started celebrating The Feast of Guadalupe. For the last number of years we have been singing some bilingual mass acclamations from the Misa del Pueblo Inmigrante. We have sung in English, Spanish, Vietnamese, Tagalog, Swahili and of course, the occasional French, Italian and German. It is my dream to have the refrain of “That All May be One in Christ” translated into Arabic for our use at church (any translators with a flare for music out there?)

Over the last couple of years, I have been very intentional about choosing pieces for the choir from what has been commonly referred to as “Black Church” within the Catholic church. But now, I would like to continue opening the doors, making sure that “All are Welcome,” and acknowledging our black brothers and sisters from both black Catholic and Protestant faiths by introducing a setting of the “Our Father” that they commonly use in the liturgy as a congregational alternative written by Albert Hay Malotte. Although we have always sung the chanted version, there are Catholics around the country and the world who sing a simplified congregational version of the Malotte Our Father. And in solidarity, we could join them. The music ministry of St. Francis Xavier Church will present and teach this version to you between now and the First Sunday of Advent when we will return to the chanted version. Many of you may already know it and some of you will find it a familiar melody as it is in wide usage even if not yet for us. We won’t give up the chanted version, we will simply alternate by liturgical season between the two. In so doing, we will “Open the Doors,” “Welcome the Other,” and “Acknowledge the Cultural Diversity which makes our Catholicism so compelling.”

We would also like to expand our utilization of the Misa del Pueblo Inmigrante as a gesture of opening the doors to our Latino and Latina Brothers and Sisters by introducing this mass’s version of the Lamb of God: Cordero de Dios. What better way to respond to the plight of the immigrant and refugee trying to enter our country at the present time? We are going to sing this very prayerful moment of our liturgy completely in Spanish, unlike the Glory to God/Gloria a Dios and the Holy/Santo, which are bi-lingual. You may ask, “But how can I do that? I don’t speak Spanish!” You don’t need to! You know this prayer in your dreams: “Lamb of God, who takes away the sins of the world, have mercy on us. Lamb of God, who takes away the sins of the world, have mercy on us. Lamb of God, who takes away the sins of the world, Grant us Peace.” Let us all join together, and with God’s help, shirk the sins of division by acknowledging our “other” Catholic brothers and sisters and their cultures, and in so doing, bring just a little more peace to ourselves, our community and to our world

THE PROVINCE OFFICE OF THE NORTHEAST JESUITS has informed us that Fr. Bob VerEecke, S.J. has been returned to ministry at Eastern Point Retreat House effective October 1. The province has made the following statement :

“In the current climate with the expectations it has created we approach any questions of boundaries with children or adults with great caution and an understanding that transparency and quick response is required.

-Bob understood that his actions could have been perceived very badly and for the sake of all that he would have to be removed from Xavier and the pastorate.

-Bob took time after his removal to step back from ministry, to consider the issues of boundaries and appropriate behaviors, and to recommit himself to pastoral professionalism.

-Following This year-long period of prayer and reflection, Bob returns to ministry with the Provincial's full confidence that he will continue to benefit those whom he will now serve as a priest in retreat ministry.

We hope that anyone who has a concern about boundary issues will understand that we take those concerns seriously and that we hold ourselves to the highest of pastoral expectations.”

SEASON OF CREATION

For our last week of Season of Creation, let's reflect on what the scientists are telling us about climate change. First, global warming is happening at an even more rapid rate than they were predicting and is causing great alarm. Second, we are close to reaching the tipping points on various aspects of climate change: global temperatures, fossil fuels in the atmosphere, the melting of polar ice, and acidification of the oceans. Passing a tipping point means that it will be nearly impossible to return to the normal we have lived with for thousands of years. Third, global warming impacts our ecosystems and disrupts all of the intricate interdependent systems within them. We are facing the sixth great extinction of species – the only one caused by human activity.

At Fr. Ken's installation Mass, our Environment Ministry chose two symbols: a copy of Laudato Si', Pope Francis' encyclical on the environment that offers us a spiritual grounding, and a copy of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change's report which was released last October, and sounded the alarm from the scientific world.

The report estimated that we have twelve years – yes, just twelve years! – to transition our economies off fossil fuels and onto renewable energy, in order to avert passing the tipping points. A daunting task. ... on the scale of rebuilding Europe and Japan after WWII. The younger generation is feeling the urgency of it.

As with any transformation, some sectors oppose it because they will not continue to profit from the new reality. And in fact, we see that happening with the fossil fuel industry and their supporters.

The fossil fuel companies have known about global warming for decades and yet they continue to discredit the science. How? By creating doubt...in the same way the tobacco industry did with smoking and lung cancer. Ignore the science and just create doubt.

What do we need to do? Read the science. Look around and acknowledge the destructive impacts climate change is already having on communities. And think of our common home.

How do we have hope? Hope comes from action, says Greta Thunberg, the Swedish teenager who did her homework on the science of climate change. As Christians, we have hope by acknowledging the problem, by entering into a deep spirituality that calls us to be co-creators with God, and then to work with God for the good of all creation... to work for the protection of the planet and all living things on it, to challenge our own lifestyles and reduce our carbon footprint, to not despair or leave the challenge to others. It will take all of us to change policies, to adopt less harmful lifestyles, and to restore the environment where damage has been done... and to create with God that new heaven and new earth.

Then we can truly celebrate a Season of Creation.
