Note from Fr. Tom:

The focus of today's reading is that the Christian life is one of following the way of Christ. Jesus summons us to him out of our worldliness, out of our habits and attachments, to follow his way. And after we have encountered the Lord, he sends us out as messengers to proclaim the truth of his kingdom.

In today's Gospel, Jesus is resolutely determined to go to Jerusalem, the place where he knew he would face rejection. That resolution ultimately would cost him his life. Going through Samaria, an area in the middle of the country just north of Jerusalem and south of Galilee, he experienced rejection there, a foretaste of his ultimate rejection in Jerusalem. When James and John, two of Jesus' closest disciples sought revenge on these Samaritans this brought on a strong rebuke by Jesus. The way of Jesus is not about revenge but of mercy and following him no matter what the cost. In the first reading, God's call to Elisha cost him his former way of life. And Paul challenging the Jewish Christians in the second reading to treat the Gentile Christians differently cost them their understanding of the Law. The freedom of living by the Spirit of God has its costs.

Following Jesus can cost us too, especially when it calls us to live in different ways from our family, friends, co-workers, government, and even other members of the Church. Our pro-life stance can seem unrealistic, and our call to respect the dignity of all people, including those some would rather exclude, can seem lax and too open. The biblical justice Jesus taught is radically different from the prevailing opinion of most.

When the time comes for us to be tried for our faith in Jesus, and we are tempted to turn back to our former ways of the world, we can remind ourselves of the many blessings we have been granted by our Lord. We can then pray for an even greater determination to live under the guidance of the Holy Spirit at these times. May God Bless you all! Fr. Tom
